Arthur G. Hamer Is Found Shot to Death In Farm Home Near Red Cloud.

(Special to The Star.)

RED CLOUD, Neb., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Ida Hamer, aged 39 years, with three of her children, came to Red Cloud today and informed Sheriff Jack Waller that she had shot her husband, Arthur G. Hamer, aged about 49 at 7:20 Saturday morning at their home four and one-half miles northeast of Campbell. She also turned over the weapon which she had used, a .32 calibre revolver, with one chamber empty.

The sheriff and County Attorney Foe at once went to the farm taking with them Dr. Dugan, of Campbell, and found the victim lying dead in bed.

None in the vicinity had learned of the killing until after the arrival of the officers.

The Hamers have been having marital difficulties for some time. On December 10 Mrs. Hamer came to the county seat, exhibited a black eye and swore out a warrant against her husband, at the same time beginning divorce proceedings.

He pleaded guilty, paid a fine of $100, after which the divorce action was dismissed and the couple started living together again.

Nine days later she came to Red Cloud again, this time with an ear bleeding, swore out a warrant for assault with intent to inflict great bodily injury, and began divorce proceedings again.

The district court issued an order giving her the use of the farm while the action was pending, and restraining Hamer from molesting or even visiting her.

The action was dismissed last Monday, and the couple again began living together. A day or two ago he is said to have beaten one of the children.

He is also said to have threatened not only his wife but also that he would get the sheriff and county attorney, and he is said to have planned to come to Red Cloud today.

The neighbors have been in fear of him for some time.

The Hamers have three boys, eighteen, sixteen and fifteen years, and one girl, thirteen years old.

An inquest is to be held Monday.

Mrs. Hamer is held in high esteem among her friends.

Edgar Schulz of Yutan, is only thirteen years old, but at the state wide corn show held in connection with the annual meeting of the Crop Growers' association, during the past week at the Nebraska university College of Agriculture, he won first prize for having exhibited the best single ear of corn at the show. It was yellow corn. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Schulz, who live near the little Saunders county town.

In winning the honors of the corn show Edward was compelled to come into competition with some of the most expert corn growers in the state —men who had won highest honors at the exhibition on more than one occasion.

Edgar is a member of the Growing Seed Corn club at Ashland and has been in the boys' and girls' club work under the extension service of the University of Nebraska but two years. At the Nebraska state fair in 1923, two of his club mates won second place in a demonstration competition. DEMOCRATS TO MOUNT STAGE FOR THE WEEK

First Full National Committee Meets Next Tuesday to Designate Time and Place for Convention.

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. — The hosts of democracy, militant once more and hopeful, began descending on the national capital tonight to take possession of the political spotlight and engage in a series of weekend conferences, preceding the first really important gathering the democrats have had since the great land slide of 1920.

The full national committee meets on Tuesday for the first time in more than two years.

The friends and adherents to McAdoo, Underwood, Cox, Wilson, Bryan, Smith, Davis, and Ralston either are already on the job or will be by tomorrow.

The purpose of the meeting is to select the time and place for the convention. The opinion appeared general among the early arrivals that either Chicago or St. Louis will get the plum, with the chances favoring Chicago. Two other bids will be placed before the committee—San Francisco and New York. Fred W. Upham of Chicago, who had the republican convention "sewed up" for Chicago until the Coolidge managers decided on Cleveland, said tonight:

Certain of Chicago.

"Unless I meet another Butler, the democratic convention is coming to Chicago."

San Francisco is considered an unlikely choice, because the convention met there four years ago; St. Louis is opposed by some factions in the party because it is the territory of Senator "Jim" Reed, who was denied a delegate's seat four years ago; while New York is opposed by the same factions because it is the home of Tammany.

Chief among the questions that will be considered are the suggested abrogation of the two-thirds nominating rule and finances.

The democrats enter the 1924 campaign with a considerable deficit, a heritage from the 1920 campaign. Originally this amounted to approximately a quarter of a million dollars, but by dint of rigid economy and the drive for funds in the last year it has been reduced somewhat.

Banks Hold Notes.

The indebtedness now is in the form of notes held by Washington and New York banks, bearing indorsements from Thomas L. Chadbourne, B. M. Baruch, and Francis P. Garvan of New York; A. Mitchell Palmer, Vance McCormick and Joseph Guffey of Philadelphia, T. T. Ansberry of Ohio, Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, William Jameson of Missouri, John Barnett of Colorado, and Joseph P. Tumulty.

Chief among the visitors at the gathering on Tuesday will be William Jennings Bryan and his brother, Governor "Charley" Bryan of Nebraska.

M'ADOO TO ATTEND.

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 12.—Former State Senator William C. Lyons of Colorado, who is closely associated with the McAdoo presidential campaign, left here tonight for Washington to attend the meeting of the democratic national committee in that city next week.

Senator Lyons announced that he had made a careful canvass of Colorado during the past week and found "strong sentiment prevailing for the selection of William G. McAdoo as the candidate for president."

No verdict had been reached at midnight in the case against Elmer Baker, charged with embezzlement. If a verdict is reached during the night it will be sealed and the findings reported to the court in the morning.

(International News Service.)

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Jan. 12.—The Elmer Baker embezzlement case went to the jury at 6 p .m. Saturday. The defense offered its evidence during the morning and the afternoon was devoted to the arguments of attorneys. The case was then submitted, thus closing the third case based on alleged corruption in the court house.

He told of coming to North Platte in 1875 and working at various bookkeeping jobs, ltaer being secretary and treasurer of a large lumber company. He spnt twelve years in farming, after which he returned to town and went to work in the county treasurer's office.

Since the indictment under which Baker is charged with embezzlement of money by public officials, the question of whether he was in fact an official became a vital one. He worked for a time in the office of the

DRY FORCES IN FACTIONAL ROW

Prohibition Ranks In Congress Split Wide Open Following Clash Between Representatives Kvale And Cramton.

BATTLE CAUSING EVIDENT CONCERN

Minnesota Congressman Brands Volstead Act As a "Rich Man's" Law And "Travesty Of Justice"—Michigan Man Defender.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. — Congressional dry ranks were split wide open tonight. It was the result of a factional row in the house between Representative Kvale of Minnesota, the "dryest man in congress" and Representative Louis C. Cramton of Michigan, spokesman for the anti-saloon league.

Coming on the eve of the anti-saloon league national convention, whcih opens here Sunday, the house row caused evident concern to national dry leaders. Hundreds of prohibitionists, in the capital for the convention, talked of nothing else.

Kvale divided the prohibition camp by a wholly unexpected indictment of the national prohibition act, its author, former Representative Volstead, whom Kvale succeeded, and action of the anti-saloon league in supporting the law. He branded the Volstead act as a "rich man's law," a "travesty of justice," and charged it was breeding a nation of hypocrites.

Frequently Cheered.

Frequently interrupted by cheers from the floor and the gallery, Kvale declared the bill was legalizing the "double standard of morality," and permitting the better class of society to "wallow in whisky baths." His condemnation was more harsh than any given the law by wet leaders.

No sooner was Kvale seated than Representative Cramton arose to defend the law and to denounce his dry colleague. Cramton declared the Volstead act was a good law and termed it "significant" that most of the applause given Kvale came from the wets.

To correct the conditions he described, Kvale introduced a new "bone dry" bill which would compel every citizen to file with the government a list of all alcoholic liquors on the first of each year. A graduated tax, starting at $10 on the first gallon of lacohol and increasing $1 on each additional gallon, would be levied against the "cellar" contents of each home.

Bill Too Aggressive.

Kvale declared he would "expect no support from the anti-saloon league" for his new bill, "because it is too dry and too progressive for that organization."

The Volstead act, Kvale said, was "sometimes erroneously and ridiculously named after a man who never in all his life had given the saloon or the liquor traffic any couse for worry."

He declared the anti-sallon league supported it although it was a law for the poor and "the privilege for the rich."

Kvale charged the prohibition act permitted every citizen to fill his cellar with intoxicating liquors and invite in all his friends to share it "if he has the money."

"A great American has said this nation cannot endure half slave and half free. No more will this nation endure half wet and half dry."

Cramton, inreplying, said he was "uncertain whether Kvale wanted more liquor in the cellar of the poor man or less in the cellar of the rich man."

"I am opposed to the wine and liquor cellars," Cramton added. "I am opposed to the saloon and opposed to changes in the law that would permit wine and beer. There is nothing in this law which differs between the rights of the rich or the poor. It is simply that the rich have money and the poor have not."

Drinking Water Low at 'Base' of Anti-Salooners

ESTERVILLE, Ohio., Jan. 12.—Even drinking water is scarce in the home town of the anti-saloon league.

(Special to The Star.)

COLUMBUS, Neb., Jan. 12.—Two men were fatally injured today when Union Pacific passenger train No. 17 the Oregon-Washington limited, west bound, struck an automobile truck loaded with ice, as it was crossing the tracks.

Bisson, Platte county farmer, living 12 miles north of the city were hurled from the truck, which was totally destroyed and pieces of which were carried for more than 100 feet along the tracks when the train crashed into the vehicle.

Little Hope of Recovery.

The two injured men were rushed to the Columbus hospital where little hope is held for the recovery of in their bodies were broken and sein their bodies were brokn and severe internal injuries are feared.

Members of the train crew on No. 17, it is said were unaware they had struck anyone until they reached the Union Pacific passenger station, where they were informed of the accident.

The truck, which was loaded with freshly gathered ice, was completely demolished by the impact, and it is supposed the truck was squarely in the center of the main line west bound track when the accident occurred.

ROYALIST ACTION STIRS UP GREECE

Prime Minister Wishes to Save Face of King By Assembly Resolution.

Republicans Demand That Dynasty Be Abolished And George Be Barred.

ATHENS, Jan. 12—The political fight in Greece was intensified tonight by a report that Eleutherois Venizelos, who has just formed a new government will put a resolution before the national assembly of this month granting "official leave of absence" to King George II.

The republicans demanded that the dynasty be abolished and the king be prevented from returning.

Venizelos wishes Greece to remain a democratic kingdom and refuses to accept the republican contention that King George has abdicated the throne.

It is expected the new Greek government will issue a declaration of policy at once expressing a desire to carry out the terms of the Lausanne treaty and opposing the idea that the nation be converted from a monarchy into an out and out republic. Venizelos wants the national assembly to say King George has been granted leave of absence for two or three months.

Newspaper reports that the Venizelos regime will issue a decree of amnesty for all participants in the last royalist revolution, except M. Metaxas, leader of the royalist party.

It was reported that a plebiscite will be held in February regarding the future government of the nation.

New Records Set From Coast to Coast In Construction During 1923 And Prospects For Present Year Bright.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—Every known building record was broken during 1923, according to the national monthly building bureau figures made public here today.

Prospects now indicate that 1924 will see the record either equalled or surpassed, the report states.

From coast to coast the rush to build was in progress, figures indicated. No section was materially ahead of others. The average increase over 1922 records was 23 per cent and still many sections of the country are reporting serious building shortages.

New York topped the list with $782,911,559 spent in building, Chicago was second with $329,604,317; and Los Angeles third with $182,133,180. Other cities whose expenditures ran exceptionally high were:

The force chalked it up as a victory for the general, for the district has been the notorious home of poison hooch.

Nebraska Convict Will Go Back To Spend Life in Colorado Pen; Says Wants to Redeem Himself

(United Press.)

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 12.—"I want to finish my life term with the only man who was willing to trust me."

In these words, written Thomas Tynan, warden of Colorado penitentiary in Canon City, "Red" Price, alias Charles Currey, notorious western criminal who as a "trusty" escaped from a road gang near Glenwood Springs, Colo., several years ago, begged to be returned to spend the rest of his life in prison rather than continue betrayal of the man who placed faith in him.

"Red," who is now serving a two year term in the Nebraska state prison at Lincoln for robbery, was at one time considered among the worst of western "bad men." Warden Tynan recently located him in the Nebraska prison and was preparing to serve extradition papers to have him returned to this state.

"You were the only one to trust me," he wrote Tynan. "Now I want to redeem myself by returning to your prison without a fight against extradition. I want to finish my life term with the man who was willing to trust me."

Price has been granted a pardon in Nebraska that he may return to the Colorado prison to spend the remainder of his life.

Released by Board.

Currey's two year sentence in the Nebraska state penitentiary on a charge of breaking and entering has been commuted and the prisoner will be returned to Colorado to resume serving a life sentence. He was sent up from Douglas county. Currey was identified as an escaped lifer from the Colorado institution after he got into the limelight some time ago by claiming that he knew the secret which forced an eastern mayor to commit suicide.

DOANE REMOVAL PROBLEM GIVES WAY TO DRIVE

Campaign Not to Be Complicated With Possible Move From Crete.

Directors of Institution Announce Quarter Million Already Raised.

The campaign to raise an endowment fund of a half million dollars which has been carried on by Doane college at Crete for some time, will be pushed to a vigorous conclusion, under a decision reached Saturday night by the board of trustees of the college, meeting in the office of the board of directors of the Lincoln Y. M. C. A. The decision of the trustees was announced in a statement issued for the board by W. A. Selleck, Lincoln, president, and Dr. A. R. Fairchild, Crete, secretary.

More than half of the $500,000, which the campaign for funds contemplates raising, has been subscribed, the statement says, and the only thing the trustees can see to do now is to continue the drive to its conclusion. The trustees had been in session two days before reaching a decision.

Statement of Trustees.

The statement issued by the trustees through their president and secretary, follows:

"The trustees of Doane college have held meetings on two days at their mid-winter session, January 9 and 12, and consideration was given to the removal of the Doane college from Crete. A decision was reached that the energies of the friends of the school should be concentrated on the completion of the present campaign to raise $500,000, and toward which $265,000 has already been pledged, and not to be complicated with proposals for removal during the campaign.

"The trustees also appointed a special committee to consider the report of Secretary Kelly of the American Association of Colleges, with special reference to suggestions made in the report on the future development of denominational colleges of the state.

A special committee of seven men appointed by the board of trustees to push the endowment fund campaign to completion is made up as follows: E. J. Hainer, Lincoln; C. C. Smith, Exeter; M. D. Osterhout, Crete; Mrs. Addison E. Sheldon, Lincoln; A. R. Kinney, Omaha; Rev. W. A. Taylor, Lincoln; and C. C. Sheldon, Columbus.

WILL NOT FIGHT FOR BIG ESTATE

Will Doubtful Under Law and Son of Suicide Not to Push Claim.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 21.—John Volyz, son of Theodore Volz, Omaha tailor, who shot himself through the head in Hanscom park more than a month ago, will not endeavor to maintain the validity of a will scribbed in lead pencil on a piece of scratch paper, leaving him the Volz tailoring shop, which was found in the dead man's pocket.

Under the Nebraska statutes, the validity of the will is doubtful.

In county court Saturday morning John Volz said he is satisfied to have his father's estate, amounting to about $75,000, divided as though there were no will. He will continue to operate the tailoring shop at all events, he says, whether it is given to him or his mother, Mrs. Emma Volz.

Mrs. Emma Volz was named administrator of the estate.

Social Welfare Society Helps 878 Applicants

Eight hundred and seventy-eight needy people were aided during December by the Social Welfare society accordinfg to the monthly report of that organization.

This number is almost a record, and if the work continues to increase this month at the present rate, a record for all time will probably be made, according to C. E. Prevey, general secretary. Cold, unemployment, and better organization among the city's charitable societies are the causes which Mr. Prevey gives for the volume of work.

Two hundred and forty-seven cases were dealt with, of which 182 were resident cases, and 65 non-resident. Aid given included lodging, meals, groceries, coal and work.

CONFIRM CHANGES IN RECEIVERSHIPS

Knudson Says Lee Herdman to Succeed Thomas As States Special Agent.

I. J. Dunn Counsel For Banking Bureau in American State Bank Case.

State Trade and Commerce Secretary Knudson, upon his return Saturday from Omaha, confirmed the news previously wired from there that Lee Herdman is to succeed Amos Thomas as special agent for the state handling the affairs of the insolvent Lion Bonding company, and that I. J. Dunn will displace three other firms of Omaha lawyers as counsel for the banking bureau and the guaranty fund commission in the receivership case of the American State bank there.

Everything was agreed upon amicably at the close, Mr. Knudson said. Mr. Thomas will continue in his work for a couple of weeks longer, in order to get things in shape to turn over to his successor. Thomas will draw his full $500 salary for the month of January, instead of making the transfer an the 15th, as Knudson first directed. Herdman is to be paid the same salary, $500 a month, when he takes charge. He will probably be put on the payroll before Thomas goes off, as both men will have to go over things together in making up an inventory of the assets.

The force of seven persons which has been employed in the Lion Bonding company receivership will be reduced to four or five.

Assets of the company, which was doing business in nearly a score of states when it failed in 1921, are estimated at $2,000,000 or more; but creditors' claims and the expenses of realizing upon the assets will probably absorb the whole amount, leaving nothing for the stockholders. It is considered doubtful whether the creditors will get all that is coming to them.

The legal firms in Omaha that have been superseded in the American State bank receivership are: Brogan, Ellick and Raymond; Brome and Ramsey, and Jackson B. Chase. They have been paid a ttoal of $27,600, of which the first named firm got $17,000, the second $4,800, and the third $6,200. The lawyers have agreed to cary through to its final stage the litigation in six suits now pending without additional charge for their services.

In two years and eight months that Attorney Thomas has been administering the property of the Lion Bonding company, he has drawn approximately $27,000. Secretary Knudson said.

Mr. Knudson expressed his appreciation of the courtesy shown him by Judge Fitzgerald, presiding in district court, and by the opposing parties in reaching a settlement as to their claims for compensation.

No fixed salary is to be paid Attorney Dunn, but the state guaranty fund commission will allow him compensation in proportion to the services he is called upon to perform from time to time.

Q. What is meant by mortician?
A. The word mortician is a trade expression used by undertakers who are members of a certain organization. The word is in a class with the expression "realtor," which may be used only by such men as are members of a certain real estate organization. The word mortician is a derivative of the Latin word death.—Nebraska State Journal.

Castle, Roper & Matthews, with one in Omaha and one in Alliance, are the only undertakers in Nebraska entitled to use the word Mortician.

OUTLINES BABY HEALTH PROGRAM

Mrs. C. H. England Offers Suggestions For Carrying On Child Hygiene Work.

For the guidance and information of Women's clubs and other organizations in Nebraska who are co-operating in child hygiene work, Mrs. C. H. England, state director of those activities, is sending out a suggested outline and program for baby health conferences. She recommends that attention be given the following matters:

Publicity through newspapers, schools, lodges, churches movie houses, and in other ways.

Raising enough money to provide soap, towels, blankets, clean white cloth, scales, tape measure and other needed paraphernalia.

Making up list of children before the conference is held.

Care should be taken in securing suitable rooms for the conference—a school house courthouse, clubroom or church is usually convenient—or otherwise one large room curtained off may be used. Heat toilet facilities drinking water and sanitary cups should be provided.

Arrangements for bringing in mothers and children who live at a distance and could not otherwise come.

Selection of a local service committee whose members will actively look after the different details.

Getting local physicians interested so that they will cooperate and give their services in examining the children. The state child hygiene division will send a nurse to assist.

Avoidance of anything in the nature of a contest is strongly urged, as the object is to discover and remedy physical defects in children, and not to grade them in a competitive way.

CAN FILE FOR DELEGATE AND OTHER OFFICE

No Objection to Name Appearing Twice On Ballot This Way.

Secretary of State Pool Says Former Merely Party Honor With No Pay.

Secretary of State Pool will accept double filings, if any should be presented, by candidates for elective offices in Nebraska who may also desire to be sent as delegates to the national conventions of their respective parties. That is to say, a candidate may file for a state office, for congress, for United States senator, or for the legislature, and at the same time he may run for national delegate.

Should anyone do this, his name will be certified by Secretary Pool to be printed twice on the official primary ballot. There is a general provision in the state law which forbids a candidate's name going on the ballot more than once. As the secretary of state construes this statute, it applies to public offices and not to purely honorary positions like delegate or national committeeman, which have neither salaries, emoluments nor official powers attached to them.

The point was raised by H. S. Payne, an Omaha republican, who wrote to Pool asking whether it would be permissible for one who was a candidate for office to run also for national delegate. Payne did not say whether he wanted to find out for himself or for somebody else.

Hasn't Ruled As to President.

It doesn't necessarily follow that a candidate for office such as governor or United States senator could also have his name filed and placed upon the primary ballot to be voted for as the presidential preference of his party in Nebraska. Secretary Pool says his ruling does not cover any such contingency as that. He has not undertaken to decide that question and will wait until he is asked about it before doing so.

Should Governor Bryan wish to get Nebraska's endorsement for president by submitting his name in the primary for that office, and simultaneously run for United States senator or governor, it would be up to the secretary of state to say whether or not his name could go twice upon the ballot.

While the presidency is a public office whose incumbent draws $100,000 a year salary and traveling expenses and possesses more power than any other ruler in the world, it might be argued that the primary vote is nothing mor ethan an expression of choice among party candidates, that the man favored by Nebraska voters may not even be nominated in the national convention; and that even though nominated he might be defeated at the general election; hence, voters would not be voting directly to fill the office, but merely for the honorary position of "nominee for president," which is not a public office at all.

Not Likely to Be Many.

Notwithstanding that Secretary Pool's interpretation allows those who are so inclined to run for an office and also for national delegate, it is not expected there will be many to take advantage of the opportunity. Political sentiment in Nebraska, as a general thing, is opposed to anybody "hogging" the best places.

If a candidate for state office were to ask election simultaneously as delegate to the national convention, other delegate aspirants and their friends would naturally feel resentful, and they might retaliate by fighting him for nomination to the office he was seeking. This consideration alone is enough to restrain most candidates from attempting the doubleheader game.

A year ago, when there were congressional vacancies to fill in the First and Sixth districts, some of the candidates started out with a whoop and filed for both the vacancy and the regular term. But John Morehead, who is a shrewd politician, figured it out that he would lose votes by doing so, and he announced that he would not allow his name to be filed for the short term. Then the others got to thinking it over, and soon they were tumbling over themselves to withdraw one of their filings. The result was that in each district one man was chosen to fill out the unexpired term, and another for the regular two-year term.

RELIEF SOCIETY NEEDS SUPPLIES

Plan to Send Carload of Food And Clothing to German Needy.

Will Buy Articles In Lincoln And Have Packing Done Here Free.

An urgent call for supplies has been received from Rev. Richard Kuhne, by the officials of the Volga Relief society in Lincoln. Rev. Kuehne is the agent of the society in Germany, having gone there shortly before Christmas to take personal charge of supplies sent from Lincoln, for distribution during the Christmas season. The new call for help says that the Germans are in dire need of food supplies, according to J. H. Amen second and F street, one of the officers of the society.

Mr. Amen said Saturday that in response to the call from Rev. Kuehne, a carload of supplies, mostly clothing, which is now being gathered together, will be ready to ship in about ten days or two weeks. It is the hope of the committee to be able to collect enough cash, which has not been asked for heretofore, to include in the car a good supply of food. He said flour could be purchased for export at $4.50 the hundred pounds; rice at $6.50 and beans at the same figure.

"If we can get the cash," Mr. Amen said, "we will buy the supplies in Lincoln, and ship them from here rather than attempt to send the money to Germany and buy flour, beans and rice there. These articles can be bought much cheaper here, and then, too, if we buy them we will know that the hungry are getting the food and not the dealers the money and the people but a taste."

Mr. Amen said that the work of hauling, packing and storing the supplies until time for shipment, is being carried on by the people living in the west part of the city, the same as heretofore.

Contributions can be taken to 125 South Eleventh street or, if a telephone call is made to B1079 they will be called for and taken to the relief society headquarters.

Rose Files to Succeed Himself

JUDGE WILLIAM B. ROSE.

Judge Rose, though still one of the younger generation of Nebraska jurists, has had extensive judicial and legal experience. He was one of those appointed to the supreme bench in 1908 by Governor George L. Sheldon, after the people had voted to increase the number of judges from three to seven. Since then he has been re-elected twice by the voters of the entire state.

Under the new constitution, supreme judges are elected from the different congressional districts. Judge Rose, whose home is Lincoln, has filed for renomination on the nonpolitical ballot, for the First district. So far, no one has filed against him.

Before he became a member of the supreme court, Mr. Rose was assistant attorney general of Nebraska.

The Sanford Case on Rehearing

Last Sunday you were given the essential facts of the Sanford inheritance tax case as they appear in the Northwestern Reporter series, 133 N. W., 870; and 137 N. W., 864; but not the decision of our Supreme Court—that being reserved for today.

Upon the first hearing (133 N. W. 870) Chief Justice Reese was disqualified and did not sit. The majority opinion was by Judge Barnes, and Judges Fawcett and Sedgwick dissented.

The questions of law decided at this hearing may be briefly stated as follows:

1. The Legislature has power to provide for taxation upon inheritance. (Following State v. Vinsonhaler, 105 N. W. 472, previously reviewed in our advertisements).

2. A widow, taking real estate devised to her by her husband's Will, in lieu of dower, is not in a position to claim exemption from the inheritance tax. (This was modified at the rehearing—in fact, completely reversed—137 N. W., 864).

3. Under our laws personal property of a decedent is primarily liable for payment of claims against his estate; "and those to whom he has devised his real estate cannot avoid paying an inheritance tax thereon by agreeing to satisfy a claim of one of them against the estate out of such real estate." (Judge Fawcett dissented from this at both hearings.)

4. Real estate devised by Will passes at once to the devisee upon the death of the testator (maker of the Will) and its status under the inheritance tax law is fixed at that time. An agreement between devisees to settle the debt of one of them by conveying part of the real estate, will not exempt it from liability for an inheritance tax.

5. No interest will be collected on inheritance taxes if ascertained and paid within six months after death of testator; but interest will be calculated from time of death if not paid within the six months.

Upon rehearing, Chief Justice Reese again did not sit. The majority opinion was by Judge Barnes. This time Fawcett and Hamer dissented from the holding in Paragraph No. 3 above; and Judges Letton and Rose dissented from the new statement regarding the taxation of devises in lieu of dower, and adhered to the former opinion. The change in Paragraph No. 2 above was as follows:

> The dower interest of the widow in the estate of her deceased husband, whether taken under his Will or by operation of law, is not subject to an inheritance tax.

Judge Letton in his dissenting opinion characterized this as "judicial legislation of the baldest sort," because, as he pointed out our statute says: "All property . . . which shall pass by Will . . . shall be subject to the tax" and there is no provision for offsetting the value of dower against the value of a legacy or devise. But the majority opinion is our law, nevertheless.

LONGWORTH NOW AGREES TAX BILL NEEDS ALTERING

Republican Leaders Publicly Admit For First Time Mellon Plan Cannot Pass.

Both Parties Ready to Insist Upon Material Advance In Surtax Rates.

(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. —Republican leaders in congress publicly admitted tonight for the first time that the Mellon tax reduction bill could not be passed as written, and that the rates of reduction, particularly on surtaxes, which Mellon prescribed would have to be altered materially.

Coming on the heels of the white house announcement of last week that President Coolidge is uncompromisingly opposed to any extensive tinkering with the rates proposed by the secretary of the treasury, this admission of republican leaders tonight was disconcerting to friends of the Mellon program.

It appeared tonight, from statements by both republican and democratic leaders, that the surtaxes proposed by Mellon will have to be advanced materially beyond the 25 per cent maximum before either the senate or house will agree.

Terms Bill "Suggestion."

"We are considering the Mellon bill as a suggestion to the ways and means committee," said Representative Nick Longworth, republican leader of the house.

"Congress will let no one write for it tax or tariff legislation. Congress is jealous of this prerogative and the administrative branch of the government cannot expect to submit arbitrary programs.

"Last year the house voted a maximum surtax of 32 per cent and this rate was increased by the senate to 50 per cent. I do not think this house would vote a lower maximum surtax. I would like to see the surtax maximum placed at that particular point where capital will not seek tax-free investment. I do not know that point. I do not believe any one does.

"All tax and tariff legislation is by compromise, and as far as I'm concerned, I do not understand that President Coolidge has stated he would accept no change in the Mellon tax reduction suggestions."

Compromise Necessary.

Representative Green, republican of Ohio, chairman of the ways and means committee, agreed with Longworth that a compromise would have to be worked out.

"But I am more concerned with bringing out a bill that will meet with the approval of the republicans in congress and the people generally than in getting one that will meet the approval of the democrat members of the house," said Green. "The democrats already have made some concessions in their surtax rates and I think it quite likely others will be forthcoming.

"The republican members of the ways and means committee are disposed to receive any overtures that are consistent with their positions."

MANY INDICTED IN ELECTION FRAUDS

True Bills Returned Against Many Prominent St. Louis Politicians.

(International News Service.)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 12—Prominent politicians and former county officials indicted this afternoon by the St. Louis county grand jury on charges of election frauds in connection with the August, 1922, primaries, were making arrangements tonight to give bonds. The sheriff expected to complete serving the capiases tomorrow and Monday.

The broadside indictment charging seventy-four persons, including forty-seven judges and clerks of election with wholesale election frauds, was the most smashing blow at alleged vote frauds in the history of St. Louis county. It was the result of months of investigation.

The indictment was drawn in a series of conferences in which the participants were Prosecuting Attorney Adam Henry Jones, Special Assistant Attorney General Allen May, and Randolph Laughlin, St. Louis attorney, who acted as special assistant to Attorney General Jesse Barrett in the probe which followed the primaries.

Counting Questioned.

The investigation charged that the August, 1922, primaries were marked by frauds unprecedented in St. Louis county, that when neighborhood election officials went to the polls in the morning they found many strangers, who were to act with them as officials, that scores of men had been imported from the city to act as counters of the ballots and that many of the men had police records and many others were associated with county gambling and liquor rings.

In some cases, citizens compelled these officials to leave the polling places, but in most precincts in which the non-residents were acting they remained to count the ballots, the grand jury was told.

Twenty-one of the forty-two counts of the indictment charge the defendants with abstracting ballots from the boxes. The remaining counts charge stuffing of the ballot boxes with fraudulent votes.

Foreign "Count" Plays Role of Sheik in Movies and Real Life

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—"I am being censured for doing what many another American woman has done—married the man she loved."

Bang! A taxicab door slammed in the face of reporters and Mary Millicent Rogers, Countess Salm, collapsed upon the seat, while Count Ludvig Salm von Hoogstraeten put an arm around her. The driver pulled away from the Ritz hotel, bound for a ferry to make connections for Tuxedo park.

Golf clubs had been put into the taxicab.

Says Not Count.

"I would like to point out that I am not Count Hoogstraeten," the count said. "I have been known for thirty-eight years as Count Salm. I was an intimate friend of the late Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary. Whatever imaginative reporters may write about me matters nothing to me. I am sure of my position in society."

Today came Mme. Gianetta Traina, widow of a Berlin newspaper owner and friend of the count's family, and gave this tabloid history of how it happened.

The count was engaged to Mrs. Grace Sand Montgomery Coffin. He got a license to wed Miss Rogers. He invited Mrs. Coffin to lunch and broke the engagement. He married Miss Rogers that same afternoon.

Million to Marry.

Mrs. Coffin is going abroad next week and all inquiries about her side of the case today were referred to a family lawyer who had nothing to say.

Came also Miss Betty Sherwood, a milliner, who played with the count up and down Broadway, and declared he told her he would marry her if she had a million dollars. He confessed, he said, that he came to America with $5,000 which he spent quickly and that he was hard pressed for cash.

Played Sheik Role.

And finally came Baroness von Welche, known on the screen abroad as Fern Angra, opposite whom Count Salm played the role of a sheik. She avers that on the screen he was like Valentino—only more so—while off stage he was Europe's most famous lover, having been engaged to numerous girls at various times.

Count Salm said Miss Sherwood was "jealous" and dismissed her statements at that. To the others he had made no retort at the time he left New York with his bride.

'BLIND TIGER' AT HERRIN IS BURNED

First Possible Manifestation Of Violence Since Troops Arrived.

Militiamen To Remain In Williamson County Indefinitely.

(United Press.)

MARION, Ill., Jan. 12. — Fire, thought to be of incendiary origin, destroyed an alleged "blind tiger" near here late today.

It was the first possible manifestation of violence in connection with Williamson county's "booze war" since state troops arrived to maintain order after Sheriff George Galligan announced the situation "had reached the riot stage and was beyond his control."

The place burned was unoccupied following arrest some time ago by federal deputized klansmen, of Mike Mische, charged with selling liquor on the destroyed premises. Toni Noroni, owner of the place has been frequently convicted on dry law violation charges.

A conference between Sheriff Galligan, Mayor C. E. Anderson and Col. A. L. Culbertson, failed to reach any agreement as to removal of troops from the city.

Galligan anounced late yesterday that the troops would be kept in Marion and Herrin indefinitely after 200 Herrin citizens said to be members of the Ku Klux Klan, refused to surrender firearms carried under Justice of Peace permits as requested by Sam Stearns, exalted cyclops of Williamson county.

"LINCOLN" OF MEXICO DEAD

Report Received Confirming Rebels' Assassination Of Governor Carrillo.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Jan. 12. —Mrs. Alma Reed, former New York and San Francisco writer, received confirmation of the assassination of her fiance, Governor Felipe Carrillo Puerto of Yucatan, Mexico, in a private message tonight from Yucatan state officials.

Governor Carrillo with his three brothers and several members of his staff was killed by rebels.

Mrs. Reed said tonight that the confirmation of her fiance's death came as the result of a special investigation ordered by the Mexican government after the rebels had denied that Carrillo who was known as the "Abraham Lincoln" of Mexico, was dead.

Governor Carrillo was widely known because of his struggle to free the enslaved Maya Indians. He served seven years imprisonment for this cause, according to Mrs. Reed, twenty-eight months of this sentence being for translating the Mexican constitution into the Maya language.

Mrs. Reed was to have been married to Carrillo this month.

SCREEN ACTRESS IS SECRETLY WED

Husband Of Ruth Renick Arraigned For Impersonating Government Officer.

Inquiry Launched Into Alleged Military Career Of "Major" Belford.

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 12.—The secret marriage of Ruth Renick, well known screen star, to Major Wellington Belford, was revealed today after Belford had been arraigned before Commissioner Hardie on a charge of impersonating a government official.

Belford gave up his automobile to cover $500 bail and was released.

Belford was said by the police to have claimed a long military record, including the award of the congressional medal of honor. He also claimed to have been Mary Pickford's personal physician, but later the authorities said he admitted that he had never been in the army.

Inquiry into the major's military career was precipitated by C. J. Waldon, secretary of the Royal Packing company, a well-known clubman and brother of Miss Renick.

Waldons "Answer" Wire.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldon rushed here when they received a wire from the film luminary that she and Belford had been "happily married" at the Oakland hotel. They have been registered at the hotel, police said, as Major and Mrs. Belford for the past eleven days.

When Mrs. Waldon reached here, she found Miss Renick near San Jose, Cal.

"I am married to Major Belford who is in the army and who is now a physician. Until I hear from his own lips that he is not as he represented himself to me I am going to stand by him faithfully to the very end," said the actress.

Miss Renick came to Oakland about November 5 from Los Angeles. She has appeared opposite Douglas Fairbanks and has starred in other productions. She formerly lived in Fort Worth, Tex., and Phoenix, Ariz.

In response to a telegram sent by Waldon, Senator Hiram Johnson of California, wired from Washington that the congressional medal had never been awarded to Belford.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Be Honored

Mrs. Roosevelt and her son will arrive at Yokohama tomorrow and will spend a vacation in Tokio.

The function being arranged for the Roosevelts ranks with a presidential party. The highest officials of the nation will attend the function which will probably take the form of a social dinner.

GLOBE CIRCLERS HOP OFF APRIL 1

Four "World Cruisers" of American Army Will Start From Seattle.

Air Service Entering Project With Keen Desire to Add to Records.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The ambitious plan of the army air service to circumnavigate the globe by airplane will begin April 1, the war department announced tonight.

On that date the four Douglas "world cruisers" under the command of Major Frederick L. Martin, will hop off from Seattle for Attu island in the Aleutian group, the first leg of the trip around the world.

Plans for the around the world flight were discussed today by the air service committee in charge of the flight, the principal subject being the allocation of gasoline, oil and supplies to the various stopping points. In order to minimize chances of failure, it was decided that each of the Douglas planes will have six changes of motors before the world trip is finally concluded.

A thorough investigation of airway and landing facilities in the first division of the flight which will be from Washington, D. C., to Attu island, will be made by Lieutenant Clayton L. Biscell, who will depart here on January 15 for that purpose.

Five Other Divisions.

The other five divisions of the flight will be as follows:

Second division, extending from Attu island to Nagasaki, Japan; the third ending at Calcutta, India; the fourth ending at Constantinople, Turkey; the fifth ending at Hull, England, and the sixth ending at Washington, D. C.

As previous attempts to encircle the globe by air have been unsuccessful, war department officials said tonight the army air service was entering upon the plan with a keen desire to add the accomplishment of a round the world flight to other records held by American aviators.

The flyers who have been designated to make this epochal flight are now in training at Langley field, Va. They are in addition to Major Martin, the commander, Lieutenants Lowell H. Smith, Eric H. Nelson and Leigh Wade, with Lieutenants Leslie Parnold and Lecliare D. Schulz as alternates.

Father of "Spec" O'Donnell Says Document Signed Illegally.

(International News Service.)

FRESNO, Cal., Jan. 12.—John William O'Donnell, bed-ridden father of Walter "Spec" O'Donnell, former newsboy and now youthful movie star, today began a fight to break a contract under which his son is appearing for Warner Brothers. The father filed a petition in the superior court here this afternoon asking that Denver S. Church, Fresno attorney and former congressman, be named guardian of the boy actor.

The father's petition sets forth that "Spec," whose freckles won him fame in the cinema world, has a contract calling for $25 weekly the first year, $75 weekly the second year, and $225 weekly the third year with Warner Brothers and holds that the contract should not have been signed without the father's consent.

FEDERAL FORCES DEFEAT REBELS

Sixty-seven Killed, Many Are Wounded, In Engagement at Puene de Ixtla.

General Victories For Government Are Announced By War Secretary.

(United Press.)

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12.—Federal forces defeated rebel troops in a lively skirmish at Peune De Ixtla, south of Cuernavaca today, killing sixty-seven of the enemy, wounding many more and taking twenty-two prisoners, according to the war office announcement.

According to the secretary of war, the rebel forces in this fight were troops of General Figuero.

Reports that Oaxaco had been captured by the rebels were erroneous up to this time, but the Oaxaco Indians, organized by General Isaac Ibarra, are battling with the rebels near the city.

According to reports received by the war office, the rebels are again preparing to evacuate Tuxpam in the oil district of Vera Cruz as the federals advance.

Obregon at Front.

In the west, where General Obregon is personally conducting the campaign against De La Huerta, forces are being used successfully. Rebel General Cavazos, driven from Pachuca, has taken to the hills and is attempting to cross the country and join the Vera Cruz rebels, according to reports here.

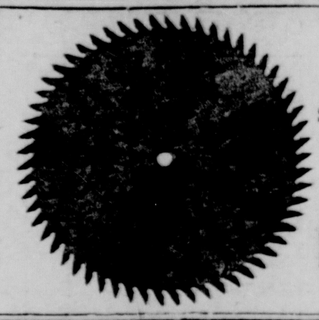

Tehuacan, in the state of Puebla, has been evacuated by rebels and occupied by federals, under General Martinez, according to El Mundo.

The same newspaper says the city of Oaxaco has been taken by Obregon's men.

Rickenbacker

A • CAR • WORTHY • OF • ITS • NAME

Remember—

Rickenbacker Told You So!

Just so you will fix the fact in your own mind for future reference and guidance;

—so you will, in the future, value Rickenbacker's advice at its true worth, and heed our timely warnings;

—so you will, in short, come to realize that Rickenbacker engineering is as sound as it is progressive;

—and finally, so you will know that in selecting a Rickenbacker you are always getting a car that is at least a year in advance of the rank and file of cars in engineering improvements, in body styles, finish and appointments;

—to the end that your annual depreciation will be the minimum, and resale value of your car the maximum;

We are constrained to remind you that just six months ago, (July 1st, to be exact), Rickenbacker proclaimed to the world that, within a year, 4-Wheel Brakes would be universal.

Several makers openly took issue with us.

Not only was every effort made to discredit our assertion and discount the superiority of 4-Wheel Brakes, but to prove that Rickenbacker was wrong both in pioneering this great improvement, and in taking such a definite stand on the subject.

We were certain, however, that future events would prove the accuracy of our assertion.

We knew we were right—and feared not to go ahead.

Only six months later—January 5th to 12th—the New York Automobile Show was a sensational vindication of the Rickenbacker policy.

In almost every exhibit in that great show was an endorsement of Rickenbacker judgment—frank recognition of Rickenbacker leadership.

The evidence was so conclusive as to leave no room for doubt—4-Wheel Brakes have conquered apathetic prejudice and active opposition.

Not only have they proven necessary, but actually indispensable for safe driving in present-day traffic conditions.

Informed buyers now insist—and will continue more than ever to insist—that all four wheels be equipped with first-class brakes.

Eventually this insistence will be for fully enclosed, internal expanding brakes, too.

33—over 50%—makers exhibited cars in which 4-Wheel Brakes were an outstanding feature.

This was in response to insistent demands of buyers as expressed through salesmen and dealers.

The buyer, having once experienced the greater safety and efficiency of this fundamental improvement, said "I want that!"

And when an American buyer demands, the maker has no option—he must comply.

Today, the buyer is repeating those words so often and so emphatically, every maker must accede—or pay the penalty.

"Has this car 4-Wheel Brakes?"

That was the first question you heard when you stopped at any exhibit in the Auto Show.

And the next question generally was, "Are they internal expanding brakes mechanically operated?"

But, several other innovations and improvements that were emphasized by several makers as new in this show—but which you saw in the first Rickenbacker Six—also indicated the impress of this product on the entire industry.

12 Cars now boast "vibrationless motors." And it is interesting to note the several expedients applied in efforts to emulate the results of Rickenbacker's "Tandem Fly Wheel."

9 Cars emphasized "deeper frames"—though none as yet, approaches the eight (8") inch dimensions of the Rickenbacker "Double Depth" frame.

6 Cars showed springs set nearer the ends of the rear axle—nearer the point of contact between tire and road. This is one of the features of Rickenbacker "Cradle" spring suspension.

There are several other points, however, that are still to be found only in this car.

6 Cars have "Air Cleaners" of one kind or another—in emulation of Rickenbacker's provision for "protecting the lungs of the motor."

Fully 75% of all makers now feature steel disc wheels—first announced as standard on the first Rickenbacker Six.

5 Cars feature ball bearings in steering spindles—all of these are much higher priced cars than Rickenbacker, by the way.

5 Cars show the commutator located above motor, away from dirt, water and oil. This also you first saw in the Rickenbacker Six.

And yet—while "imitation is the sincerest form of flattery," and we heartily acknowledge the implied compliment—

We cannot but derive still more satisfaction from the fact that, while each of several have emulated Rickenbacker in one or two features, none so far, has combined all those superiorities in one product as you find them in the Rickenbacker Six.

Of course, everyone looked to this exhibit to sound the keynote for the new year.

Nor was any disappointed.

Rickenbacker ran true to form by setting a new standard of values with several refinements and the unprecedented equipment at the new price.

When you had visited this exhibit, the term "fully equipped" had acquired a new meaning.

For Rickenbacker showed, for the first time in the world's history, standard models at standard prices, so completely equipped as to leave the new owner "Nothing Else to Buy."

Rickenbacker models this year are equipped with all those safety devices and conveniences which the seasoned motorist considers essential, and for which, heretofore, you have paid extra.

Not only the customary speedometer, ammeter, voltmeter, pilot light, oil gauge and switch-lock on the instrument board;—

But also transmission lock, Folberth wind-shield cleaner, combination vanity and smoking case, motor meter, motor meter wings, motor meter lock, shock absorbers and bumpers, both front and rear.

The open models—Sport Phaeton and Sport Roadster—also have beveled plate-glass wind wings.

All models are equipped with drum tire-covers with lettered warning "4-Wheel Brakes," which is for the benefit of the man behind, and which never fails to give the Rickenbacker man right of way. This is Rickenbacker's interpretation of the term "fully equipped" as exemplified in these latest models.

Here is established not only a new standard of values, but a new code of business ethics.

For the first time, you saw an automobile in which the customer's needs and desires were considered paramount.

This is another Rickenbacker departure from former rules that will revolutionize sales practice.

"Nothing Else to Buy" is today the exclusive slogan of the Rickenbacker salesman—even as "4-Wheel Brakes" was his clarion cry six months ago.

Buyers will no longer accept as "fully equipped" a car that lacks any essential for ideal driving under any conditions of weather or traffic congestion.

Having seen the new Rickenbacker models; having yourself experienced the wonderful performance of the 4-Wheel Brakes, the luxury of a vibrationless motor, and the thrill of handling this car;—

Having seen what constitutes "complete equipment" according to the new Rickenbacker standard;—

And when you consider that all this is included in the new "delivered" price, you will be at a loss to understand how it is possible to produce so much for so little money.

We hope you will see all the others before you see the Rickenbacker—for only by direct comparison can you appreciate the amazing difference in quality, performance and value.

For, none other shows the same startling ac-celeration coupled with equally surprising de-celeration.

None other possesses "vim, vigor and vitality" to compare with this world-famous Rickenbacker Six.

None other can perform so sensationally and yet prove as sturdy and durable in everyday hard service.

In those qualities that lend a thrill as well as luxury to motoring, this Rickenbacker Six is still supreme.

In advanced engineering, Rickenbacker is the outstanding leader. In style, the fashion plate. In Pride of Ownership—unique.

WILL ESTABLISH UNIVERSITY FOR FREED CONVICTS

T. Marcollus Marshall, Kentucky Millionaire, Has Novel Plan.

Became Interested In Prison Reform While In Omaha Years Ago.

(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—America's strangest educational institution, a university exclusively for men and wome nwho have served terms in prison, will be headed by T. Marcollus Marshall, 53, a West Virginia millionaire, and first life director of the National Education association, Dr. E. E. Dudding president of the Prisoners' Relief society, announced tonight.

Colonel Marshall, a hale and heart mountaineer, with a long flowing beard, interested in coal and railroad properties, temporarily laid aside his campaign for election as state superintendent of public instruction in West Virginia to direct the preliminary organization of the new school, to be known as the Letha Watts memorial university.

Interested in Prison Work.

Marshall will draw a salary of $100 as president of the school. Forty years ago Marshall became interested in prison reform work at Omaha, Neb. Later he was an instructor in the government Indian schools of New Mexico. Then he made a trip around the world, visiting Africa, the mountains of Thibet, Europe, South America, and the Orient.

"Most men and women leave prison with the idea that society is against them, that they have no chance in life and the only course left open is their former criminal vocations," Colonel Marshall said in an interview.

"Five hundred of them leave prisons and reformatories annually. Our problem is to rehabilitate these unfortunates—most of them never had an education, know no gainful occupation. Give them a practical training and the elements of a liberal education and the vast majority will become good citizens. That is the policy upon which the school will operate."

Educate Young Convicts.

Marshall said that thousands released from penal institutions every year are young men and women from reform schools. Letters to the prisoners' relief society indicate these boys and girls are practically barred from continuing their education. A special department will be organized for them in the convict university.

The United States government officially paroles thousands of its convicts to the prisoners' relief society, it was stated. These will be given training in the new school before they are placed in occupations, according to the plan.

WORK TO AVERT BRITISH STRIKE

Locomotive Engineers Scheduled to Walk Out Next Saturday.

Labor Chiefs Fearful Threat Of Strike Will Hurt Party's Chances.

(International News Service.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Leaders of the labor party were making every effort tonight to avert the threatened strike of locomotive engineers said to have been called secretly for next Saturday.

Chiefs of the labor party are fearful the news of the threatened strike will hurt the chances of the laborites in coming into power in succession to the tory government of Premier Stanley Baldwin.

Ramsay Macdonald and Sidney Webb, most prominent leaders of the labor party, refused to comment upon what steps are being taken to avert the threatened strike.

J. H. Thomas, head of the national railway union which is opposing the strike of the engineers said his followers would not join even if the engineers attempted to call a general strike.

Labor's Future In Doubt.

There is general belief that any future labor government would have a most difficult time should the labor party come into power and the strike begin a the same time.

The trade unionists believe the government would bring pressure upon the railways to compel them to meet the demands of the men for shorter hours and higher wages, while leaders of the labor party fear that accession to such demands would alienate the support of the public.

There is another danger facing the possible labor government. Many organizations of miners are threatening to terminate their agreements with their employers which would re-open the whole coal mining dispute with the government. Miners in Northumberland, Durham and Leicestershire already have voted to terminate their contracts.

WATSON IS TO BACK COOLIDGE

(International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Adhering to straight party lnies and advocating the nomination of President Coolidge, Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, today addressed 1,900 of the women's national republican club representing forty-two states.

"In President Coolidge we have a man whose views are sane and whose courage is great," Senator Watson said.

President Coolidge in a message of greeting to the women said:

"You will perhaps be interested in my observations at this time. I want you to know of my interest and best wishes."

Senator Watson announced his support of the Mellon tax plan after a stirring plea for stricter immigration.

Two Men Dead Following Blast

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 12. Clarence Nunley and S. P. Johnson, died in a hospital here tonight following injuries received today when a gasoline tank exploded in the shop of the Kanawha and Hocking Coal and Coke Company's plant at Carbondale near here.

Three other workers were severely burned.

ALLEN IS DEAD IN CALIFORNIA

judge of the district court, serving until December 13, 1899, when he resigned to accept appointment to the United States senate, to succeed M. L. Hayward, who had died. He retired on March 28, 1901, his successor having been elected.

For the past several years he had been serving as judge of the district court and was such at the time of his death.

Senator Allen was one of the early leaders in the populist movement in Nebraska and since the disintegration of that party has affiliated with the democrats.

When fourteen years old he enlisted in an Iowa regiment of infantry, but on account of his age he was rejected. In 1862 he enlisted in the 32nd Iowa infantry and served to the close of the war. He was during the last few months of his service on the staff of Brigadier General James I. Gilbert.

In 1870 he was married to Blanche Mott at Fayette, Iowa.

Broke Congressional Speaking Record.

Senator Allen's most notable exploit during his congressional career was the famous fifteen-hour speech he made in the senate in the special session of 1893, called by President Cleveland to repeal the silver purchase act. Under that law, the secretary of the treasury was required to purchase a specified quantity of silver bullion on the market, as an aid to maintaining the price of that metal.

The free silver 16-to-1 agitation was then raging throughout the western states, and a strong minority in both branches of congress, embracing members of all parties, was fighting to prevent repeal. A filibuster developed in the senate, and the administration forces kept it in session all night with the object of having the bill voted upon before adjournment was taken. Senator Allen took the floor during the early evening, kept it all night, and was still going when the breakfast hour arrived the next morning. He remained on his feet and continued talking for more than fifteen hours, with only a few short intermissions when the point of "no quorum" was raised and roll calls were ordered.

As a feat of physical endurance, as well as continuous oratory, this achievement eclipsed anything congress had ever before seen or heard. But Senator Allen's effort was in vain, as the other opponents of the bill were too worn out by the long fight to keep it up. A vote was taken soon after he finished, and the bill was passed.

Some twenty years later, Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin outdistanced Allen's record, with a speech more than sixteen hours long, while conducting another filibuster in the senate, which likewise failed.

Fought Bank Guaranty Law.

When the Nebraska legislature in 1909 passed the bank guaranty law, Judge Allen became one of the counsel representing a number of banks which brought an injunction suit in the federal court and obtained an order suspending the law's operation. Two years later, the United States supreme court reversed the decision rendered by Circuit Judge Vandeventer of Utah, who is now a member of the supreme court, and District Judge T. C. Munger of Lincoln, sitting jointly in the Lincoln division of the federal court, and the law was then put into effect.

Judge Allen was looked upon at Washington as one of the ablest men Nebraska ever sent to either branch of congress. He was more conservative in his ideas and tendencies than most of the other populist senators and representatives, though he did not hesitate to defend the tenets of his party, including free silver, greenback currency, postal savings banks, and the government ownership of railroads when they were attacked.

Upon the conclusion of his elective term in the senate, he made a farewell speech in which he expressed the belief that any state of the union could match the senate's personnel in ability and statesmanship, from among its own citizens.

Nomination papers in Judge Allen's behalf for another term on the bench in the Ninth district were filed with Secretary of State Pool only last Friday.

CHINESE TROOPS FIRE ON MISSION

PEKIN, Jan. 12.—An American flag, bullet riddled, still flies over the little mission house of the Passionate Fathers in Supu.

Order has been restored in the Honan town where regular troops of the Chinese army, spurred to religious fanaticism by an incautious commander descended upon the mission, fired on the flag and nearly killed two Americans.

The American legation tonight was investigating the reported pillaging and has lodged formal protest with the government.

The governor of Honan has promised thorough investigation and punishment of the guilty troops, which belonged to the first division. The soldiers plundered the town, stormed the mission and fired upon Fathers Flavian Mullins of Athens, Penn., and Arthur Benson. The latter miraculously escaped injury, but their clothing was riddled with bullets.

General Ho Yao Bun is said to have instructed his men:

"Destroy the mission and kill the foreign devils."

FACTIONS CONFER WITH PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The acrimonious controversy which has been waging in the tariff commission over the question of whether certain members shall be permitted to participate in rate fixing percentages affecting industries with which they are alleged to be identified flared up again tonight.

OUTLOOK GOOD IN EVERY LINE

Business Men Elated Over Promising Way In Which New Year Opens.

Improvement Already Noticeable After Let Down During Holidays.

(International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. — Business men of all branches of activity are elated over the promising way in which the new year has opened. All branches of industry and commerce report an improved outlook. There was a let down over the holiday but improvement is already visible. There was a slight decline in cotton prices during the week, but traders believe it will soon be made up and surpassed.

There was a slight falling off in bank clearings throughout the country but it was pointed out that they were about $900,000 above this week of last year. Money was fairly plentiful. Commercial failures increased.

All issues of United States Liberty bonds increased in price this week. The first 4 1-4s (registered) increased 27 cents. The new bonds issued this week totalled nearly $76,500,000.

Business failures throughout the entire United States this week were estimated by Bradstreet's at 564 compared with 414 last week. Most of them were in southern states.

Bank clearings of the United States this week were estimated at $8,203,080,371 compared with $8,669,388,435 last week.

The rate on money for call loans in New York this week ranged from 4 3-4 to 4 per cent. Most time loans were made at 5 per cent.

Industrial Issues Gain.

The average price of twenty representative industrial issues on the New York stock exchange was 97.47, compared with 95.40 last week. Average price of twenty representative railroad issues was 85.40, compared with 83.83 last week.

A recent wave of cold weather is believed to have helped the cotton crop by checking the ravages of the boll weevil. The cotton goods market has been quiet, according to New England textile manufacturers.

The amount of the cotton crop brought into sight this week was estimated 277,071 bales compared with 191,708 bales last week. The week's exports totalled 102,744 bales against 220,608 bales last week. The visible supply of United States cotton was put at 3,239,765 bales, compared with 3,383,433 bales last week.

There were fewer offerings of wheat this week, the visible supply of the United States wheat decreasing 29,000 bushels. The visible supply of corn increased 904,000 bushels.

BASSETT ENDS PEACE EFFORT

Former Chauffeur of Nina Wilcox Putnam Departs From Connecticut Home.

(United Press.)

MADISON, Conn., Jan. 12.—Little Madison settled down to make up for some lost sleep tonight.

Ellsworth Bassett, former business representative of Nina Wilcox Putnam, has departed after numerous ineffectual attempts to effect a reconciliation with Mrs. Bassett, who charged that her husband "went away" with the noted writer after proposing that he be divorced. This charge was emphatically denied by Mrs. Putnam.

Following many attempts to see Mrs. Bassett at her home, at the town basket ball game and elsewhere, Bassett today finally swept down upon his wife in the public library, where she works as librarian.

Prior to this he had written her, fixing noon Saturday as the last hour he would await a conference. There was no reply to the letter.

Then Bassett pushed his broad shoulders through the door of the library, and making his way to her side, asked her to discuss with him the tangle into which their marital affairs have drifted. Mrs. Bassett replied that Bassett would have to see her attorney.

Bassett countered with the retort that there was nothing between them that could not be explained and adjusted without the aid of an attorney. Mrs. Bassett refused to discuss the matter further however, whereupon Bassett abandoned his efforts toward a reconciliation and left town.

Not being able to gain admittance to his own home, Bassett said he was going to New York, where his brother and mother are living.

Arrives In Gotham.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Ellsworth Bassett arrived in New York tonight from Madison, Conn. He was met here by his brother and went direct to the latter's home.

GERMAN KIDDIES ARE MADE HAPPY

BREMERTAVEN, Jan. 12.—"Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not"—the words of Christ's sermon on the mount found an echo today in this dingy port city, when 1,200 underfed children were given a banquet such as they never had known, by officials of the United States lines.

Afterwards the children were all shown through one of the line's vessel's docked here, and were given each a dinner basket for tomorrow and a share of a purse of $1,000 subscribed by the steamer's crew.

"When little ones suffer there can be no distinction of race, creed or nationality," Governor Smith of New York, where the United States lines headquarters are located, cabled to Captain Rind, master of ceremonies. "My heart goes out to the children who are victims of the great war."

President Coolidge cabled: "I hope your fine and charitable project may bring you and your guests a large measure of pleasure and gratification."

Woman of Wisconsin Gives Up Husband to Daughter's Chum

GREEN BAY, Wis., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Dora May-Hugh, lunch room manager here, was worrying tonight mainly over whether her seventeen years of service for the lunch room company which employs her will outweigh the fact that she has given up her husband to the 19-year-old chum of her daughter. She is sure she did the right thing in agreeing to let Lucile Barrett, the girl she mothered, have John P. May-Hugh.

"There can be no happiness where there isn't love," said Mrs. May-Hugh. "When John confessed his love for Lucille, and when Lucille, sitting on my knees, with her arms around my neck, told me of her love for my husband, and both asked me to step aside—well, there just wasn't anything for me to do but get a divorce and let them be happy."

They are calling Mrs. May-Hugh a wife in a million here. She holds her head high and laughs and jokes with her neighbors as if nothing had ever happened.

Debated Long.

"It took me just twenty-four hours to decide," she commented.

She told of taking Lucille into her own home after Lucille's mother died and while Vera, her own daughter, was attending college in Milwaukee.

May-Hugh and his youthful sweetheart will have to wait a year before they can wed legally in Wisconsin.

Lucille declared she tried hard to fight off her love for May-Hugh but found it impossible.

"If I can't have my 'Irish daddy' I won't ever marry as long as I live," she said. "This love of ours is the real thing. I have gone about with boys of my own age, but I never felt towards any of them as I do towards John."

SEEKING BANDITS WHO SHOT THREE

Police Of Chicago Scour Outlying Towns Following Holdup.

Four Robbers Secure Only $400 In Windy City Bank Robbery.

(International News Service.)

CHICAGO, Jan. 12. — Search widened tonight to outlying towns in the quest for six bank bandits who blazed their way to liberty with sawed-off shot guns and Winchester rifles after wounding five, one probably mortally, in seizing $431 this afternoon.

A trail of blood left by the highwaymen vanished at the doorway of the Brighton Park State bank, where the gang leaped into its waiting touring car. Two of the wounded were bandits, shot by Policeman George Devoe who was brought to the scene by the volleys fired by the gang in their getaway.

The other three wounded were: Albert V. Tenzer, cashier of the bank, shot through the lung when he refused to throw up his hands. Physicians tonight feared he would die. Harry Olseski, drug clerk, shot in the side as he was scurrying for cover while the bandits fled from the bank.

Small Boy Victim.

Alphone Roose, 9, shot through the cheek in the same volley which wounded Olseski.

Two of the gunmen with sawed off shotguns remained on guard at the curb beside the waiting automobile while their four companions entered the bank. They started shooting as soon as Tenzer refused to put up his hands.

Bella C. Klepura, a bookkeeper at the bank, turned in a burglar alarm.

The bandits turned and fled, firing as they ran.

Their sole loot was $431 which one of the quartet obtained from Z. Bartkowiak, a teller.

They were near their car when Policeman Devoe appeared, emptying his service revolver at them as he came up on the run. Two of the holdup crew slumped to the sidewalk, but their companions half lifted, half dragged them to the car. It sped away.

As it passed a drug store half a block from the bank, Felix Pekienlewski, proprietor, and Olseski, his clerk, ran for cover. One shot, fired out through the car's curtains felled Olseski.

PREDICTS QUAKES WILL COME SOON

Italian Scientist Has Forecast Every Important Shock Since 1905.

(United Press.)

ROME, Jan. 12.—Light earthquake shocks, originating in America, will occur tomorrow and Monday, followed by more serious shocks in Central America Tuesday and Wednesday and others on the morning of January 20.

Such is the scientific prediction of the Italian seismologist, Raffaele made to the United Press today at his laboratory.

Signor Bendandi expects to startle the world shortly with confirmed announcement of the discovery of laws governing earthquakes, permitting precise prediction as to when they will occur.

Since the Avezzana earthquake of January 13, 1905, which he predicted three months previously, Signor Bendandi forecast every important shock, including the Japanese disaster. He foretold the latter quake eight days previous to its occurrence.

The recent earthquakes in Italy and in Mexico were predicted by the celebrated seismologist in sworn statements made with witnesses before a notary.

Signor Bendanti's final announcement of his discovery of laws governing earthquakes is expected to constitute one of Italy's greatest contribution to the world of science. He said today that while his theory has developed to a point where he is able to predict precisely the date of impending earthquakes, it does not permit him to furnish the exact location. He will keep his discovery secret until the latter end is attained.

GERMANS DEMAND WAR OF REVENGE MINISTER CLAIMS

Asserts Idea of Chastising France Growing By Leaps and Bounds.

(Copyright, 1924 by International News Service.)

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—"The idea of a war of revenge against France is growing in Germany by leaps and bounds; it is even taking hold on persons who were formerly pacifists" said Hans Guertner, Bavarian minister of justice, in an exclusive statement to International News Service.

Herr Guertner added that hatred of France and indignation with the Berlin government for not taking a more aggressive attitude toward the French, were the emotions actuating most of the followers of Herr Hitler and the other Bavarian "coupists."

"In the oppressive atmosphere in which Germany has been living for years anyone who advocated force readily finds a following. The cry for a war of revenge, for a dictator and the support of the national socialist party (fascisti) led by Hitler—all these things are traceable in the last analysis to the unbearable economic conditions imposed by the Versailles treaty and the occupation of the Ruhr and Rhineland by French and Belgian troops. The danger of a new 'putsch' is ever present as long as the economic conditions of our country continue what they are today. What we demand in Bavaria is this:

"First: Restoration of the Rhineland and Ruhr to full German sovereignty.

"Second: Recognition by the rest of the world of the fact that a foreign loan to Germany would be a good business investment."

French Refuse Request.

France has just sent a note to Berlin which is understood to refuse to restore German civil administration in the Ruhr and Rhineland. The allied investigation of German's capacity for reparations payment and the advisability of making foreign loans to Germany will open in Paris Monday.

The correspondent asked Minister Guertner what he thought about the anti-Semitic movement in Bavaria, which appears to be growing stronger. He replied:

"Every culprit that is in misery seeks culprits. Just as the wrath that was in the French people after the French revolution turned against the 'accapareurs' and the 'acquisiteurs,' the Bavarians are now concentrating all the fury upon Jews.

"Of course, this is wrong, and the Bavarian government does not share this view. It is true there are many people in Bavaria who have been profiting from the misery of their fellow countrymen, but it is wrong to say they are all Jews. There are plenty of gentiles among them."

'BILLY' SUNDAY'S SON 'CONVERTED'

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 12.—George M. Sunday, son of "Billy" Sunday, famous evangelist, has "hit the trail' his father popularized.

Young Sunday, a prominent real estate dealer here, admitted today that his fathers teachings and example had influenced him to give up exploiting on the Sabbath the several suburban tracts he controls.

A formal announcement in the weekend realty sections of the newspapers gave the first inkling of Sunday's resolutions. It said simply that "George Sunday, Inc., hereafter will discontinue the selling on Sunday of all subdivision property owned or controlled by them."

No explanation accompanied the statement.

"There is little I need say about the Sabbath observance we have instituted," Sunday said. "We feel simply that our employes should have a chance to spend Sunday as they desire and we have decided to eliminate any activities on that day.

"As far as 'hitting the trail" is concerned, well, I don't know whether you would call it exactly that or not. I took this step because I am naturally inherently inclined toward Sabbath observance. My father's teachings, of course, have left their impression upon me."

Chicago Bootleggers Find Izzy Einstein Is Real Booze Sleuth

(United Press.)

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Chicago bootleggers who admited that Izzy Einstein, wizard federal dry agent, was slick but thought they were slicker, tonight, confessed the superiority of slippery Izzy. They thought they had Izzy checkmated. They put a flock of detectives on Izzy's trail and obtained data on all of Izzy's numerous disguises.

It cost them $200 each but it was worth it, they thought.

An Italian banana peddler tearfully pleaded for "vino" but that was merely Einstein's disguise No. 74. The gentleman in evening clothes who petitioned a check boy in a hotel to fill a hip flask was referred to a warmer climate. Disguise 87 would not work.

Even when a prima donna left Peacock Alley for a short time to "touch" a well known bootlegger, terrible Izzy was spotted beneath the feminine makeup by the scouts.

Then Storm Breaks.

But the storm broke.

Hourly reports of the pride of the government prohibition enforcement department appeared reassuring today as the detectives reported to bootleg headquarters. All of the 126 known disguises were spotted and Izzy's ingenuity apparently had failed to provide new ones.

For Moe Smith, Izzy's partner, had worked while the bootleggers watched Mr. Einstein. Attired in the garb of a bank clerk, Izzy's confederate had gathered the evidence—on tips provided by Izzy.

The evidence uncovered by Moe will be taken to the courts for injunctions close up many of the best known grills here, federal dry headquarters stated.

GOVERNOR M'GRAY OPENS HIS FIGHT TO BE CLEARED

Trial Of Indiana Governor Expected To Be Bitterest In State's History.

Fifteen Indictments Charge Embezzlement, Forgery And Other Offenses.

(United Press.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 12.—Taking advantage of every legal twist and technicality, attorneys for Warren T. McCray, governor of Indiana, today opened their fight to clear him of charges of embezzlement, forgery and other criminal offenses contained in fifteen indictments returned against him by the Marion county grand jury after a probe of the financial manipulations which resulted in his financial crash last night.

The fight promises to be long drawn out and one of the most bitterly contested legal struggles in the history of the state.

Today was the date for arraignment of McCray on the indictments. He did not appear in court. Instead, his personal attorneys flanked by some of the best criminal lawyers in the middle west, went to court and filed motions to quash every indictment against the governor.

The indictments, the motions allege "are uncertain and ambiguous." There is a misjoinder of offenses in the way the indictments are drawn up, McCray's attorneys charge.

Judge Collins set January 24 as the date for hearing oral argument on the motions. If the motions are overruled, McCray will appear in court and enter his plea.

No Doubt of Plea.

There is not the least doubt what that plea will be. McCreay, since the day of his indictment, has steadfastly manifested his innocence and asked the people of the state not to prejudice him.

"I will come clear when I get to tell my side of the story," McCray said.

McCray's attorneys are attempting to undermine the legality of the grand jury which investigated his affairs and returned the indictments.

What line this attack will follow is a matter of conjecture.

Attorneys for the governor have spent days in the county court house delving into every detail of the record of the grand jury, which was in session investigating his case for two months, in order to pick any flaws or irregularities in procedure.

Wants Change of Venue.

After the arraignment, McCray's counsel, it is said, will parry for further delay by asking for a change of venue to another county, or for a change of judge.

If the case is carried to another county, some delay in the trial will be experienced.

Meanwhile, the federal grand jury here is in session, and it is understood that McCray's financial operations will be looked into in an effort to determine whether there was any fraudulent use of the mails in connection with his dealings.

McCray emerged victorious in his first battle to continue in office until his term expires January 1, 1924. One faction of the republican party, headed by Clyde A. Walls, state chairman, demanded the governor's immeditae resignation.

BAKER DENIES HE WAS EVER DEPUTY

treasurer and then a deputy quit. Thereafter Baker began to draw a salary of $150 per month, which is in excess of what the law allows a deputy. He did not take the oath, gave no bond, nor was there any record in writing of his appointment as deputy until January 1, 1923, that being nearly three years after his name began to appear on the stationery and other papers of the office. It was, in fact, after the re-election of Souder.

Considered Self a Clerk.

If the state cannot prove that Baker was in fact a deputy, then the prosecution fails, it was contended. Baker on the stand denied that he was ever appointed a deputy and stated that at all times he considered himself a clerk. He said that his name appeared on letterheads because of Souder's generosity in giving him that title.

The defendant stated that he was in the habit of taking money from the cash drawer and putting in slips, later replacing the money from his salary and then putting the slips from the cash drawer proper into the back part of it. He declared that he paid no attention to the slips after that time.

Bundles of these slips played a conspicuous part in the state's attempt to prove that Baker received money. He claimed that he never was short and explained the fact that there were slips to cover a large amount over and above his salary for a given period by saying that he would often take out all slips, putting in one large one to cover the small ones thrown in the back of the drawer, later putting the large one ther also, when paid. He also put in a slip of the same sort in receipt for his salary. In this way, according to Baker, there could be slips for three times the amount of money he actually received.

Baker told of testifying before the grand jury as soon as he could and of telling all he knew about the fire and office affairs at all times.

The courtroom contained nearly 500 people during the arguments by the attorneys.

CONDITION SAME.

The condition of Dr. E. Arthur Carr, who underwent an operation Friday afternono, was reported early Sunday morning to be unchanged. Dr. Carr's right leg was amputated to spread infection which developed from an injury sustained in an automobile accident. Attending physicians Saturday held out little hope of his recovery.

FALL WILLING TO BE QUIZZED

Former Secretary Will Appear Before Committee If Health Permits.

Senate Wants to Know Where He Got $100,000 to Buy Western Ranch.

(United Press.)

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 12.—"I am ready to appear before the full senate committee any time it wants me and my health permits.

Puffing a pipe and enjoying the ocean breeze which blew gently through the open window of his hotel room here, Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior today made this announcement.

Fall, the center of a tangled skein of testimony growing out of efforts of the senate public lands committee to get the facts concerning the source of $100,000 Fall received to help him buy a ranch in New Mexico in 1921, was located today despite efforts of hotel attaches to keep his whereabouts secret.

"I am not hiding from the committee,' said Fall, manifesting amazement that anyone should think he was.

He pointed out the fact that the United Press had located him proved he was not trying to hide.

The hotel management, however, still denies he is in the building. iHs name does not appear on the register. His suite is under the name of "Howard Pardee." Fall says he does not know who Pardee is.

No Desire to Hide.

It wasn't his desire to hide, but his poor health and the belief that Senator Walsh of Montana, sent down here by the senate public lands committee to find out about the $100,000, had no power to subpoena him, that prompted him to decline to appear before Walsh yesterday for questioning, he said.

"I am keeping in retirement only because of my doctor's orders," he said.

"When I was in Washington recently I conferred with several members of the committee but did not go on the stand because of my health. I have been feeling better since I have been in Palm Beach.

"My only exercise since I have been here was to walk down to Ned McLean's cottage and back once or twice a day.

"I object," Fall went on, "to appearing before Senator Walsh or any one else who is not authorized to subpoena me."

What Walsh wanted to ask about was a discrepancy between McLean's story of the $100,000 and Fall's. Fall said McLean loaned it to him. Yesterday McLean told Walsh under oath that Fall got it, but brought it back three days later, saying he had arranged to get it elsewhere.

Adams Insistent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Declaring there is a distasteful "odor" about the whole transaction, Senator Alva Adams, Colorado, today said, former Secretary of the Interior Fall must tell where he got $100,000 in 1921 to buy a ranch in Three Rivers, New Mexico.

The situation created by contradiction of Fall's own explanation to the senate public lands committee, investigating Fall's leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to Sinclair interests is one "unequalled in the history of this country for forty years," Adams said.

Adams will vigorously co-operate with Senator Walsh, Montana, in efforts to force from Fall a statement clearing up the transaction. Walsh will return to Washington Tuesday.

Live Hustlers of Lincoln Keen for Revival of Western League

BOOSTERS FOR BALL PROJECT GETTING BUSY

Joint Committee of Local Civic Clubs All Set to Put Over Plan for Purchase of the Landis Field Plant.

By "CY" SHERMAN.

Baseball boosters of Lincoln are all set to inaugurate the drive by means of which it is planned to take over Landis Field and re-establish the Western league in this city. Members of the joint committee representing four civic clubs were in conference early Saturday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce, electing the following officers to take charge of the park purchase campaign:

President—Trev E. Gillaspie.
Secretary—Lee Ager.
Treasurer—George M. Christian.

Final draft of the several sub-committees which will be selected to put over the drive for 200 members of the park association was deferred until after the Tuesday meeting of the Rotary club. The Kiwanis, Lions and Pathfinders clubs already have given official endorsement to the project involving revival of the Western league ball in Lincoln, but the joint committee decided that the better plan suggested a halt in perfecting the complete organization until Lincoln Rotarians have had the opportunity to step into line with other civic clubs in support of Western league baseball.

Meeting Tuesday Night.

Before adjourning Saturday afternoon, President Gillaspie announced that the boosting committee would assemble at 7:30 Tuesday night at the Chamber of Commerce in formulating final plans for the membership campaign.

Walter J. Kirkbride, member of Rotary, attended the Saturday session and, while speaking unofficially, gave the Western league movement his unqualified endorsement.

"Western league ball would be worth a lot to Lincoln in attracting fans and visitors from towns out in the state," he said. "State league ball was not a drawing card by reason of the fact that Crete, Seward, Milford, Exeter, Friend and several nearby towns maintained independent semi-pro teams which played a class of baseball practically on a par with the State leaguers.

Western League Different.

"In my judgment, it would be radically different if Lincoln were in position to offer the Western league article to visiting fans. A network of well-graded auto highways centers in Lincoln and Western league games in this city would, in my opinion, bring visiting fans from towns as far distant as a hundred miles. The business interests of Lincoln should give serious consideration to this phase of the Western league situation."

League Waits on Lincoln.

Magnates of the Western loop are marking time until Lincoln has framed its final reply to the league. A flat pronouncement has come from league headquarters that the Sioux City club owned by the league, is to be transferred and that Lincoln may step into full membership by providing a field for the playing of games. Although waiting on Lincoln, the league has come to terms with Howard Wakefield, former major league ball player and a man of means, who stands ready to operate and finance a Western league club in Nebraska's capital city.

A Western league club was operated successfully in Lincoln during a long stretch of years beginning in 1906. During that period, Lincoln earned a high rating as a baseball town. The banner season was 1910, when the Lincoln club's total home attendance was 110,000 paid admissions.

Holds a League Record.

In that particular year, Lincoln's population was 43,000, on which basis the ball club drew nearly three times as much as its census figures. That particular record never has been equalled in any city in Western league history.

Interest in baseball lagged during the war years, when most of the young men were in the service. Destruction of the M street grandstand by fire, following the season of 1917, was the crowning disaster and the Lincoln club was sold and transferred to Sioux City the following spring.

Steady growth of Lincoln and its suburbs until the capital city is a population center of 85,000 inspires the belief in local baseball circles that the Lincoln of today is amply capable of reviving Western league ball and making a complete success of the venture.

Mitchell Adds Another Job to Varied Career

Fred Mitchell.

If there is a job in baseball that Fred Mitchell hasn't tackled it must be a very obscure one. For the new business manager of the Boston Braves has been about everything in baseball at one time or another—pitcher, catcher, infielder, coach, manager and club president are a few of them. Now, while officially business manager, Mitchell is really working head of the Brave club.

LEATHER PUSHERS READY TO RESUME

Fight Card of Four Bouts Is Lined Up for Jan. 22 At the City Auditorium.

Hudkins, Strayer and Socklyn to Show Their Goods In Three Feature Fights.

LINCOLN'S NEXT FIGHT CARD.

Eight rounds — Muff Bronson, Portland, Ore. vs. Battling Strayer Lincoln; lightweight.

Eight rounds—Ace Hudkins, Lincoln, vs. Bobby Slater, Omaha; lightweights.

Eight rounds—Sidney Socklyn, Lincoln, vs. Charlie Long (colored) Omaha, welterweights.

Date of the bouts—Jan. 22.
Place—City Auditorium.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

The knuckle-whirling pastime is to be revived in Lincoln at an early date. Billy Hale, acting as matchmaker for Company I, Nebraska National Guard, which is licensed by the state commission to put on mitten bouts, stepped to the center of the publicity stage Saturday night to make formal announcement that the glove-pushers will do their stuff Tuesday night, Jan. 22, at the City auditorium.

Matchmaker Hale already has accumulated the signed contracts to provide for the three feature bouts, each of eight rounds, and a six-round preliminary is to be added, thus raunding out the program of thirty rounds.

Three Local Scrappers.

Three Lincoln fighters—Bat Strayer, Ace Hudkins and Sid Socklyn,—are on Matchmaker Hale's book to show their goods. In matching Strayer against Muff Bronson of Portland and in pitting Hudkins against Bobby Slater, Omaha lightweight, Hale's plan leads up to a Hudkins-Strayer mill. Rivalry is keen between the camps of the two local lightweights and the followers of these Lincoln boys are anxious to see Ace and Bat square off in final settlement of the argument.

"In case Strayer goes good against Bronson and in event Hudkins puts it over Slater," Matchmaker Hale said Saturday night, "I shall plan to match Bat and Ace for the main event of the National Guard's second fight show.

Bronson Has Fine Record.

"But Bat will have to be at his best to beat Bronson. The Portland boy has a fine record out on the coast. His book includes three battles with Joe Benjamin of San Francisco, lightweight protege of Champion Jack Dempsey. Benjamin won the verdict in the first bout, a ten-round affair, but in the two subsequent battles the referee declared Bronson winner.

"Slater is one of Omaha's top-notch lightweights and I figure Ace Hudkins will have a tough argument on his hands.

Socklyn Improved Fighter.

"Sid Socklyn isn't the same fighter Lincoln fans saw in action last winter. Sid has improved a hundred per cent. I see that he put it over Jackie Conway in a Friday night main event in Des Moines, winning every round. I figure that three slashing bouts have been lined up for Jan. 22 and the show should go over big. It is entirely up to the glove fans. If they want the redhot stuff, we shall go out and get the boxers of that brand."

York Registers Win Over Sutton In Speedy Game

(Special to The Star.)

YORK, Neb., Jan. 12.—York high school rang up another victory last night by defeating the Sutton high school quintet, 26 to 19.

York closed the first half with a 14 to 6 lead and slowed down somewhat during the second period, Sutton outscoring the locals during the last half.

The York defense was much in evidence during the first half, Sutton caging but one field goal. Culvert led the York scoring with five field goals and four free throws. Sprague of York caged four baskets. A. Wieland counted two field goals and two free throws for Sutton while Krohn scored four baskets and three free throws.

York will play at Beatrice next Thursday.

Bloomington Fans Predict Good Year

BLOOMINGTON, Neb., Jan. 12—Prospects are bright for a winning basketball team at Bloomington high school this season.

Three letter men have responded to the call of Coach Wells. The veterans are Captain H. Meyers and Hirsch, forwards, and Thompson, guard.

Nebraska City Optimistic.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Jan. 12—The outlook for a winning basketball team at Nebraska City is good this season. Five letter men are back and Coach Joe Folsom has been hard at work developing a team.

(Special to The Star.)

LINCOLN WINS IN THRILLING FRAY

Capital City Tossers Take Measure of Creighton Prep Quintet.

Brown's Accurate Shooting Clinches Victory In Extra Period.

By GREGG McBRIDE.

A victory gained at the expense of Creighton Prep of Omaha, after one of the most thrilling cage battles staged on the armory floor for several years, permitted Lincoln Saturday night to continue the 1924 interscholastic basket campaign undefeated. Lincoln defeated Coach Drennan's Blue basketeers, 37 to 33.

The game was thrilling, not because of the caliber of indoor sport on exhibition, but rather on account of the fierce battle waged by the two teams and the turns and breaks of the game. It was the type of game which keeps the crowd in a frenzy and the aggregation of high school fans which jammed the armory howled itself hoarse as Lincoln, apparently hopelessly defeated at half-time, came from behind in the closing minutes of play and won in an extra five-minute period.

"Jug" Brown In Limelight.

"Jug" Brown, Lincoln's stellar athlete, was the prime factor in the Lincoln victory. Brown and Captain Corrick seemed to be the only Red and Black cagesters who showed any marked degree of ability to penetrate the Creighton defense. The score sheet records Brown's prowess. In spite of the fact that Monachan and O'Leary camped on his trail, Brown scored ten times from the floor and twice from the foul line for a total of twenty-two points. Many of his goals were caged from beneath the basket, the ex-captain dribbling and pivoting the Creighton guards dizzy.

Corrick's work stood out brilliantly in the second half and extra period, the Lincoln captain organizing the Red and Black defense in sufficient fashion to bother the Blue point-makers.

Prep Ties the Score.

The two teams see-sawed through the opening quarter. Lincoln grabbed a slender lead during the first five minutes, but Coffey and Moylan got busy for Creighton and the score at the close of the first quarter was eleven-all.

The Lincoln defense was absent during the second quarter and the Blue point-makers ran amuck, Coffey, Diesing and Moylan running the Creighton lead to 22-14 by half-time.

Brown started the second half with a goal on the play following tip-off. He added a free throw and Marchand caged two points back of the foul ring. Moylan and Diesing, however, were not to be denied and Creighton closed the third period with a 27 to 22 lead.

Browna Busy Tosser.

Brown again opened the last period with a dribble down the side and a quick basket. With five minutes to play, Lincoln was trailing, 29-26. Brown scored a long basket and a few seconds later gave Lincoln a 30-29 lead with a one-handed toss from the side. Brown added a free throw and King scored from the floor.

With two minutes to play, Lincoln refused to stall and insisted on rushing the ball into Creighton territory. This gave the Blue a chance and O'Brien, who was substituted at center for Diesing, registered the two baskets necessary to knot the count. The tying basket came in the last ten seconds of play.

Lincoln came back strong in the extra period and two field goals by Brown put the game on ice.

Lincoln's next game is with Omaha Tech on the armory floor next Saturday night. The score:

If May Delivers Cincy Reds Will Be Sitting Pretty

Jake May.

The Cinci Reds had a first-class pitching staff last season with Luque, Rixey, Donohue and Benton turning in victories regularly. Since October the Red bosses have added two more stars to their staff. Carl Mays, Yankee submarine artist, may or may not deliver his share of victories. But Jakie May, Pacific Coast League star, is expected to. If he steps in with a goodly number of victories it will be hard to stop the Reds.

HOWLS AT BOXING SUDDENLY STILL

New York Knockers Decide to Clamp Soft Pedal On the Criticism.

Promoters-Fighters Have Too Much at Stake to Allow Kicking to Proceed.

By FRANK G. MENKE.

(Copyright 1924, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Life is full of perplexities, to-wit:

Up to about three weeks ago many sport writers in the state of New York, bold and unafraid, declared that the fight game was very, very rotten; that it was infested with parasites and crooks and plenty of gunmen; that it's speedy demise would be for the best interests of the something called "clean sport."

A short while afterward certain legislators, taking the word of the experts, began to prepare bills which would either kill the boxing game or change it so radically that it might take on the semblance of honesty.

What happened?

Did the writers cheer—and applaud—and howl themselves hoarse in gladsome glee?

No, no, and then nix!

Sudden Shift of Opinion.

The remarkable thing—or is it really so remarkable when you start an analysis?—is that since boxing has become endangered many who had shrieked for its annihilation suddenly have taken the viewpoint:

"Oh, it ain't so bad after all. So let's fight to save it."

What influenced the change in sentiment?

Was it affection for Tex Rickard, who would be a terrible looser if the game died? Was it affection for the crooked managers and their trick fighters, who would lose heavily if boxing ceased to be in New York? Could it have been a friendly feeling for the judges, the referees and the ring riff raff which ekes a livelihood from the game?

Swift Show of Affection.

And if it was affection—why didn't the affection manifest itself before Rickard and the others found themselves backed to the wall in the fight for the life of the game that is making them wealthy?

Rickard has a lease on Madison Square Garden which has six or seven years more to run. It costs him close to $500,000 annually to operate the Garden. If boxing survives he is almost sure to break at least $250,000 ahead each year on the annual operation of the historical arena.

Rap at Rickard's Wallop.

But if boxing is killed, Rickard faces a prospective annual loss of perhaps $300,000. In other words:

1. If boxing endures during the lifetime of Rickard's lease, he will clear a profit of between $1,500,000 and 2,000,000 in six years.

2. If boxing is killed Rickard seems destined to lose probably $2,000,000.

The gross difference, therefore, is approximately $4,000,000.

What Tex Stands to Lose.

It must not be imagined that Madison Square Garden is Rickard's only source of fistic revenue. Rickard puts on outdoor shows. Those he staged in 1923 in New York netted him a porfit of close to $750,000. Multiply that six times and it shows that Rickard's real loss if the "sport" came to its death could be estimately at nearly $9,000 in six years.

How hard would you fight to save yourself $6,000,000? How hard do you think Rickard is fighting? And how generous in thought—or in deed—would you be with those who have "affection" for you if their "affectionate" help might save for you $6,000,000?

Hundreds Would Be Hit.

Rickard is the premier promoter of

BOOK MADE FOR TITLE BATTLES OF '24 CAMPAIGN

Dempsey Slated for Rumpus With Tom Gibbons; Then Will Meet Winner of Firpo-Wills Brawl.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Articles for a bout between Luis Firpo, South American champion, and Harry Wills, colored challenger for the heavyweight championship, may be signed this week.

Paddy Mullins is considering an offer from Tex Rickard and it is said to be so attractive that Mullins feels he would not be wise to turn it down.

Mullins said today he would sign the articles if he became convinced that it would not be practical for him to wait any longer for Dempsey to keep his promise.

Firpo sent the tip by cable several days ago to watch developments around Madison Garden, as a big story was to be released soon.

Summer Book Made Up.

Recent developments seem to indicate that both Rickard and Dempsey have their summer program well mapped out and that the champion will make only two appearances in the ring.

Jack Kearns said before leaving for a week in Hot Springs that Dempsey would not fight more than two times this summer and that he would take Gibbons and then meet the winner of the Firpo-Wills bout.

Rickard does not care to give the reformers any more ammunition by staging too many big fights this summer and he feels that handling three big bouts would be enough work for him.

Dempsey-Gibbons First.

While he has made no announcement about the details, it is understood that Rickard wants to put on the Dempsey-Gibbons bout in the Polo Grounds the last week of May and that he will try to stage the Firpo-Wills fight July Fourth and then wind up the series Labor day.

Gibbons probably will have at least one fight in New York before he meets the champion in a return bout.

It may be possible to arrange a match between the St. Paul fighter and Gene Tunney, the American light-heavyweight champion. Billy Gibbons, Tunney's manager, denied today that he had refused to consider the match and that he was prepared to listen to terms.

If Rickard is unable to get Mike McTigue to settle his troubles with Joe Jacobs, his manager, he may match Tunney and Carpentier and let Gibbons have the winner, as the Frenchman says he wants two fights here before he retires.

Wills, from recent statements, seems at last to have gotten wise to the fact that he cannot make any money by sitting back and waiting for a Dempsey fight and that he can force the match by going out and taking all the contenders.

Gibbons Guns for Dempsey.

Eddie Kane of Chicago, business pilot for Tommy Gibbons, writes The Star's sports editor to intimate that Champion Jack Dempsey is not especially anxious for another whirl at St. Paul's Tommy's game. Nevertheless, chirps Manager Eddie, it is the purpose of the Gibbons-Kane duo to keep on the champion's trail until Tom's ambition to again get into a ring with the title-holder is realized. Saturday night's mail brought the following epistle from Manager Kane's Chicago headquarters:

"CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 11.—Sports Editor Star.—On January 31 Tommy Gibbons will start an active campaign to get Dempsey again.

"I think you will agree with me when I say that Gibbons is the man rightfully entitled to the first chance at that championship. True, he lost at Shelby, and we have no complaint to make about the decision, which was rightfully Dempsey's, but he won it in the last three rounds, and with a few conditions changed I know that Gibbons can beat Dempsey.

"I read a story the other day in which Dempsey mentioned that Tom was not a quick thinker. That might be true, but having handled Tom eight years I think I am better qualified to judge that than Dempsey. As for Dempsey tricking Tom into doing things, I can't say; but according to the plans we made from round to round, Tom worked perfectly and if he had had the use of both legs after the twelfth round the decision might have been harder for the referee to render.

Tom Victim of Foul.

"Dick Burke of New Orleans, who is well known by most everybody, examined Tom after that fight, or rather was there at the examination, and gave out a story, which, if I recall correctly, was to the effect that Tommy had been badly fouled.

"We have never mentioned this fact, feeling that some might figure it is an alibi. Never since Tommy has been boxing have we ever used an alibi, and are not going to establish a precedent. All Tom wants is what I believe he is rightfully deserving of—another chance at that championship. As for the referee, whatever state we box in the commission can name him and anyone they choose to select will be perfectly to us.

"I have noticed in all of the interviews given by Dempsey he has discredited Tom, saying that he could not punch hard, and the latest being that he could not think fast; and I really believe that is all for a purpose. If Dempsey feels that Tom has no chance with him in a title match I cannot for the life of me figure his hesitancy at making the match on reasonable terms.

Hard After a Fight.

"We would just like to assure all of Tom's friends that we are after the match hard, want it badly and will make any reasonable concession to get it, provided it is a decision match. If Jack Dempsey could not beat Tom Gibbons last Fourth of July at Shelby for more than one decision he has absolutely no chance to beat him with proper rules and fair treatment. I am, Sincerely your friend,

"EDDIE KANE."

RECORD MARK IN A. B. C. TOURNEY

Entry List of Ten-Pin Teams Likely to Reach Total Near 2,500.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 12.—When the leading ten-pni knights of the Unileading ten-pin knights of the Unigo within the next few weeks to take part in the annual international tournament of the American Bowling congress they will find ideal conditions as regards a tournament building, hotel accommodations and all that goes to make a tournament of this size and nature a success.

The 12nd regiment armory, wherein the classes will be staged, is a building seemingly constructed for this tournament. It is 194 by 194 feet inside measurements and has a seating capacity of about 3,000. Of this number, 1,000 seats are in boxes.

There will be 28 brand new alleys laid for the affair and these will run from east to west, which is the natural way for alleys to run to secure big scores. These drives will be continuously built and of the finest material.

The armory is about 20 blocks from the loop on West Madison and is reached after a 20-minute ride. Hotel accommodations are plentiful in the loop district.

With entry closing date but a week away, there are now 827 teams entered from outside Chicago, while the Windy City has 1122 so far. Both these totals will be considered augmented by midnight, Jan. 21, which is the final hour in which entry may be made.

Secretary A. L. Langtry of Milwaukee declares his confidence in the grand total reaching close to the record mark of teams, which would mean a prize fund of more than $90,000.

"Don't you know who I am?" asked Babe.

"No," replied the cop.

"Babe Ruth," declared the Bambino.

"Is that so," declared the officer. 'A prize fighter, eh?"

NEW PADDOCK HOTEL OF

OLD PADDOCK HOTEL DESTROYED BY FIRE AUG. 1, 1919.

Splendid New Hotel Paddock At Beatrice to b Formally Opened To The Public January, 2

BEATRICE, Neb., Jan. 12.—One of the finest hostelries will welcome the public here on Monday evening, January 28, when the new Hotel Paddock is formally opened with a banquet which will be one of the most elaborate social functions in the social and business history of the city.

Erected at acost of $430,000, the handsome structure dominates the main down town corner at Sixth and Court streets, where it occupies the site of the old Hotel Paddock, which was for a generation one of the most widely known caravansaries among midwest cities of this size.

The old Paddock, which was built by the late United States Senator A. S. Paddock in the late 80's, was completely destroyed by fire on the night of August 1, 1919. Long drawn out litigation over the title, which involved the closing of an option on the day following the fire by E. L. May, and the post war depression period, served to delay several movements which were launched in the effort to build a new hotel. Robert Nickell, former Beatrice banker, now resident in Long Beach, Calif., owned the property.

Following these delays, Be citizens formed a company, laun a stock selling campaign and w a period of a few weeks raised s thing in exceess of $300,000 fo erection of the new building. Le bond issue of $130,000 was sol provide additional funds for the pletion of the structure.

Leased to E. L. May.

E. L. May, who made the old tution very popular locally as as among the travelling frate thereafter leased the hotel whic is now equipping with appoint which are thoroughly in keeping the beautiful exterior and inter the five story building.

The architect, Thomas R. Kin Omaha, exercised his genius for inal architectural conception wh drew plans for Paddock. The bui is 142x75 feet in dimension. giving a size suggestive of imp sive dignity, as the structure is above the city's busiest street in intersection. However, the archi has succeeded most happily in c bining this aspect of dignity an artistic grace of exceptional fectiveness. This had been don the adoption of what might be c a Moorish motif in the general orative features of the exterior.

This effect is heightened by use of a buff stucco warm tone the entire exterior. Same mellow also appear in the stone courses ming the street level foundations, above and below the myriad w ows.

Interior Finishing.

The interior has been finishe mahogany, with selected panels "trim" of this type giving a r attractive effect. Entering a spac lobby, the walls of which are pane in imported moquette, guests at find themselves in an atmospher the most inviting homeiness in s of the institution's public charac This atmosphere, it may be said, vades the entire hotel, which, though just completed, is in no se unpleasantly "new" or garish in aspect. Quite the contrary, for subdued tones of the beautiful fi ings, draperies and furniture co ings suggest the best in artistic taste. This same happy union of in the New Paddock dining rooms is washed, cooled, and otherwise prepared for your use by electricity. For the New Paddock is a strictly modern hostelry and as such of course it is completely electrified. Two large refrigerating rooms cooled by electric equipment keep the food in excellent condition until it is used. Electric paring, grinding, and cutting machines in the kitchen prepare it for cooking and serving. And it is served on dishes washed by an electric machine and with linen cleansed in an electric laundry. Ice made by an electric machine cools the water used on the table.

This complete electrification of facilities for preserving, preparing, and serving food is typical of the appointments of the New Paddock. The management knows the cleanliness, efficiency, economy, and satisfaction of using electric equipment, and has installed it throughout the hotel.

Interruptions in electric service would work serious hardship, yet the management has unhesitatingly committed itself to us for this service. It knows that, with our many generating plants interconnected by a network of transmission lines, and with our standby plant in Beatrice, we shall give electric service which is ever constant and thoroughly dependable. To serve well is always our fundamental purpose.

tistic charm and homeiness is found in every one of the 105 rooms all of which possess every modern convenience.

Massive columns rising from the marble floor extend upward through the lobby to a wonderfully attractive beautifully appointed ball room mezzanine floor above. To the rear of the lobby is a large and also which is 90 by 30 feet in dimension. To the right of the lobby is a dining room which is believed to be one of the finest of its kind in any city of similar size. The tables will seat perhaps 300 guests. Elaborately equipped kitchens extend beyond this room.

The Nebraska State bank occupies the corner, ground floor room, which was visited by between 6,000 and 7,000 guests when it was recently opened to the public. The bank's quarters are equalled in attractiveness by few similar rooms in the smaller cities of the state.

The Ground Floor.

Several beautiful stores also occupy Court street frontages on the ground floor, the Sixth street side being entirely given over to the hotel proper. The Butterfly, a confectionery shop and F. P. Miller's haberdashery are included. Income from basement rentals will be secured through a billard parlor lease held by Lev Ashenfelter, and a barber shop lease held by Life and Blevins. In each instance the tenants have made provision for well appointed, attractive quarters.

Although the Paddock will not be formally opened until the banquet, which is to be followed by a ball, it will be in operation this week when the Nebraska State Firemen's association holds its annual convention here.

While Beatrice citizens feel a natural gratification over the successful completion of the hotel, which has been built by the Jas. M. Black Construction company of Omaha and St. Louis, the Queen City's residents feel that they have more than ordinary reason for indulging their community pride. Over 800 of them subscribed during the stock selling campaign, buying all the way from a $100 share to upward of $10,000. The hotel therefore stands as a monument to their civic loyalty. All stockholders have already paid up in full except about six per cent of them. Much of the money was available when work on the construction started in September, 1922.

Company Officers.

The company upon its organization elected the following officers and directors who were recently re-elected: D. S. Dalbey, president; Henry Fishbach, vice president; J. R. Spicer, treasurer; E. M. Marvin, secretary; and W. C. Black, H. M. Hepperlen, C. B. Dempsteer, D. W. Cook, G. W. Spiegel, Samuel Rinaker and F. L. Pothast. These officers and directors have been re-elected each year and there have been no changes in the board, with the exception of F. L. Pothast who resigned, his place being filled by the election of J. A. Klein.

Another marked improvement in the city made while the new hotel was being constructed was the complete remodeling of the Beatrice State Bank building. The bank is now established in spacious quarters with all modern banking conveniences. The officers and directors invited the citizens to their formal opening which was held a few weeks ago. The bank is located on Sixth street just across from the new hotel.

During the past year the Wilke Baking company erected a new plant at Fifth and Market streets. No expense was spared by Mr. Wilke to install all the latest machinery and equipment necessary for a modern baking plant to turn out their product.

RICKENBACKER CAR PROVES NEW IDEA

Captain Eddy Tells of Initiative That Keeps Company Ahead of Others.

Combination of Successes Were Bound to Achieve a Greater Success.

"There's always room for initiative, just as there is always room at the top," contends Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, vice-president and director of sales of the motor car company of that name.

"We frequently hear the fear expressed that 'the big fellows are going to corner all the business and either gobble up the little fellow or put him out of business.'

"I think the success of the Rickenbacker Motor company during the past two years is the best refutation of that gloomy prediction.

"Of course some of the little fellows will be elliminated from time to time. In fact there has been a constant process of elimination going on since the very first days of the industry.

"Each year some names are missing from the list of exhibitors at the automobile shows but each year also some new ones are added.

"No, it is not the ones who started a year or two ago who are being eliminated, but some of those who started many years ago; some of the pioneers in fact. Some of these once filled a place and performed a needed service. They proved unequal to the pace however, were unable to keep up with engineering advances or to find and hold a place for themselves.

"Some have hung on for years by virtue of one reorganization or "refinancing" after another, only to peter out at last. These never did really belong. Then there are a few concerns which started in the business of manufacturing automobiles on no firmer foundation than a mere desire to get into what seemed to them an easy way of making money. The incorporators of these companies had mostly been successful in other lines of business and with the money made in those other lines, launched into this, which is the most hazardous of all industries, on the assumption that it was really the surest.

"There is a great temptation for men in other branches of manufacturing to enter this industry because, according to their standards, our methods seem loose and extravagant and the pathway literally strewn with roses! We deal in such tremendous figures, and make decisions so rapidly in order to meet sudden changes of conditions, that it all looks like haphazard business to the man whose experience has been confined to more conservative lines and where he deals in units of smaller value.

"However, those of us who have spent our entire business lives in the automobile industry know that there is nothing haphazard about it. Quick decisions are necessary, and if those decisions involve large sums of money—hundreds of thousands of dollars where the same decision in other lines would mean hundreds of dollars—that merely dictates that a quick decision is all the more necessary. One need seek no farther than this for the reason why each year, a few companies start and about the same number drop out. Lack of experience is the answer. Lack of sufficient capital accounts for a few—but lack of experience for the majority of failures in this business.

"On the other hand, when a group of men whose experience covers the whole history of this industry, decide to incorporate all that experience in a new car and to build it in a new factory the equipment of which also represents that long experience, its success is just as certain as is the failure of one launched by novices. The combined experience of seven men who constitute the executive head of the Rickenbacker Motor company is 146 years. None of us has been in the business less than 18 years. For my own part I started as a helped in the garage when I was still in knee-breeches—21 years ago. B. F. Everitt, our president and general manager, is one of the five original pioneers of the industry. His experience dates from 1901.

"This 146 years of experience has been divided about equally among the seven major branches of automobile manufacture—engineering, production, purchasing, body building, sales and advertising. Every member of this organization had proven he was a success before the Rickenbacker Motor company was organized.

"Just as two negatives will not make a positive, nor a group of failures a success, so a combination of successes are bound to achieve a greater one. Of course experience alone is not sufficient. Initiative, and confidence to crystallize that initiative into the product is the first stepping stone of success for it means a product that will enjoy a ready demand because of its advanced features.

"If the Rickenbacker Motor company had done nothing else than to spur others on to the production of better motor cars and to giving the buyer a more finished product it would have fully justified its being. Certainly the public has given us ample evidence of its approval and has endorsed our company as one that is performing a valuable service.

QUALITY HAS SOLD MILLIONTH DODGE

Manufacturing Ideals — Built Well And It Will Sell Itself.

There is one factory, at least, in which there is no dispute between sales and production executives as to the relative importance of their departments.

Ask anyone of authority in the sales department of Dodge Brothers, Detroit, which is more important—the job of manufacturing or the job of selling—and you get an immediate, emphatic answer:

"In our business, manufacturing, by all means."

Ever since Dodge Brothers turned out their first motor car, back in 1914, and even before that time, when Dodge Brothers were building parts for other manufacturers, major stress has always been placed on the building of the product, rather than the selling.

"Build it well and it will sell itself," was their cardinal doctrine.

Dodge Brothers believed that a product could not survive long unless it was conscientiously built—that the public would always prefer fundamental merit to superficial glamor; that a car with a real reputation for goodness would always find a healthy market, regardless of the whims of fashion.

The fact that Dodge Brothers have now built and sold more than 1,000,000 cars, seems to bear out this contention in an emphatic way. The million mark was reached December 13, 1923—just 9 years and 11 days after the first Dodge Brothers motor car left the factory.

Officials explain that this remarkable record is due to the fact that there never has been an "off year" in Dodge Brothers history. Demand has always enjoyed a steady increase. The public, recognizing the merit of the car, sought it so persistently that the factory was forced to establish a world's record in quality production.

And yet, with all their expansion, from 50 and 100 a day to a present plant capacity of 1,000, they have never for a moment lost sight of the original ideal. Quality still has preference over quantity.

New York state—but not the only one. There are scores of others. There are at least a hundred fight managers in or around New York City—and about 500 fighters—who would suffer terrific financial jolts if boxing came to its deserved death.

Who thinks that Rickard, or the other promoters, or the fighters, the managers, and the boxing parasites are going to permit boxing to go while they have the energy—and the money—to fight for its existence?

In face of that, who really believes that boxing will be killed?

Prices May Be Scaled.

It may be modified. The maximum admission price may be reduced from $15 to $10 or to $5—and decisions may be eliminated in the future to halt the rampant crookedness within the game and to stop the gambling rats from making further cleanings.

But it is 10 to 1 right now that the game survives—almost solely because certain powerful critics and writers who might have crushed it—and started to crush it—suddenly have experienced a radical change of mind and heart—and are fighting for its life—along with Rickard, et al.

Who can explain the "why" of it?

Princeton "Prof' Defends Football

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 12.—A defense of college football and all other sports as "desirable in undergraduate training" was made here today by Dr Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of the board of athletic control at Princeton. The statement was in response to criticism of college football as having become commercialized.

The large gate receipts, Kennedy pointed out, are entirely spontaneous because "football is a game with a thrilling interest to the spectator beyond that of any other sport." He said that football, baseball, and basketball were the only three sports on a paying basis in the university and helped to finance the other thirty-six forms of athletic competition in which the university is interested.

Traction Case Is Up Again Monday

The railway commission, having recently granted the Lincoln Traction Co. a rehearing in regard to both rates of fare and the valuation of its property for earning purposes, will start in Monday morning at 10:30 to take more evidence concerning these matters. The company wishes to charge a fare of 10 cents on the shorter trips and 12 cents on the longer ones, leaving ticket fares as they now are. It also claims the valuation of $2,824,000 placed upon its street railway property is not high enough.

Ordered to Quit The Exhibition Of Two Stars' Films

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 12.—Vernon Reigel, chairman of the state censorship board, tonight gave Ohio exhibitors one week in which to clear their programs of movies showing Edna Purviance and Mabel Normand.

At the expiration of that period movie houses would be liable to prosecution for each showing should they exhibit films in which either of actresses has a part.

The order barring Normand and Miss Purviance films was issued by Reigel January 9 and was to become effective immeditaely. His decision to extend the "dead line" of these films resulted from an announcement in Cincinnati this afternoon that a moving picture house had advertised an Edna Purviance film to start Sunday.

"I believe exhibitors who contracted for these pictures in advance of our order are entitled to go ahead and show them," Reigel said.

The films were barred, he said, because Misses Normand and Purviance "are alleged to have been mixed up in to omany shootings."

Lancaster Prisoner Serving Time For Auto Theft Is Again Turned Down.

Curry Will Be Sent Back to Colorado to Resume Serving Life Term.

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again" hasn't worked out very well for Earl Henry, Lancaster county convict serving one to ten years in the penitentiary for automobile theft. Henry has tried often enough to get his liberty, but the state board of pardons just can't see any good reason for letting him out. His fourth application, heard last Tuesday, has been turned down and he will remain where he is.

Besides making repeated efforts to be released on parole, he tried another plan two years ago by leaving without permission while employed as a trusty outside the walls. He was caught and brought back three days later, after getting as far as Cortland.

For some reason, the board decided to parole Burl Baker, the man who ran away with Henry. It overlooked Baker's action on the theory that he was misled by the other man. He was in from Hall county for one to seven years, having been convicted of grand larceny. Both men have been in since 1920.

Curry Sent to Colorado.

According to expectations, the pardon tribunal commuted the two-year sentence of Charles Curry for breaking and entering, in Douglas county, so that he could be taken back to Colorado and resume serving his life term in the penitentiary there, from which he escaped eight years ago. An officer from that state is now coming after him. Curry served a penitentiary sentence in Wisconsin between the time he broke out of the Colorado prison at Canon City and his arrest in Omaha.

No Clemency for Emerson.

In the pardon board's opinion, J. C. Emerson has not yet served enough time on his sentence of one to fourteen years in the penitentiary to justify his release. He was sent up from Dodge county for forgery four years ago, having previously done time in Indiana and had some trouble with the authorities in Iowa. The suspicion exists that these things do not constitute his full prison record. He put up $4,000 cash bail after his arrest at Fremont, and then ran away, the money being forfeited. Ten years rolled by before he was recaptured.

Lover's Plea Successful.

Madeline Dohan, serving three years for forgery in Douglas county, is granted a commutation and parole so that she can go back to her relatives and marry her lover, who appeared at the recent hearing and asked for clemency in her behalf. His plea was backed up by one from her former employer, by her mother, and by a petition bearing signatures of a number of Omaha citizens.

Francs Reach A Record Low

(United Press.)

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The French franc today defied feverish efforts of government authorities to stay its fall and toppled to a record low of 4½ cents compared with its normal value of more than 19 cents.

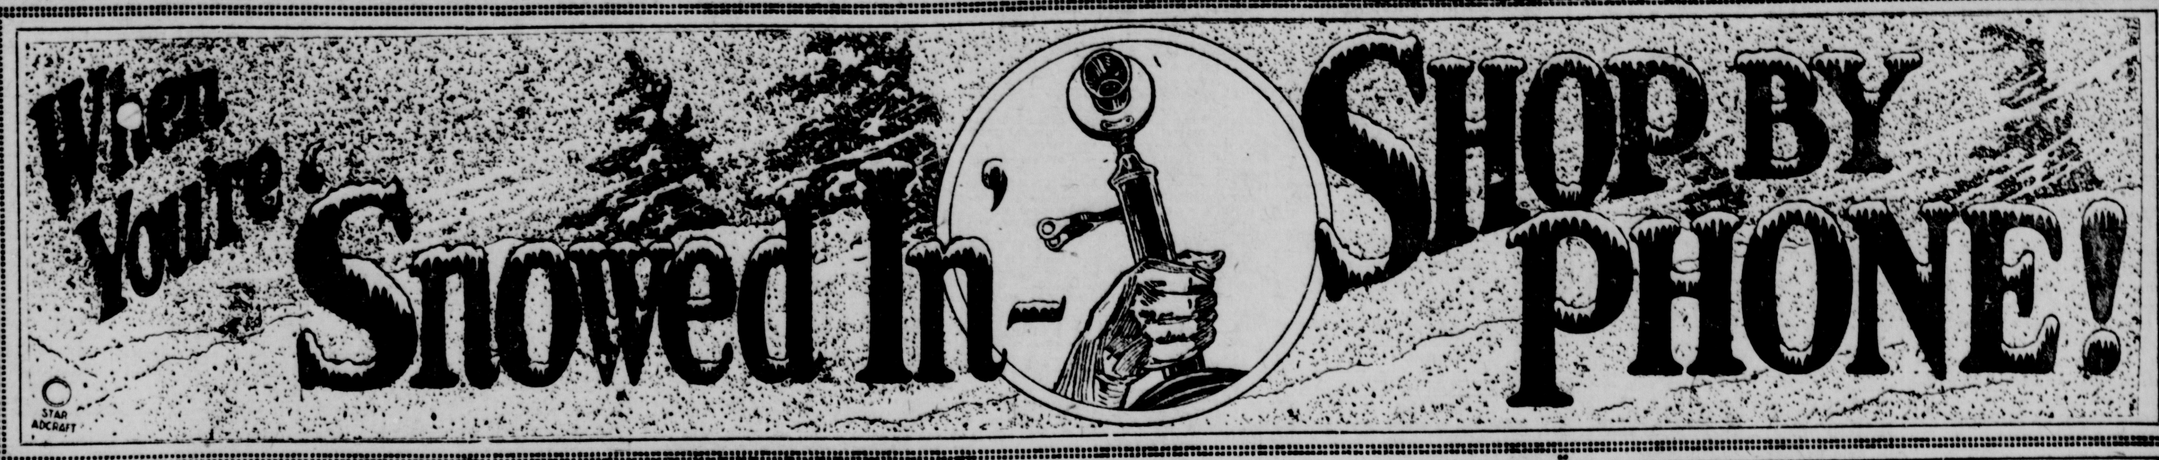

Count De Lasteyrie, French minister of finance, has been stormed, warned, and threatened in his effort to arrest to arrest what he alleges is artificial stimulus being given the franc's decline.

His efforts today proved futile and now there is real alarm in the finances.

After The Storm:

During a winter snow or sleet storm or after a summer thunder storm, your telephone service may be cut off.

Often a windstorm breaks off many telephone poles. And sleet not only breaks off poles, but interrupts telephone service by tearing down the wires. Lightning, too, plays havoc with the wires.

While your telephone is out of order, remember that linemen are working in the midst of the trouble, striving manfully without regard for their personal comfort, to restore your service.

At the time of a storm, every available repairman is on the job. And not for a minute do they relax their efforts until telephone service is fully restored.

AGRICULTURE HEAD SPEAKS IN OMAHA

Wallace Will Address Convention of National Live Stock Association.

An Attractive Program Prepared For Meetings Opening January 15.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 12.—Henry C. will address the first session of the Wallace, secretary of agriculture, twenty-seventh annual convention of the American National Live Stock association in Omaha, January 15 to 17 inclusive.

Mr. Wallace's subject has not yet been announced, but officials of the association believe that he will discuss several subjects of vital importance and interest to the live stock men of the country which have been suggested by them. These are: The administration of the packers and stockyards act of 1921; the Armour-Morris packing company merger; refusal of the packers to allow the secretary to examine their books; the adjustment of commission charges; reduction in freight rates on live stock and farm products; the direct movement of feeders from range to feed lots; grazing fees on the national forest reserves, including the present method of fixing fees versus the proposed commercial method; and the foreign situation as it affects the demand for our surplus products, and especially products of the live stock industry.

Other Prominent Speakers.

Other men, prominent in the live stock industry and experts in subjects they are to discuss make the program of this convention one of the most entertaining and educational association has ever had, officials and members of the association declare.

With Mr. Wallace's address to be given on the first day it is expected that the majority of the 800 cattle growers and farmers coming will be registered when the convention opens Tuesday morning, January 15. The fare and one-half railroad rate offered from all points west of the Mississippi river, on validation of certificates in Omaha will materially swell the attendance, officials believe.

Two Important Addresses.

Two addresses that will be of particular interest to the plains states stock growers and agriculturalists will be those by A. Sykes, president of the Corn Belt Producers association of Des Moines, and Charles A. Myers, of Knight, Wyo.

Mr. Sykes will discuss the "Corn Belt Feeder and the Range Man," and Mr. Myers will use as his topic, "Putting a New Bridge Across the Gap Between Breeder and Feeder." Both addresses are scheduled for the afternoon session of the first day.

"Amendments to the Transportation Act," the topic of an address by S. C. Cowan, attorney for the American National Live Stock association, on the program for Wednesday morning, will be one of hte most important addresses of the entire session. Mr. Cowan is thoroughly acquainted with his subject and his address will be to the point from start to finish. Of equal rank with the address by Cowan, should be that at the same session by S. W. McClure, manager of the Western Tariff association who will speak on "Tariff on Agriculture and Live Stock Products."

Stryker on Program.

A. F. Stryker, for many years secretary of the Omaha Live Stock exchange, will tell those attending the conference about the "Benefits of the Live Stock Market."

Senator W. B. Kendrick of Wyoming will address the gathering on Wednesday afternoon also.

Committee meetings will be held in committee rooms at the Hotel Fontenelle, with the executive committee meeting there at 10 a. m., January 14, preceding the convention sessions. Meeting of standing committees will be announced during the convention.

Entertainment for the stockmen and their wives has been provided by the live stock men and commission men of Omaha. For the women an automobile tour of the city followed by their reception at an informal tea at the home of Mrs. Edward L. Burke, 3646 Burt street, has been arranged. Mrs. Burke will be assisted by the wives of the Omaha Live Stock exchange and commission men in entertaining the out of town guests, Wednesday afternoon from 4 to 6.

At the South Omaha Live Stock exchange, those attending the convention will be guests at a banquet, Wednesday night at 6:30.

DR. CHARLES FRANKLIN LADD AT THE DIGNIFIED AGE OF 24

H. H. WILSON AS HE APPEARED AT 24

JACK PETERSON, ANTHONY BRANTHWAITE AND C.W. FLEMING, 1888.

O.J. FEE AT 18.

THE HAPPY-GO-LUCKY YOUTH WITH THE GUITAR AT THE RIGHT IS COUNTY ATTORNEY CHARLES E. MATSON AT 20.

MAYOR FRANK C. ZEHRUNG IN HIS PRIME AT 24

BY LYNNELLE GREER.

Sheiks?

Well, according to our mothers, and aunts, and various friends, when it comes to sheiking we "ain't heard nothin' yet?"

Why sheiking was merely a lost art, so they say, that our present generation of Beau Brummels knew nothing about until Rudolph Valentino came along and showed them how it should be done.

If any of our fashionable young men of today have the slightest idea that slick hair and silk hats originated with them, they are entirely mistaken, entirely so, and their conceit is almost unpardonable.

Even Adam was a sheik, although how he did it is still a mystery, for the imagination has not been able to stretch that far. The idea of a long haired, bearded, unkempt looking individual being a ladies' man is almost too much, but when one considers it was Eve's only chance, well—what could a poor girl do?

But when mother was a girl—

Silk Hats, Canes 'n Everything.

Ah, those were the days! Silk hats, canes, frock tail coats, even the slight mustache; their hair parted in the middle and slicked back, not with the scented preparations of today for that purpose, but coaxed to stay shiny and slick with almost any kind of grease one could get.

Those were the days of grandeur in the photography establishments, also. Never a one of them but boasted of a balustrade, a huge oak tree and background of clinging vines and flowers. And the grass—long yellow mats of it that took green in the picture.

All of these things helped the sheiks of another day appear at their best when it came picture taking time, and somehow or other it seems that men were not so adverse to the camera in those days as they are now. And they didn't just have one or two finished for the members of the family, either, they ordered dozens of them, so there would always be one on hand at request.

Far be it from one of them to be like a modern young man who had but one picture in a frame, a marvelous picture—a beautiful frame. This young man was engaged numerous times, at least seven or eight, and all during the career of engagements he did not have another picture taken but took the same one back from each girl to give it out to another.

Pictures Pictures Everywhere.

But back in the late eighties and early nineties, there was enough for all. The entire family had one apiece, including cousins, aunts, uncles, brothers and sisters, and not a friend was neglected. Those were the day of photograph albums, plush bound ones that graced the center table in the parlor, and if one's picture wasn't in the album—well it didn't speak well for friendship.

It was quite fashionable, too, to have a picture for each suit of clothes, the Sunday suit, the every day suit, one with the derby, one bareheaded, and one with the silk hat.

And then, too, if one were accomplished in any way—for instance if one played the guitar, that instrument must be at least shown in action in one picture; and if one were accomplished in blowing perfect rings of smoke through a prosperous mustache—the rings were also shown in the picture. Sometimes they were accentuated a trifle by the photographer, but they were there, never the less, in plain sight.

Lincoln boasted many handsome, fashionably attired young men, and young men, who were very popular in the young set years ago.

Trio of Early Sheiks.

That picture of C. W. Fleming, Anthony Branthwaite, and Jack Peterson for instance, taken when the three of them were dapper, swagger, young fellows. A sort of musketeer effect is seen in the picture, one for all, and all for one—

C. W. Fleming, if anything, is the swankiest of all, for it is he with the light colored top coat. One notices in the picture that the other two men, who are unmistakably older, were the conventional dark coat, while Mr. Fleming appeared garbed in the fashion of the sheiks of his day.

The canes are not noticeable in the picture, except perhaps, the one carried by Mr. Branthwaite, the center of the group. If one observes closely, the cane is in evidence.

It is understood, too, that outside of the fact that he was quite up to the minute in fashion, Mr. Fleming could play the guitar and had a lovely tenor voice, just the thing for serenading, but whether he ever indulged in this pastime or not, no one knows but the gentleman himself, and he is not likely to tell.

But even though the picture was taken nearly thirty-five years ago, the said business man of today has not changed a great deal in appearance.

Mr. Branthwaite was in the shoe business in Lincoln for many years, and he, too, looks much the same today as he did many years ago. The hair is gray, now perhaps, and both Mr. Fleming and Mr. Branthwaite have done away with the mustache.

Mr. Peterson lived in Lincoln at the time, the picture was taken, and was a good friend of the other two men, but has not been a resident of the city for several years.

Guitar Added Accomplishment.

Oh, Charles—you scamp. That's him—or he, the one with the guitar in his hand—last name Matson—vocation, prosecuting attorney for Lancaster county. With him in this notable picture, are two other beau brummels of Ohiowa about thirty years ago.

One certainly would never recognize the dignified Charles Matson, county attorney, of today, as the care-free young troubadour in the picture.

Just which period of fashion is displayed in this picture no one has been able to discover, but one thing we do know, and that is that Mr. Matson is the only one of the three with a dark tie—whether it is merely his misfortune, or whether the other two young men were just a little behind the times is a secret, and the jackets, too, still remain a mystery. Practically the only thing that is very clear in the picture is the derby placed at a fetching angle on the back of the head, allowing some of the locks to show.

The picture is, no doubt, supposed to represent a rustic scene, the tree and shrub in the back ground, and a great deal of grass at the feet of one of the young men.

Soulful looking musicians, they probably caused the heart of many a girl to skip a beat, and aroused all kinds of jealous ire in the bosoms of other masculine Ohiowans.

Derby, Cane and Topcoat.

But speaking of dignity—there it is or at least three-quarters of it, in the picture of Dr. C. F. Ladd. He is either going or coming, possibly going, if one may judge from the seriousness of his expression. And his hat, a derby, also, and cane are in his hand. His is an overcoat, rather than a top-coat, which leads one to believe that the picture was taken in the winter.

At first it was hard to tell whether the coat of the very dressy suit was covering up a muffler or a tie, but one of the other young dandies of that age claims that it is a tie. He said that the shirt was never supposed to show, that the ties were large and rather elaborate as one may judge from the picture. But all in all, one must admit that Dr. Ladd was quite the handsome young man.

And O. J. Fee merely grew up about thirty or so years before he should. He belongs to the age of the cinema. Rudolph Valentino nor Thomas Meighan nor Jack Holt would have been one-two-three with O. J. Fee on the screen.

Can't you just hear the flappers in the front row Oh-ing and Ah-ing over him? His eyes. Whoops, my dear. And the hair that is just wavy enough to be wonderful—and a lot of other things along the same line. It is to be imagined that Mr. Fee was quite a prominent member of the younger set when he was eighteen and in the years that followed. He was active in school and social affairs when he was in the university and was one of the leaders in his fraternity. And as a sheik—well he was just the last word, that's all.

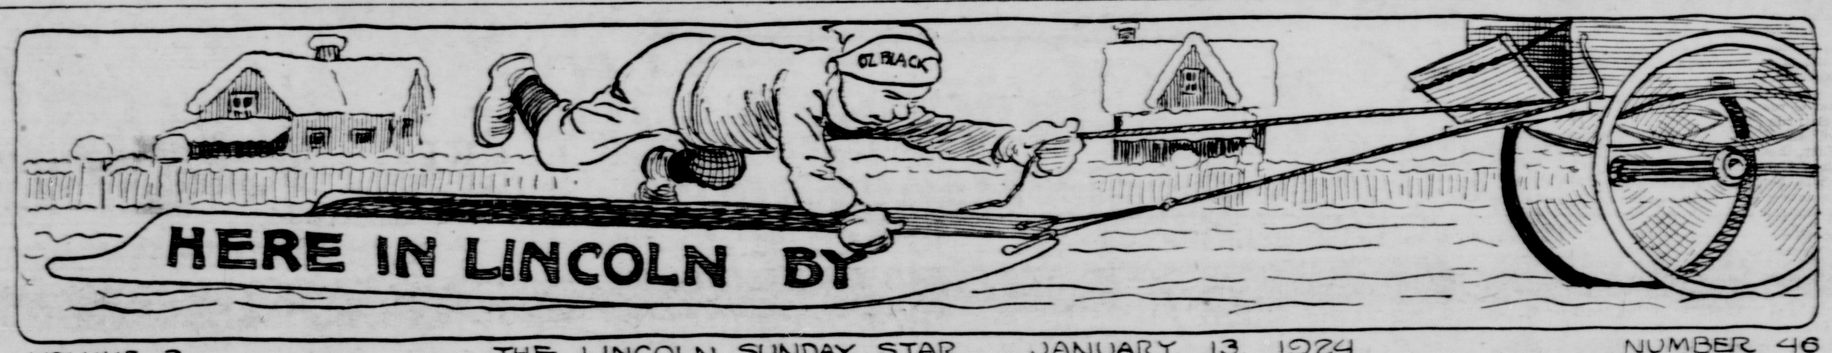

Styles Somewhat Changed.

H. H. Wilson was taking the world rather seriously in 1878, the year the picture was taken. Somehow or other the styles that year corresponded more with those of today than the others. If Mr. Wilson's mustache had been clipped just a little shorter, he might easily pass for one of the handsome youths of the present day.

Even at such an early age he shows much deep thought, and it is not surprising that he became one of the prominent attorneys in the city.

And so, some of the swiftest runners-up in the old time dandy contests have become some of the most efficient and prominent citizens. That is encouraging for the youth of today who every now and then is tagged as a "tea-hound," or a "lounge-lizard," or "cake-eater." Perhaps folks

BERYL STONE REPORTS SEEING A CAR STALLED IN THE DRIFTS LAST WEEK WITH A RADIATOR COVER MADE FROM THE LID OF A PACKING BOX.

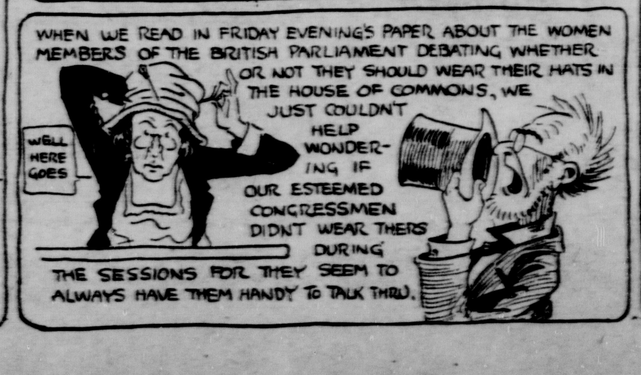

Deans of Nebraska Teaching Profession Tell Of Many Experiences In Years of Service

BY LULU MAE COE.

Altruistic service—

Perhaps no thought in all the English language expresses a richer or a fuller meaning than those two short words.

Doing for another, doing without thought of reward or gain or compensation. Doing that another may benefit, thinking of others before self.

And none know the meaning of service more than the teachers in the schools who have given their lives to the children of the state. None know cast the bread of their knowledge and it more than these women who have understanding and sympathy on the life waters of the little boys and girls growing up—cast it without thought that it would ever come back to them.

Service Without Reward.

It does—in the realized ambitions of the men and women who were the little children, in their valiant and upright lives, in the bits of fame granted them, and in the recognition they give the teachers who gave them their first knowledge of the world and its ways.

But they gave—youth and strength and years—with no thought of reward.

There are many of these loyal and faithful teachers in Nebraska who have served for long years. Their lives have been welded into the fabric of thousands of little lives. They have molded unknown hundreds of characters through their advice, suggestion, inspiration.

Dean of Nebraska Teachers.

Miss Mary A. Fitch, principal of the Park school in Omaha, is one of the deans of the teaching profession in Nebraska. For thirty-eight years she has taught and supervised the children of the state's largest city. She has seen her first tiny pupils grow to manhood and womanhood, and has seen their children come into the schools to be educated.

Miss Fitch first taught in the first grade of Pleasant school, Twenty-fifth and St. Mary's avenue, in Omaha. After teaching two years, she was made assistant principal of the school, which position she had for one year. At the end of that time, she was elected principal of Pleasant school. As supervising principal, Miss Fitch does no regular teaching, but during her teaching experience, she has taught all subjects in all grades.

Thirty-five years ago, Miss Agnes Meston, who is principal of the Morton school in Hastings taught her first pupils in Spring Ranch, Neb.,—and she little anticipated the years of service that were to be hers. Miss Meston frankly says that she did not like school teaching—then—. Time has changed her opinion so much that it is the only profession in the world.

"The first school I taught," Miss Meston says, "was large for a country school, although it was but one room in size. In the village were several houses, a store, a post office, and a flour mill. I spent a year and one-half there.

Started in Ranch School.

"I had forty on the roll that winter and I taught every grade from the beginners to a class in algebra, civil government, and bookkeeping. The children were urged smartly along the flowery—or thorny—pathway of knowledge as were Ichabod Crane's, though not for the same reason. I had twenty-five separate recitations on my daily schedule, and no specialist in art or music to come in to relieve me for a little while, as we have today.

"I did not like it. I was determined to stick it out that year but equally determined not to teach another day longer. I did not return in the fall, but when the man who had taken my place gave it up at the holidays, I went in and finished the year. I have been a school ma'am ever since."

After a year and one-half in Spring Ranch, Miss Meston went to Harvard, Neb., where she spent two years. After Harvard came Hastings and Hastings has been Miss Meston's teaching home since that time, about thirty-one years. For three years she has been principal of the Morton school. At present, in addition to her duties as principal, Miss Morton is teaching English and penmanship in the fifth and sixth grades. During her years of teaching, she has taught all eight grades, but she has spent the greatest number of years in the fifth grade.

Taught Through Generation.

"I have taught in Hastings sufficiently long," Miss Meston added, "to have in my class a good many children whose parents were former pupils of mine.

"I do not recall any who have become famous, though I know many who have become useful and successful citizens. Perhaps my most distinguished pupil is in the navy and is now conducting a very important investigation for the government. He was a blue-eyed, curly-haired little boy in my fifth grade some twenty odd years ago."

Miss Meston insists that she has had few exciting experiences, although her second year of teaching was in the year of the big Nebraska blizzard, when so many teachers and children were frozen to death on their way home.

Miss Meston says:

"I had a good chance to become a Nebraska storm heroine had not my good father interfered by sending the hired man with a big team of horses and a lumber wagon to the school house after us.

"We snuggled down in the bottom of the high wagon box, the horses went home on the gallop, and we were soon safe by our warm fires with no thrilling tale to tell in later years."

Years Bring Many Changes.

In thirty-five years of teaching, one can see many differences between the old days and this. In some ways teaching is harder now than it was three decades ago, for the type of pupil has changed, but in some ways, so Miss Meston feels, the teacher has a fairer chance now than in the days when she taught her first school.

"The teacher begining now has the advantage of us pioneers?" she elucidated.

"She is prepared for her work. We were not. Besides the instruction of the normal training teacher in the class room of the high school or college, the prospective teacher has the actual practice with the children under the supervision of the trainer.

"We had nothing of the kind. We went directly into the school room as teachers from classes that had no relation to teaching. We were supposed to know the art of teaching instinctively or to get the knowledge by experience.

"What are the teachers' rewards? We are not disdainful of the monthly pay check. But there is nothing that gives us such satisfaction as the knowledge that we have "sold the goods."

Served Quarter of Century.

Out in Aurora the principal of the high school is a woman, Miss Kathleen G. Hearn, and she has a record of a quarter of a century of teaching. Miss Hearn began her teaching in a tiny little school and she has had experiences that do not fall to the teachers who have spent all their years of teaching in the city schools.

Perhaps it is easier on the teacher who has always been in the large schools, for teaching alone concerned her. Lonesomeness and cold mornings and pupils of all grades need not be her concern, for she has but two or three allotted duties, she is among friends or located where friends are accessible, and she finds a warm school building on her arrival. Yet, those first days in the little country schools are among the happiest memories of the women, who taught them as very young girls.

Miss Hearn's first school did not come to her—she decidedly went after it, even though it meant a series of marathons over plowed fields and a race between her and a freight train—which disobligingly failed to put in appearance at the proper moment after all. It was all in the day's work—but Miss Hearn must have felt she deserved that first little school, after the strenuous efforts she put into capturing it.

She was very young at the time—but she took pains to impress the hard headed farmers who constituted the school board with her maturity and capability. As she tells the story she says:

"My first school was at Woodlawn, a little village seven miles northwest of Lincoln.

Started Out for a Job.

"I had lengthened my skirts and put up my hair for the first time when I went to apply for that school. The board did not sit around waiting for young teachers to apply for the school, and I must have walked fifteen miles in my determination to see every member of the board and clinch the business.

"Every member was plowing in a distant corner of his farm and every one of those farms lay in a different direction from the village. In addition to this, the freight train which I had counted on to take me back to Lincoln was late. I dared not risk landing in the freight yard alone about midnight, so I walked back, tired but happy with my job in my pocket."

That school at Woodlawn was Miss Hearn's first "real" school, she says, but the thought of school teaching had intrigued her long before that time.

"I think I must have been born a teacher for from my earliest recollection I played school with everything available, from playmates to spools."

Of her first teaching in Woodlawn, Miss Hearn says:

"The first day two girls, apparently about my own age, sat on a back seat with large geographies before them. I felt they were watching me. Later they told me they wanted to find out if I thought I 'knew it all' because I was a 'high school graduate.'

"Their friendship saved me from the horrible loneliness of the first time away from home. I learned a good many lessons that term.

"And I learned a good many lessons the next ferm, too, in a country district where the snow drifted twelve feet high around the building. I froze both ears badly going the mile and one quarter to school and I did not know it until after they began to thaw after I had lighted the fire."

All of Miss Hearn's experiences were not acting as janitor in the little schools and thawing out her frozen ears and those of the pupils, for one day she came home and found that the landlady was getting double pay for her room. The night agent at the station had it when Miss Hearn was safely at school. Two of her girls "doubled up," and opened their home and their hearts to her.

Miss Hearn's next school was at Hebron, where she had ninety pupils in place of twelve. She taught classes all day, from 9 o'clock until 4:15 o'clock, all of them in the assembly room, for fifty dollars per month. She says that she had a lot of fun along with the work that year and her salary was raised twenty per cent the next year.

She continues.

"Two years in a place is the rule for teachers and that was my story until I came to Aurora. The kindness and consideration, the whole hearted hospitality of the people, and the spirit of the young people have held me until Aurora is my home town.

"I have had a few pupils who had more than a state reputatoin. Herbert Johnson, the cartoonist, displayed his talent for the first time in public, I believe, when he decorated one of our blackboards at the Elliott school in Lincoln for Washington's birthday. Dr. C. C. Drummond, medical missionary, and the Rev. H. H. Harmon were my pupils in Cotner. Dr. Edward P. Rowe of the state medical association was my pupil at the university and Orlon A. Mather, financial editor of the Chicago Tribune, was in my second class of Aurora.

Proud of Her Pupils.

"But, I am proudest of our old service flag, and the bronze tablet replacing it, for most of the nearly two hundred names there and all of those with 'gold stars' are the names of the boys I've taught. Among the latter is the name of Lester Harter, for whom our local legion post is named, and who fell with his plane in France.

"Two children, whose parents I taught at one time, have graduated and about fifteen others are now enrolled.

"You know what Lincoln said about the common people: 'The Lord must have loved us or he wouldn't have made so many of us.' The best of all is that nearly all have become substantial citizens and home makers, and are respected in their communities.

"And for myself, the years have gone very quickly and very swiftly, and on the whole happily. I would teach again if the choice were before me today, for the work grows more interesting every year."

Left—Miss Agnes Meston, principal of the Morton school in Hastings, whose years of service in the public schools of the state ranks third. Miss Meston has spent the greater part of thirty-five years in the Hastings schools, although she began her career in a country school of one room, where she taught almost everything known to the curriculum.

Right—The principal of the Aurora high school is Miss Kathleen Hearn, who has been teacher and principal for a quarter of a century. Some of the most famous men in the country have been her pupils at one time, although she says the most of them have grown into just good citizens and home makers. Miss Hearn also remembers days of teaching in country schools.

NATIVE SONS AND DAUGHTERS WILL MEET IN LINCOLN

Reservations Now Being Made for Luncheon On January 16.

Boosting for Nebraska Is to Be Keynote of The Program.

Many responses of native Nebraska sons and daughters who wish to be present at the Historical society meeting on January 16 have come from twelve counties and many different localities.

In order to insure a seat at the Native Sons and Daughters of Nebraska luncheon on that date, reservations should be made by January 15. All members and friends of the society are welcome at the luncheon.

The luncheon committee is composed of Mrs. A. E. Sheldon, chairman, Mrs C. F. Ladd, Mrs. C. Petrus Peterson, Miss Martha Turner, Dr. M. E. Vance. A committee of hosts and hostesses, together with the place and time of the meeting, will be given out early next week.

Representative George A. Williams of Fairmont wrote as follows to the secretary of the State Historical society: "Will it not be possible to find a place on the program next Wednesday for some good, honest, wholesome boosting? Something that will give our people a higher appreciation and deeper love for our good old state."

The place of honor on the program is to be given to just such boosting.

A letter from John T. Regan, state secretary of the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, gives detailed information of the purposes and organization of that society. It works in close connection with the California State Historical society and has been one of the chief means of creating the California spirit on the coast.

To Illustrate Church Service By Chalk Talk

The Junior church service of Westminster Presbyterian church will be held today at 5 o'clock with Rev. Paul Johnston, pastor of the church, giving the first of a series of talks on "The Pilgrim's Progress." Oz Black will illustrate the talk with chalk drawings.

This junior service, which takes the place of the regular evening service, has been held for several months. The music has been furnished by a junior choir and the programs varied. Several Bible dramatizations and pantomimes have been given, together with sermons especially for the young people.

Doane College Notes

Prof. C. V. Kettering, director of the conservatory, will give a series of three weekly lectures beginning Monday evening, January 14, at the conservatory illustrated by the Homograph. He will discuss some phases of the appreciation of music. His public lectures given last winter were well attended, and it is expected that the novelty of the Homograph attachment to the phonograph will attract much attention.

A box supper, the proceeds of which will go to the Christian associations of the college, was held after the opening basketball game of the home schedule Thursday evening.

S.S.S. stops Rheumatism

"MY Rheumatism is all gone. I feel a wonderful glory again in the free motion I used to have when my days were younger. I can thank S. S. S. for it all! Do not close your eyes and think that health, free motion and strength are gone from you forever! It is not so. S. S. S. is waiting to help you. When you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, the entire system undergoes a tremendous change. Everything depends on blood-strength. Blood which is minus sufficient red-cells leads to a long list of troubles. Rheumatism is one of them." S. S. University of Nebraska Students Feature Indianapolis Convention

Of the outstanding figures at the five-day convention of student volunteers at Indianapolis, December 28 to January 1, two were graduates and one a student of the University of Nebraska. One hundred twenty-seven delegates attended the various colleges of Nebraska. The university contributed forty members, headed by Roy Youngman of Valley, a senior in the college of Arts and Science. Paul McCaffree, University Y. M. C. A. secretary, was chosen to lead the entire Nebraska delegation.

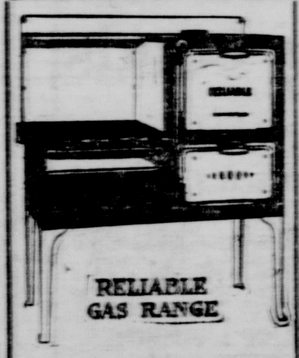

Dr. Walter E. Judd, A. B. '20, M. D. '23, now interne in the College of Medicine hospital at Omaha, who expects soon to enter the medical missionary field, gave the opening address to the audience of 7,400. Dr. Judd is president of the National Council of Student Volunteers. Another Nebraska alumnus, Dr. Paul W. Harrison, A. B. '05, who is a medical missionary in Arabia working under the student volunteer program, held the interest of the assemblage with his observations and descriptions of extensive travels.

Division of the delegates into forty-nine discussion groups sifted the topics into four main heads, chief of which was the abolition of war—a subject which occupied the attention of a majority of the student delegates. Wendell Berge, '25, of Lincoln, "who received the greatest ovation," says the Indianapolis Star, "declared that lack of world organization was responsible for precipitation of nations into wars and he urged the provision of some tribunal and codification of international law to enable the nations to prevent war." Mr. Berge was a member of the intercollegiate debate teams against South Dakota in 1922, and Iowa in 1923; he is also junior managing editor of "The Cornhusker," the year-book of the university, and was recently installed as senior councilor of DeMolay.

Other alumni of the university had prominent places. Stanhope Pier, A. B. '16, business secretary of the Student Volunteer movement, had charge of the exhibits of Christian achievement. Mary J. Baker, A. B. '21, traveling secretary for the movement, was one of five speakers to address the delegates on the last evening.

A complete report from the University of Nebraska delegation was given Wednesday noon by Wendell Berge and Josephine Schramek, '24, at a World Forum luncheon at the Grand Hotel.

RECLAIMING THE EVERGLADES

That is an amazing story now coming out of the Everglades of Florida. Always a land of mystery and romance, where sometimes fearful fates were reputed to have awaited those who were courageous enough to penetrate its innermost recesses, the richest natural reserve of wild life in America—all of that is now disappearing before the great dredges which are blasting and digging canals through this vast wilderness.

Only one engineering project rivals that which is now being attempted and is nearing completion in the Florida Everglades. That was the building of the Panama canal, which is still hailed by the engineering world as the greatest feat of engineering skill and science known to history.

The fundamental problem presented by the Everglades was comparatively simple but the remedy itself offered the most baffling difficulties in execution. In the center of the lower half of Florida lies Lake Okechobee, a body of water 30 or 40 miles across and outside of Lake Michigan the largest body of fresh water wholly within the confines of the United States. Its most eastern edge is forty miles from the point where the Atlantic touches the eastern coast of Florida. Its western shores are eighty miles from the nearest point where the Gulf of Mexico touches Florida. Its most southerly point is nearly 110 miles from the most southern point of Florida. Overflow waters from Okechobee converted a large portion of this vast expanse of land into swamps—a vast sea of waving grasses which grew as tall as man himself; tangled stretches of virgin forest and dense undergrowth of the tropics.

To drain this land was the problem which faced the engineers.

The simplest method was to reduce the level of Lake Okechobee, the waters from which had overflowed hundreds of square miles of land. Great canals were constructed through the Everglades, capable of transporting river steamers. Through these canals, it is estimated, more than 6,000,000,000 cubic yards of water have been emptied into the ocean. The level of Lake Okechobee has been lowerd five feet and more than 4,125,000 acres of land, or 6,600 square miles of territory, have been added to Florida for agricultural purposes.

It is not to be imagined that this project did not involve terrific expenditure of money. Perhaps it will be later said that the productivity of the land will not justify the expense. But the fact remains that the reclamation of the Everglades represents the single largest accretion of improved land in the United States in the last fifteen years. The increase in improved land in America between 1910-20 was barely 5 per cent as against 15 to 20 per cent during the previous decades. The 6,600 square miles being added to Florida exceeds the combined areas of all the United States irrigation projects undertaken in the Far West.

Already a portion of the reclaimed land has been put to use. Farming projects are now under way on 1,000 square miles of the reclaimed lands. Three great sugar centrals have been built, one of them alone involving an expenditure og $6,000,000 in construction and maintenance. The government is now teating out forty different varieties of sugar cane. It is claimed that the yield of sugar cane per acre and the saccharine content are higher than in Cuba.

Another phase of the Everglades engineering project should arrest attention. The problems of the Everglades are connected with events in the remote Pleistocene age, which is estimated by Dr. Osborne of the American Museum of Natural History to have had a duration of 525,000 years, and which is thought to have ended 25,000 to 50,000 years ago. Sometime during that period the old ocean bed which underlies Florida emerged from the sea.

It is this old sea bed which had to be blasted and cut for the canals. Rich deposits of bones of great animals and of human beings were brought to the surface. They furnish undisputed proof that America was populated hundreds of thousands of years ago, since they were found in the brown sand which formed the ancient sea bed of Florida.

In the extreme northern part of the Everglades the dredges encountered coquina rock, one of the hardest rocks quarried in America. In the more southern sections the old sea bed is a white coraline formation. Thousands of tons of the rock taken from the canals have been used in the building of permanent roads, providing a material without a rival in this country.

America's latest reclamation project is its most interesting.

Now, however, that the whole policy is under fire because of the enormous expense entailed, it would be the part of wisdom for the American people to show greater concern in the work which is being accomplished.

The millions expended in reclamation represents a permanent contribution to the wealth of the country in marked contrast to the billions which have been expended for war. In spite of the fact that over 90 percent of all of the taxes levied in America go to pay for past wars, or preparations for war, a niggardly policy has been inaugurated in the matter of reclamation of arid lands in the west, and swamp lands in other sections of the country.

It does not reflect credit upon the American people that they permit such a situation to exist, while they remain seemingly indifferent to the movement to promote world peace.

TIME TO CUT DOWN WAR OUTLAY.

It was vehemently denied some time ago by Secretary of War Weeks that 85 per cent of the United States government's annual budget is to cover the cost of war, but the figures reported from Washington in connection with the departmental maintenance appropriation bill just introduced in congress verify the statement which Mr. Weeks denied.

The total amount carried in this bill is $261,700,000, of which $222,500,000 goes to the army and navy and the rest is divided among the other departments. Anyone who knows the processes of arithmetic can do his own calculating and he will find that this is just 85 per cent of the whole sum.

To meet this vast expenditure for military and naval activities will require a sum equal to more than $2 for every man, woman and child in the United States or $10 a year for each family of five persons. The remaining departmental appropriations represent an outlay of about 35 cents for each individual, or $1.75 per average family.

Nothing is included in the foregoing figures in the way of money which must be provided to pay interest on our twenty-two billion dollars of national indebtedness, nine-tenths of which was contracted for war purposes, or to retire any part of the principal. The interest alone is one billion dollars a year.

On top of the huge annual expenditures for wars of the past and preparation for wars which may come in the future, congress is being asked by the army and navy heads to increase their respective establishments. We are told by these gentlemen that the present fighting forces and equipment of the United States are insufficient.

It will be difficult to convince the American people that the national safety requires our government to spend more money, year after year, on the army and navy, in a period when nearly all the nations of the world are exhausted, financially and otherwise, and when no other country is strong enough in men, money or resources to menace the United States.

The people are demanding tax reduction and curtailment of the cost of government wherever it can be brought about. They naturally expect the army and navy to stand their share of the reduction. It goes without saying that no substantial decrease can be made in governmental expenditures without making very substantial cuts in the appropriations for the army and the navy.

So long as the navy can afford to furnish vessels for the purpose of taking senators, congressmen and government officials on junket trips to the West Indies, the Panama canal zone, South America, Hawaii, Alaska, the Philippines and Japan, the plea that it needs more money will not make much impression on the public mind.

Senators and congressmen who have taken such trips will do well to watch their step when they are called upon to vote on the naval appropriations. If they attempt to pay for their pleasure trips by voting away the people's money they will bump up against something hard the next time they come before the people again asking for their votes.

MUSSOLINI'S FIRST DEFEAT.

Between straightening out governmental snarls and suppressing the turbulent tendencies of some of his more excitable countrymen, Mussolini, the Italian premier, has found time to delve into the weighty question of woman's dress.

A recent manifesto from the Italian government to the women of Rome announced that "the present fashion of covering their faces with paints is exceedingly unwholesome and must be discontinued." Evidently Mussolini is a firm believer that nothing is too difficult for him to accomplish. In his own country he forced a king and a parliament to bow to his will, and in the tangled affairs of Europe he compelled the statesmen of the three great powers to acknowledge his might. Bu remarks the St. Louis Post Dispatch. "Mussolini is opening the first campaign which is to spell his first decisive defeat."

No doubt Mussolini has failed to study the pages of history, for had he been familiar with the records of time he would have known that no ruler, no matter how autocratic he may have been, has succeeded in fashioning woman's dress. Even the debonair Louis XVI, while King of France, and reputed to be a popular idol of many of the ladies of the court, failed to enforce his decree that they should wear their jumpers tightly buttoned around their throats.

Many times it has been said that Mussolini has gone mad with power.

Now we know it.

We re-echo The Post's sentiment that "the corner drug store, the interdicted beauty parlor, and the ardent Italian sun will continue jointly to beautify the girl of Rome."

INDETERMINATE SENTENCES.

J. A. Leavitt superintendent of the Nebraska division of the Society for the Friendless in his annual report states that the organization is always interested in reform lerislation and as an example of the "reforms" which he would recommend, he declares that all prisoners should be incarcerated for an indefinite time and should be paroled or released at the discretion of the pardon board, the members of which should devote all of their time to such work.

It is small wonder that thoughtful, normal minded people become disgusted with alleged "reformers," and cry out for surcease from the effusions of sentimental theorists. Never in the history of any country has crime been more rampant than in the United States today, and this notoriously because of the lack of certainty and celerity of punishment. Yet one who has supposedly made a study of such matters recommends what virtually amounts to the elimination of all punishment whatsoever.

A real reform would be the absolute repeal of every indeterminate sentence act in any book of statutes in the land. Professional criminals are familiar with these laws, and their provisions are not unknown to potential sinners against society. These know of the difficulty of obtaining convictions due in large measure to the safeguards thrown about accused persons and to the emotional susceptibility of jurors, and they know furthermore that even should they be convicted and not paroled from the bench, their chances for spending any lengthy term in prison are small.

If is this knowledge of existing conditions, upon the part of those who are at heart law breakers, which is responsible for the crime waves which are sweeping the country from one end to the other and keeping honest people in constant fear for their lives and property. And coddling of the criminal must cease before there is any possibility of putting a check upon crime.

Anyone who would devote all of his time to the work of a pardon or parole board is, to begin with, an improper person for such a position. He is either one whose time is not worth a great deal from a financial standpoint or a sentimentalist not temperamentally fitted for dealing with sly and adroit criminals and their resourceful counsel. If there is to be such a board at all, it should be made up of practical, experienced men who are ruled by reason and common sense and not by a maudlin emotionalism.

But the first reform step should be the wiping out of indeterminate sentences, thus making it practically certain that when a malefactor is sent to prison he is to remain there for such a lenth of time as the trial judge deemed adequate expiation.

The average man is generally willing to forgive any joke aimed at him as long as it doesn't refer to his religion, his politics or his car.

If Mr. Mellon succeeds in getting our income taxes reduced it will be generally agreed that he is some pumpkins.

What political prophet will be the first to announce that "as goes South Dakota, so will go the conventions?"

STEPHEN LEACOCK

The Platter of Life

The Folk Fable of Jack Spratt and His Wife as It Would Appear in the Movies

I observe that a new controversy has broken out about the moving pictures . Somebody has just calculated that in America twenty million people attend the picture houses every day and the public is aghast. And even this figure, it seems, doesn't include the Mexicans, the Lower Californians, and the Canadians and the Esquimaux.

It appears also that $50,000,000 of new capital is being put into moving pictures every year—either that or $50,000,000,000. It is freely stated that the moving pictures are four-fifths piffle, and the other fifth poison; and that they are made up altogether of sex stuff, sob stuff, crime stuff, and hysteria and vanity all mixed up together.

I do not wish to take any personal part in this controversy. Indeed, as one who has made not one moving picture scenario but hundreds of them I should feel a delicacy in doing so. But it may be of interest to know just exactly how we scenario-makers make scenarios. Perhaps I may be able to prove that even a moving picture may move on a high plane.

The first thing that a writer has to do to make a scenario is to get a general topic or story. This is absolutely easy. There is no need to invent a new one; it is impossible anyway.

Open any book of folklore of fairy tales or nursery rhymes, and you can pick them out like plums, you could select "Little Bo Peep" or "Mother Hubbard" or "Jack Spratt."

The original text of the rhyme runs

Jack Spratt could eat no fat, his wife could eat no lean,
And so it was, between them both,
they licked the platter letan.

That's the ground work to begin upon, the next thing is to find the general name of the picture. That suggests itself at once from the rhyme.

PARTED AND UNITED
(Authorized by the Board of Censors)

After that it is necessary to work out the descriptive stuff that goes along with the title for advertising purposes. This is where the highest art of moving-picture-making comes in. It is done more or less like this .

"Have you ever felt your husband turning cold? Cold as the untasted bacon upon the platter? Or you—have you ever watched your wife growing fat? Have you seen her expand hour by hour? If so, you must not miss this new heart-throbbing, pulse-accelerating picture. In it you will see an aesthetic, temperamental, lean-eating man yoked to a full-blooded, double-chested woman, vibrating with the joy of eating by the pound. What will happen? Can they do it?

It is a beautiful, wholesome picture of modern life. The clergy of all denominations have come to it in thousands and shed tears."

Now the picture begins to spin and they show the familiar interior, called "The Spratt Mansion," well known also as "The Anstruther Residence," or "The De Kuyper Home." It stands for High Society, as seen in th emovies. It has in it a wooden Butler to take Spratt's coat and stick each time he goes in and out, and a hundred-dollar housemaid, much prettier than Mrs. Spratt.

Somewhere in here put in the legend

"John Spratt, aesthetic, temperamental, a poet, and a graduate of Oberlin college, is married to Gloria Spratt, his wife."

The picture ripples on. The Spratts at breakfast. Jack Spratt has a manuscript poem spread in front of him. He keeps raising his eyes to the ceiling and nibbling lean bacon. This means that he is making up poetry. Gloria Spratt is eating fat pork with molasses in it. She comes over to kiss Spratt. He repulses her. She wants to bite his ear. He won't let her. She tries to pick him up and hug him, but he slips out of her arms and darts out of the room.

At this point, the legend is put on the screen:

"This great big, yearning, full-blooded, over-ballasted woman is not satisfied. Her love turns cold."

Mrs. Spratt, now cold, writing at a little table a telegram to a former lover. You can see the address, "William de Bulk, New York," and the message is put on the screen to read:

to me."

"My marriage is a mistake. Come to me."

This is the point, I think, at which the clergy begin to weep. But before they have time to weep much the scene changes with a sudden flip. A title is written:

"Spratt in his study, dictates his poem to his stenographer, Clementina Click."

Ha! Ha! Do you notice his stenographer, as thin as a meridian of longitude, and wit hher hair in Cleo de Merode forehead flaps, and with eyes like a cow? Something will be doing here.

"The gentle girl, as thin as she is good, hangs on the poet's words.

Then the picture changes again. Arrival of William de Bulk. You see him buzz up in his motor. You see the wooden Butler take his stick. Then you see him enter and greet Gloria.

"William! How stout you have grown!"

He has a big face like a thug, but he must be all right because the writing says.

The big, true-hearted man has come at once to the woman he had loved."

William takes Gloria Spratt away in his motor. It is made to look like an elopment, but if you follow it closely it is all in the same day. It has to be, or the clergy would stop crying!

"Take me away, William, I want to forget, I want to plunge into the vortex of gaiety."

He plunges her in. William and Gloria in a restaurant eating beefsteak; wild scene of gaiety; Hawaiian orchestra; ginger ale; Greek waiters; gramaphones; all the fierce vortex of Metropolitan life. William tells the story of his life. You can see him do it in side pictures:

"Yes, Gloria, after you left me, I married. But I grew stout, and my wife abandoned me to seek a more intellectual life than I could give her."

William is seen to bow his head in grief. Then the picture changes to the Spratt mansion.

"Freed from the pressure of his wife's society, Spratt abandons himself to his poetic dreams.

The picture spins. Spratt (at 10:30) writing a sonnet. Spratt in the garden of the Spratt mansion (11:30) reading the sonnets to his stenographer. Spratt at lunch with his stenographer, reading the sonnet again. Ease and a tranquil mind are changing him already. At 11:30 he is distinctly stouter than he was. At 1 p. m. he is quite fat.

The scene changes. Gloria and William at afternoon tea. (4 p. m.)

"But even in the whirl of gaiety this great big, true-hearted, able-bodied woman cannot forget. She pines."

Pictures of Mrs. Spratt pining. She is losing flesh. At 4 p. m., she is far less stout than she was at 3:30. At 4:30 it is still more noticeable.

The picture changes. Spratt with Clementina Click in the garden. He is reading her his sonnet for the tenth time. He is quite stout. Clementina Click shows signs of restlessness. She rises and paces to and fro:

"Mr. Spratt, don't read it any more. I have made a fatal mistake. I do not care for poetry as I thought I did. I left the best husband in the world to seek the intellectual life. I want it no longer."

The picture changes. William and Gloria beside the Duck Pond in Central Park (5.30 p. m.) She is now quite tall and thin:

"William, I have done wrong. Even in this made world of gaiety, among these ducks, I cannot forget. Take me home."

Concluding scenes. Arrival of the motor at the Spratt mansion (6 p. m., daylight-saving time). Entry of William and Gloria. The Spratts meet. They each weigh 150 pounds now. They fall into one another's arms. William and Clementina meet. They fall into one another's arms. She is his wife.

"William, I have been wrong. Take me back."

Mrs. Spratt leads them all to the supper table:

"Come, We Will Eat the Platter Clean."

And the picture concludes with the legend:

"And from the dead ashes of their past these renewed souls lift themselves into a higher being. Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. All this week.

The Great Factor.
(Grand Island Independent.)

The greatest contribution ever made by any teacher was the emphasis which the great teacher from Nazareth placed upon the value of human life. Men, by reason of the spiritual and moral values which make them men, are more precious than gold. The true veins of wealth are purple and not red. They are not to be found in rock but in flesh. Through the development of science man has accomplished wonders and is destined to accomplish still greater wonders. But man himself, is inherently greater than anything he accomplishes. An artist who paints a great picture is greater than his picture. A sculptor who produces a piece of falseless statuary from a rough block of marble is greater than his statue. A musician is greater than his song. A statesman is greater than the government he creates. When God did his best he did not paint a sunset on the evening sky or gild the dawn with morning glory. But he made man and crowned him with the empire of the world. The production of men, not commodities, is the end of civilization. Yet think of this: If you could bring back to life the fine young men of all the nations of the earth who were shot down in the great war, and start them marching down the street, it would take them, marching twenty abreast, four long months to pass your front door. When will the world ever learn that the true greatness of a nation is not in its supremacy in literature or science or art, but in its moral elevation? It is not in its fleets and armies and territories, but in the real worth of its citizenry. Empires have always been dogged by the temptation to rely upon material strength. But more than once history has shown that the resources of a nation have proved helpless when its morale has crumbled; that the last line of defense is not material, but moral; and that the very strongest nations have rotted to their doom when its moral laws have been disregarded.

Misguided Youth.

The president of an eastern university is disheartened because the teachers of our public schools do not draw the wages of a brick layer, a plasterer or a stone cutter. There is nothing disheartening about it. It is only a true story of the question of supply and demand. Tradesmen are drawing high wages because there is a scarcity of tradesmen. We are not teaching our sons to be tradesmen. We have higher aspirations for them. We turn their heads collegeward and seek out the professions. It is to the professional class the teacher belongs, whether it be a college instructor or just a common school room where they hold forth. We are sending our boys into fields already crowded instead of pointing out to them fields that are open. Social standing and social position concerns us most. And we pay for it by witnessing a lower pay envelope handed out to the young American taught to shun the inviting field of trade craft. Let the university professors teach the boys and girls of America that it is not undignified to do the work of the tradesman and that the world demands such service and it will not be long until the teaching profession will come into its own via the pay envelope.

Public Hunting Grounds.
(Gordon Journal.)

All western sportmen should be vitally interested in a bill now before congress called the Game Refuge—Public Shooting Grounds bill. This bill is intended to get away from the growing tendency of allowing all good hunting ground to get into the hands of wealthy individuals or gun clubs. This change has already gone a long ways in eastern Cherry county and would, if carried on to the limit, mean that the ordinary man would have no place to shoot. This condition exists all over Europe and in parts of the United States. The bill referred to would have each sportsman pay a dollar a year for a federal hunting license before he could hunt migratory game birds. Part of this license would go for expense and part for the purchase of hunting grounds which would then be open to the public. All of the sporting magazines and all sportsmen who have studied into the question seem to be in favor of the law and voters are urged to write to their congressman and senators urging them to vote for it.

Not Quite the Same.
(Fremont Tribune.)

Travelling by rail won't be quite the same to the patrons of trains Number 225 and Number 222, on the Linwood-Superior line of the Chicago ? Northwestern, now that old Jack Hedburg is gone. And life won't be quite the same to the residents along the line who for years have found in this kind-hearted railroader a friend who was never too busy to give help to a person who needed it.

For 32 years, Jack Hedburg has been the conductor on this line, and during that time he has collected half-fares from children who grew up to be adults who gave him full fares, and all in good time brought other children with them with their half-fares.

He made his last run on the old line Monday, and is now on the retired list at his own request. His work is done, but the memory of him will live on in the community he served for many a year.

Faulty Judgment.

Nothing under heaven now can convince Mr. Ford's supporters that he couldn't have been elected if he had chosen to run. This to many, is the most disappointing aspect of his recent decision to support Coolidge for president. Had he consented to run it would have shown the "world" conclusively that he hadn't a chance. In deciding not to run, whatever his motive, he shows that he has keener perception than his supporters. But his choice for president still shows that in some things his judgment might be improved.

Retrenchment Demanded.
(Kearney Hub.)

Government statistics show that nearly all the cities of the United States are living beyond their incomes and building up a mounting system of indebtedness. The figures apply more particularly to the larger cities but include both large and small. All are in the same boat. The countrywide demand for reduced taxes and lowered cost of government is bringing the matter to the attention of citizens and taxpayers everywhere and there is observable a sharp halt in the onward march of municipal spenders.

Heart and Home Together.
(Merna Messenger.)

The man who comes to this country and lives under the protection of the American flag, who derives a benefit from the nation's resources and who has shared in the country's wealth and prosperity, should have but one flag and that the American. If Ameria does not come first in the heart of this man then he is not a good citizen. The same can be applied to any community. If the place he calls his home is not foremost in his feelings, then he—like the foreigners whose home is in America and whose heart is elsewhere—is not a good citizen. A man should make his home where his heart lives.

Here and There

Trade Barriers.
(Des Moines Register.)

"Imports represent an economy, just as inventions represent economy, and to cut off the first is just as foolish as to cut off the second. The case for both is the same: that to get what is wanted at the lowest cost is the essence of economy. In particular cases losses may be inflicted on competing products, but it is folly to consider what may be lost on one group of individuals without considering what is gained by others."—Manchester Guardian Commercial.

It would be fortunate if we Americans could find a time when trade could be considered free from politics and think our way through on this matter of producing everything in the world where it can be produced at the least cost of time and effort, in other words where conditions are most favorable.

If it was proposed to destroy a new invention because it would cheapen industrial processes and throw a lot of big businesses out of commission we should denounce the proposal as monstrous. Everybody understands that old ways must give way when better new ways are found. We should even let the railroads go if a cheaper means of transportation could be found. Every generation sees a lot of old established ways abandoned at great cost of money because new ways have come in.

But the moment we cross national boundaries then we begin to look upon it as a bounden duty to sustain the old ways even at great cost; for fear that in the readjustments of trade we may be weakened nationally. We are willing to pay consideribly more for the purpose of sustaining industry as we have it.

It must be remembered that a protective tariff was adopted in this country not to keep prices up against foreign competition, but to serve as a wall until our own industries were on their feet. The records may be searched in vain for an argument in the old days in favor of permanent trade barriers.

We shall not go to free trade in the United States. But it is time to consider what to do about a high tariff wall to keep prices upon manufactured goods, at a time when our agricultural surplus has to sell in the open market. The net result at this time is to keep the farmer on a prewar level and the manufacturer on a war level or nearly so.

The Farmer Is Not Fooled.
(Milwaukee Journal.)

If the farmer had swallowed all the political propaganda about how much better he is off financialy today than he was yesterday, or how much worse off he might be than he is, he would be psychologically drunk with prosperity. But your farmer is a rather careful thinker. He mulls things over thoroughly. And whatever may be said about his relative standing yesterday and today, he has his eye on the future. This is indicated by the following resolution adopted at the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau federation:

"We urge the immediate adoption by the American government of a vigorous foreign policy designed to carry out America's obligations resulting from her war aims and the terms of the armistice which ended the war, and thus to restore peace and prosperity to Europe."

The farmer knows that if he is to dispose of his wheat and corn—the latter on the hoof—his best customer must be able to buy. He isn't fooled by "Eat More Toast," or "Have Another Spareib," slogan campaigns. But we want to note that the federation does not put its resolution on that basis alone. Speaking for farmers throughout the land, it calls on us to "carry out America's obligations resulting from her war aims and the terms of the armistice." Where else than among men who work close to nature and understand her voice would you expect to find a deeper sense of moral obligation and political honesty?

"But in 1920 the farmers voted against going through with our obligations," we hear someone say. They did not. Were they not told, along with the rest of the country, and by eminent men, that to vote as they voted was the quickest way to accomplish these things?

Italy's Population Problem.
(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

Further limitation of immigration to America is almost as interesting a topic in many parts of Europe as it is in the United States. In Italy, for instance. There the opinion is quite universally opposed to further imitation. With Italy the exportation of its surplus sons and daughters practically amounts to a vast addition to its foreign trade. They leave with some reluctance a land that finds it hard to clothe and feed them all, and as they go they take some part of its wealth with them. But the remittances that pour back to the kin they leave behind the United States "buys" them, almost every one. In addition, the outward flow benefits the mother country by relieving an unemployment problem and by enriching the Italian shipping countries. Consequently Italian opinion is greatly occupied with the possibility of further reduction of immigration quotas, and it looks with hope toward Prince Gelasio Caetani, the ambassador at Washington, though it seems to realize that there is very little he can do. Basing the admissible quotas on the census of 1890 would allow Italy only a few more than 9,000 a year, and the prospect of such a limitation, it is reported, fills the county with pained sur prise. There would be vast fields for Italian immigration, and one of the consequences of the American restrictions has been to send more immigrants to Brazil and Argentina, where they have found warm welcome. But the immigrant himself would rather come to the United States, it seems. And so Italy is anxious to do whatever it can to keep the American doors open. It is pointed out that when the United States cuts immigration or boosts the tariff it adds to the difficulties Italy faces in ever funding the war debt it owes in America. The nation has no intention of repudiating the debt, but it would much prefer to pay it back in money earned in the United States. Thus international problems tie up to one another.

Honorable Judges, Ladies and Gentlemen - - - State Reformatory Inmates Organize Real Debating Team

The men on the team are as follows: Front row left to right, Richard Downs, C. R. Sweeney, and Charles Houch; center row, Clarence McEwen, Mason Ham, Clarence King, captain, J. R. Conditt; back row, extreme right, E. H. Uhelenbrock. In the same row are, left, H. B. Scheideler, assistant superintendent of the reformatory, A. W. Miller, superintendent, and right, Cal R. Phillippi, superintendent of the school and coach of the team.

A queer background for a debating team.

But it doesn't hurt the debating team. And the debating is one step on the way to cure the kinks in brains that plan to take money and goods of another.

Time was when man incarcerated for breaking the laws of society spent their days in the heaviest labor and their nights in silent brooding and plotting against the society that had put them in a reformatory or prison.

They went in more or less bad men, and they often came out harder and more bitter men than they went in.

The Modern Prison.

Prisons and reformatories were places where they were forced to spend a certain amount of time, without benefit to themselves or the state. They were but resting places on the road to greater and more heinous crime.

No one thought it wise to give the men recreation or entertainment or education. No one felt it necessary to make their time of imprisonment profitable, to make it a period of preparation, so that when they were once again free they would have a foundation upon which to build. No one had considered that these men might be useful citizens later, given an opportunity to achieve many things life had denied them.

Eventually, however, men with vision began to demand that the prisoners be given education. They became aroused to the condition of the men behind the barred windows, and a new regime slowly came into being.

And no where are the men in reformatories given any more opportunities to display their inate mental and moral calibre than at the Men's reformatory on Hawthorne road. If any new and progressive idea presented is for the betterment of the men out there, and if it will help them to find position and make them more alert and self-sustaining when their terms are over, A. W. Miller, the superintendent, is generally willing to try it.

Emphasize Mental Growth.

The reformatory debating team is one of these ideas, which is being tried out for the first time this year. Mr. Miller stresses the fact that the men in the institution need mental growth, as much as anything, for education is almost unknown for some of them.

If they can become sufficiently strong mentally to think clearly for themselves and to enable them to keep a position when they have obtained it, their term in the reformatory has not been valueless. If sluggish mentalities can be stirred by this debating, if their brains can be awakened to an interest in current happenings and life, and they begin to think purposely, their lives, upon release, will be easier than they were before.

Some of the men became interested in public speaking, but the school conducted for the men does not include such a course. The time of the instructors is fully occupied in teaching the routine grade subjects to the reformatory pupils.

There are evenings, however, many evenings, when time hangs heavily. Hours in which the four walls of a building become dully monotonous and change is the most welcome thing in the world.

The men interested in public speaking incidentally, in the evenings. Eight of them joined the class, and they meet twice a week in one of the class rooms for inter-member debates and study. While preparing for a debate with the high school, they met nightly, working out of the points of their question.

Class in Argumentation.

Cal R. Phillippi, who is in charge of the day time school for the men at the reformatory, instructs the men in the procedure, coaches them, and arranges their dates. Ordinarily, the class is given a topic and the affirmative and the negative sides are assigned to different members of the class. They prepare their arguments and debate in the class period, but are not judged.

The only public appearance of the team has been against the Lincoln high school, which they met January 4. The question was "Resolved: That Immigration Should Be Prohibited for Five Years," the reformatory having the affirmative side. The reformatory team was defeated, but it wasn't a bad loss.

It was the first time some of the men had ever faced an audience in all their lives. It was the first time many of them had ever tried to express a thought or an idea outside of the little routine ideas of daily living. It was the first time they had ever attempted to sway an audience, to convince judges by the sway of their own eloquence. It was the first time some of them had ever thought deeply, had ever tried to prepare a talk on ideas so remote to them.

Their lives before have not made it easier for some of them to get up and debate.

Gives Education Incentive.

At least one of the men has had no more than a third grade education. A couple are fairly well educated, but have made little or no use of that education. Some, mired under by years of indifference, have strong minds, if awakened from the inertia which almost no education and years of drifting have piled upon it.

One of the men at one time was a member of an evangelistic team, but he could not practice what he preached. One deserted a wife and child, although a reconciliation has now been affected. All have taken the easiest way at least once.

All kinds of life histories. All kinds of struggles and failures. All kinds of defeats and sorrows—they are the background of these men.

And then there was one more defeat—the first one when they debated.

But it didn't discourage—it only made them want to work a little harder, to appear a little better, to be prepared a little more carefully when the next one comes around.

For the high school debate isn't the last.

The high school and the reformatory have a return engagement at the high school in a couple of weeks. The first one was at the reformatory. Plans are being made to have the men meet Cotner, Wesleyan, and any other debating teams around here that have open dates.

Members of the team are Clarence King, captain, Richard Downs, Mason Ham, John Conditt, Charles Sweeney, Charles Houch, E. H. Uhelenbrock, Clarence McEwen.

Homesick Collie Hikes More Than Half A Thousand Miles From Near Lexington, Nebraska, To Illinois

BY LYNNELLE GREER.

"Little Rover, roam all over, but don't forget to come back home"—certainly applies to Rover, the collie belonging to LeRoy Goethe of Dakota, Ill.

Last August the Goethe family decided to go to California to spend the winter, and couldn't or wouldn't consider leaving Rover behind, although he detested automobiles and refused to ride as often as was proper.

Mr. Goethe built a carrier to fasten on the side of the sedan, and Rover was tied in this so he could not jump out while travelling.

Rover made the best of it until he reached Nebraska. About twenty-five miles from Lexington the travellers were forced to stop for more than an hour for repairs. Rover stopped with them, glad, apparently, of the opportunity to have his feet on the ground once more.

When the car was ready, Mr. Goethe's little five-year-old son put Rover in the carrier, and tied him, but evidently not securely enough, for when the family reached Lexington, Rover was gone. No one knew when he had jumped out, so no one could estimate how long he had been gone.

"We drove back twenty-five miles," said Mr. Goethe, "but could find no trace of him, and could find no one who had seen him. We searched as long as we could for him, but he was not to be found."

Perhaps Rover had tried to keep up with the car on foot and had not been able to, of course. Perhaps tired out he trotted off to some cool looking spot to rest awhile, never dreaming that he would not be able to find the family again.

After the family had gone on without him, Rover "roamed all over," trying to find some trace of them. He stopped at a farm house near Lexington for awhile, and then one day was missing from there.

Rover had become homesick for the old home in Dakota, Ill., and he had made up his mind to go home.

Ten weeks later the Goethe family in California received a letter from a neighbor telling them that Rover had come home again, and that they would keep him during the winter until the family returned in the spring.

"You can imagine how glad we were to get that letter," Mr. Geothe said, "and to know that Rover will be waiting for us when we go back home in the spring."

If dogs could talk, Rover, no doubt would have many, many things to tell. He must have had some interesting experiences during his five hundred mile or more trip on foot. Just like a regular hiker he could stop at a country home when he was hungry, and could find a bed anywhere, free from cost.

It took him nearly three months to make the trip, but it was very evident that if the trip had taken three years he would have been just as eager to make it, for home was at the end of it.

Rover may have thought that the family had gone home, no one is sure just what he did think. If he had known that the family had continued in the opposite direction, he might have decided to go that way, too, and if he had he would have been lost, or would have had that much farther to go on his return trip.

But Rover and the Goethe family are happy now, Rover is home, and it will not be so many months before his beloved family will be with him.

University Notes

Director George E. Condra of the Conservation and Survey division, spoke Wednesday evening at the Grand Hotel before the State Association of Tax Commissioners on "Unit Values in Taxing Lands and Soils of Nebraska" which he illustrated by appropriate slides taken in soil survey work. The soil survey reports of the division are factors in determining and adjusting land taxes in various counties. Dr. Condra and Prof. M. I. Evinger of the department of civil engineering Monday noon will speak before the Hastings chamber of commerce and at a general community meeting in the evening. Dr. Condra will describe "Industrial Nebraska; Nebraska Beautiful; and Town Planning"; while Professor Evinger will discuss in detail town-planning preparatory to work with the Hastings Chamber of Commerce on a project to make Hastings an ideal community center.

L. A. Wolfanger, A. B. '18, M. A. '22, assistant instructor in the department of geography of Columbia university, who led in soil survey work in Webster county last summer and fall, returned recently to visit the campus of the university.

"World History," the latest and most painstaking publication by Dr. Hutton Webster, professor of social anthropology at the university, has just been published by D. C. Heath and company of New York. Professor Webster covers the entire field of history, but he leaves ancient and prehistoric periods with only a general outline preparatory to a detailed and special study of the last three centuries of the progress of man. Approximately one-third of the volume is devoted to the period before the eighteenth century; the remaining two-thirds are concerned with the consideration of problems arising before the eighteenth century of special interest to this generation. Interspersing legendary narrative into the greater mass of historical data, Dr. Webster has made of his work an historical study of the idea of progress. The book contains over 100 maps.

In reviewing the volume the literary critic of The Christian Science Monitor of Boston says: "Professor Webster is a scholar who has supplemented his learning with a faith in mankind. In recounting the contributions of the worlds civilizations to human progress he has brought together the evidence out of which the student may form, not alone an understanding of history, but a sympathetic appreciation of the human background of world events and an equally sympathetic confidence in the future of mankind."

General dispersion of knowledge of the work of the university is illustrated by a lengthy Associated Press dispatch in the Ponca City (Oklahoma) News which greeted Martha Baird, '26 (Fine Arts) while she was spending the holidays at home. The story summarized rural human welfare studies published as Nebraska Agricultural Experiment State Bulletins 180, 185, 191 and 196—all based upon surveys conducted by Prof. J. O. Rankin, department of rural economics, cooperating with the United States department of agriculture. Professor Rankin was asked to summarize them briefly before the sixth annual conference of the Country Life association of America and to submit a fuller summary for publication in the proceedings of the association. From this summary, now in the hands of the association secretary in New York, the Associated Press apparently secured its information.

Prof. F. A. Downs of the department of dairy husbandry of the college of agriculture will speak on "Some esearch Problems in the Manufacture of Dairy Products" at the regular meeting of the University chapter of Sigma Xi in the general lecture room of Bessey Hall, Tuesday January 15, at 8 p. m. Professor Downs will discuss applied science as a means of solving the problems of the manufacturers with special reference to the manufacture of powdered and sweetened condensed milk. The meeting of the society, an organization for the encouragement of original investigation in science, is open to the public. Non-members are welcome, states Prof. Emma V. Anderson, secretary.

Development of the territory included in the Louisiana Purchase is portrayed in a series of thirty atlases, some of the world and others of the United States alone, dating from 1769 to 1888, recently given to the Nebraska Historical society by Mrs. William A. Wolfe of Beatrice. These volumes were the property of Mr. Wolfe now deceased, who spent considerable time in making the collection at great expense Because of their peculiar interest to Nebraska these maps are to be the feature exhibit of the annual meeting of the Nebraska State Historical Society in the Art Gallery of the University Library, January 16.

A demonstration on how to measure the special traits of the human mind was given Monday evening to the Young Womens Business club of Lincoln by Dr. Charles Fordyce, chairman of the department of educational measurements and research of the teachers college.

Dr. R. A Lyman, dean of the College of Pharmacy, who has been appointed by the American Conference of Pharmaceutical faculties to the advisory committee of the Carnegie Commonwealth fund for the study of pharmaceutical education from a functional viewpoint, was called to Buffalo, New York, to attend a meeting of the committee January 11, 12, 13. Other members of the committee are: Drs. Julius A. Kock, University of Pittsburgh; Clair A. Dye, Ohio State university; Wortley F. Rudd, University of Virginia. Henry H. Rusby, Columbia university.

Calcium Wafers Bring Beauty

How Stuart's Calcium Wafers Transform a Pimpled, Muddy Skin to Pinkish Loveliness.

It was certainly a most fortunate discovery when it was found that one of the necessary constituents of skin health is calcium sulphide.

About twenty-five years ago this important substance was incorporated in Stuart's Calcium Wafers and since then thousands of girls have enjoyed beautiful complexions.

This wonderful substance removes from the system the waste products that often get into the skin to cause pimples, blackheads, blotches and such complexion disfigurements. Then the calcium is a natural aid to skin repair and health.

You cannot get this wonderful result from cosmetics or drugs nor can you have a clear, beatuiful complexion without this wonderful calcium. So when you are near a drug store ask for a 60 cent box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers or send name and address to F. A. Stuart Co., 634 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich., for a free trial package.—Advertisement.

Eat and Get Thin

This is turning an old phrase face about, but modern methods of reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion, if you are likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) one dollar. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice, trim, slim figure. He will hand you a box of Marmola Prescription Tablets, compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription, one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat steadily and easily. Then continue the treatment until your weight is what you desire. Marmola Prescription Tablets are not only harmless but really beneficial to the general health. You don't need starvation diet or weakening exercises. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully, and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.—Advertisement.

Cantilever Shoe

Reason for Comfort

IT IS designed to follow every line and curve of the human foot. When you lace up a Cantilever, the flexible arch draws up and fits the undercurve of the foot—gentle supporting the arch structure while allowing it to function freely. This also holds the foot firmly in the heel seat and prevents it from slipping forward. The flexible arch permits healthful exercise for the entire foot, thereby strengthening the foot muscles and promoting freer circulation.

The expert workmanship on Cantilevers and the skillful process of putting on the flexible soles is the result of years of study and experience. The Cantilever factories are devoted exclusively to this one type of shoe—the flexible shank shoe. Making—and fitting—comfort shoes, is a profession.

PARLIAMENTARY LAW FOR WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY MRS. JOHN SLAKER.

SECURING THE FLOOR.

All business is introduced by means of motions. A motion is simply a proposition. A motion that presents a new question to the house is called a main motion and there can be but one before the house at one time. By "house" we mean the assembly or meeting.

There are three stages through which every main motion must pass and these should be thoroughly mastered before taking up the many things that may be attached to it. The three stages through which every piece of business must pass are:

I—Securing the floor.
II—Introducing business.
III—Putting the question.

Each of these stages may be subdivided into three steps.

When a member wishes to bring a piece of business before the house she must first secure the floor, to do this the following steps are necessary: 1. Member rises. 2. Member addresses the chair, by her title, never by her name. If the president is presiding, say, "Madam President," if any one else is in the chair say "Madam Chairman" and then wait. You do not have the floor until the third step is taken which is that the chair recognizes you by calling you by name or by inclining her head toward you with a distinct nod. A common mistake is for the member to assume that she has the floor as soon as she has spoken to the chair. To secure the floor all three steps must be taken, 1. Member rises. 2. Member addresses the chair. 3. Chair recognizes the member.

If you are in a large meeting, as soon as you address the chair give your name and the chair will repeat it after you. This should be done in all but small informal gatherings. You may know the chairman well and assume that it is not necessary to announce your name, but even though the chairman may be your closest friend, there are others present who do not know you and they have a right to know who is speaking. Perhaps you may be standing in such a light that the chairman does not recognize you readily; perhaps she may not recall your name on the instant; in view of all these possibilities, avoid embarrassment and delay by promptly announcing your name. It stamps you at once as being familiar with correct form.

If you are at a district or state convention, give your name and town. If you are at a national convention, or anywhere outside of your state, give your name and state, omitting the town.

In the privacy of your own home practice these three steps until you can do them with the utmost ease. Rise from your chair, say, "Madam Chairman." Do it in a clear, well modulated voices, speak distinctly, form your words at the front of your mouth and aim them at the imaginary person you are addressing, pronounce your own name and pause; then repeat your name as the chairman would do if she were present. Do this over and over until it becomes easy and until you cease to be started at the sound of your own voice. Practice repeating your name as you would do at a district meeting, at a state meeting and at a national meeting.

In a large meeting two or more persons may rise simultaneously, in that case the chairman will recognize the one who, she believes, has risen first; it is possible she may be mistaken, but she will make every effort to be fair. If you rise and are not recognized, be seated until the member who has secured the floor sits down, then rise immediately and address the chair. Never make the mistake of remaining standing while the other member is speaking. This is a breach of good parliamentary manners. We will enter more fully into this matter when we come to discuss the subject of debate.

In our next article we will enter upon the second stage of the progress of the main motion which is "Introducing business."

Goal of Legion Auxiliary Is 15,000 Members

A state-wide drive for more members is being launched this week by the American Legion and its auxiliary, the goal for the Legion being set at 25,000 members and for the women members at 15,000. This drive is different from former drives in that all legion men out for new members are going to solicit auxiliary members at the same time and vice-versa. Each auxiliary worker has been requested to supply herself with auxiliary application blanks and legion application cards as well. When a man joins the legion he will be asked to fill out a paper giving the names of his mother, wife, sister and daughters, if any, and their addresses. These names will then be looked up by the auxiliary membership committee unless the new legion man can be persuaded to sign up for other members of the family. In that case he will be permitted to do so.

The auxiliary membership committee is headed by Mrs. R. H. Hamilton of Long Pine who will be assisted in the work of keeping the records an "pepping them up" by Mrs. E. T. Ashby of Hastings. Under them, each district will be in charge of a captain and much rivalry is expected between the districts as to their membership. Captains are: First district, Mrs. J. E. Baird, Lincoln; second district, Mrs. John Kilmartin, Omaha; third district, Mrs. A. E. Buchanan, Fremont; fourth district, Mrs. Harry Norval, Seward; fifth district, Mrs. R. T. Jones, Edgar; sixth district, Mrs. A. L. Hollister, Spencer; seventh district, Miss Laura Klntz, Lodge Pole.

Wesleyan Affairs

Echoes of the Indianapolis meeting of student volunteers were heard at the student chapel exercises Wednesday morning. Clinton Swengle lead the singing. Miss Sara Marshall presided at the piano. Miss Margaret Bogle gave the invocation. Paul Copeland had charge of the program. He announced that the purpose of the convention was to arouse zeal for the extension of God's kingdom on earth. "We must broaden the message of Christianity to the world. If we live Christ we can move this generation. Religion should be so vital that men would be willing to sacrifice for it."

John Johansen reported that he had been impressed by the size of the tabernacle in Indianapolis where the meetings were held, but more by the company and its purpose.

Miss Pearl Sherlock declared that the genesis and genius of the American people were in the convention. The spirit of the convention was to bring Christianity up against the real questions of modern times in an effort to make human conditions today endurable.

Chancellor J. B. Schreckengast joined the Wesleyan delegation at Chicago and was present through the six days of the meeting. Prof J. C. Jensen was able to spare one day for Indianapolis from the science meetings of Cincinnati. Stanley High of Boston, Williard Simpson of Yale university, Frank August, Will Bernhardt of Boston, Daniel Jensen of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Max Gentry of Omaha, Miriam Albertson of New York and Amelia Wood of Battle Creek were among the Wesleyan alumni who attended. CLUBDOM

There were only twelve cases of typhoid in Lincoln in 1923, he said, and seven were contracted elsewhere. Fumigation, he added, has been discarded as practically useless. One-fourth of the deaths in Lincoln, Dr. Chapman said, are non-resident cases in hospitals here. When Dr. Chapman took charge of the city health department in 1915, the apropriation was fifteen cents per capita and now it is sixty-six cents per capita. In 1923, the appropriation was $38,000, of which he returned $7,000 at the end of the year. The federal health survey three years ago placed Lincoln at the head of cities under 100,000 population.

Allan Cowgill, commissioner of streets and public improvements, said his first campaign was to clear alleys of ashes, tin cans and shrubbery and that his men really did more logging than earth work. He considered that one of his largest accomplishments had been the rounding off of many dangerous square corners at a cost of $200. He also said the city has control of four feet inside the sidewalk, in addition to parking space.

CONCESSIONS GRANTED EX-SERVICE WOMEN.

Through the efforts of the Womens Overseas Service league the war department has made a ruling that disabled ex-service women will be admitted to the national home for disabled volunteer soldiers at Danville, Ill., and at Milwaukee, Wis. Three generations of women "gold stripers" will be benifitted by this order, the heroines of the Civil war, the Spanish American war and the World war. It is estimated that there are more than 1,000 women in America who served as nurses or in some other capacity with the army, navy and marine corps in the three great wars, are eligible to these homes. According to the officers of the Women's Overseas Service league, however, the number has been greatly underestimated and the league is now making an exhaustive survey in order to check up on all disabled heroines. More than 11,000 nurses were in overseas service during the World war and many of these today are victims of shell shock or pulmonary troubles caused by the poison gas.

Some 62,000 women served in the three wars. Two homes have been selected—one in Danville, where ex-service women needing general medical treatment or domiciliary care, will be received and the one in Milwaukee where those needing treatment for tuberculosis will be cared for. Separate buildings have been set apart for them and they will have their own gardens and recreation grounds.

It is not necessary to trace disability to the service. All that is necessary is an honorable discharge from the army, navy or marine corps. Admission to the homes does not necessitate permanent residence. Residents may be discharged when cured or upon request. Traveling expenses will be paid by the government. Application blanks are obtainable from Miss Louise Wells, national president, at the league's headquarters, 660 Rush street, Chicago, or from the national home for disabled soldiers at Dayton, Ohio.

A thousand or so ex-service women who incurred injuries while on duty with the army in the World and the Spanish American wars are now eligible for admission and treatment at the national soldiers homes and sanitariums by a war department order.

M'KINLEY P. T. A. OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY.

The McKinley Parent-Teachers' association met Wednesday afternoon, in the McKinley auditorium The meeting was opened with three numbers by the McKinley orchestra led by Miss Plass. The president appointed as finance committee, Mrs. Ludlum, Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Mullinger. Mrs. Needham appointed the program committee and the social and courtesy committee to act as a ways and means committee.

February 17 being the twenty-seventh anniversary of the Parent-Teachers' association, it will be celebrated by having the next meeting the evening of February 13, when the fathers and friends are invited to a special program. The president introduced Supt. Lefler, his subject being "The Influence of the Home on the School and the School on the Home." He said in part that one reacts on the other; that it was a mutual obligation. Supt. Lefler was very optimistic in regard to the welfare of the children of today. He said that children should have responsibilities as fast as they are able to carry them. One example he gave was that children should be trained to be responsible for their own safety in crossing streets. Mr. Lefler was warmly applauded.

Mrs. Needham spoke of the change in methods of today from those of a short time ago, and the need to keep up with the times. She said all pictures should be censored, and that at the next meeting she would try to have a list of the pictures to be shown the following week suitable for children to see. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, and Miss Prytle invited all to see the films given at 7 o'clock every Monday evening for the next five weeks.

The McKinley banner was won by Miss Burke's room for the second time with Miss Christianson's room as a close second. Miss Burke said that she and the children of her room would be glad to concede the banner to Miss Christienson's room for the coming month, and would try and gain it against the next month. It was moved and seconded that all members and friends of the McKinley Parent-Teacher Association, who were present at the meting, but were obliged to leave, should be counted in the ballot taken to ascertain which room should have the banner. After some discussion the motion carried. Mrs. Needham invited all to the dining room where cakes and tea were served.

Lincoln Couple Leave This Month to Spend Four Years As Baptist Missionaries in Porto Rico

BY LULU MAY COE.

January 26, the Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Ford sail from New York for Porto Rico.

It is not an unusual thing to go to Porto Rico—for a trip.

But the Rev. and Mrs. Ford are sailing for four years.

And they only returned the middle of the summer from there after a residence of three years. And before that they had been there for another four years.

They are going back for four years, to Caguas, where Mr. Ford has been district superintendent of the Baptist missionary work in Porto Rico. On his return, he will be promoted to general superintendent of the work for the entire island.

Represent Lincoln Church.

Their departure is of interest here, for they are Lincoln folk. Mrs. Ford is the daughter of Mrs. Frona Lockard, matron at the penitentiary, and a niece of N. T. Harmon and the Rev. H. H. Harmon, former pastor of the First Christian church. Mr. Ford is a graduate of the university in the class of 1911 and has done four years of graduate work at the University of Chicago. The Rev. and Mrs. Ford are being sent by the missionary society of the Northern Baptist conference, as representatives of the First Baptist church of Lincoln, of which they are members.

Mr. Ford's work is largely concerned with the supervising of the Baptist pastors on the island, who are natives. The Baptists have fifty churches in Porto Rico, with a total membership of 2,400 or 2,500. As district superintendent, Mr. Ford was in charge of sixteen churches, having a membership of 900 or 1,000. The membership is about equally divided between men and women.

In his work, Mr. Ford holds institutes once each month for the pastors, where they may come to present their problems and receive advice and new ideas for their pastorates. He also visits the churches, doing a little preaching, encouraging the ministers, and directing them in their work. At times, Mr. Ford does evangelistic work, although that phase of his superintendency is limited.

This year marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the beginning of Protestant missionary work in Porto Rico. Slightly over one per cent of the population, according to Mr. Ford, are communicant members of the Protestant churches, which is a record, as far as is known, that has never been equalled in a similar period of time. The work on the island is aided by the density of the population, making the inhabitants easier of access.

Mr. Ford says that all denominations on the island, Baptist, Methodist, Christian, Disciples, Presbyterian and Congregationalists being the Protestant denominations, work in closest harmony. Except in San Juan and Ponce, each denomination has its own particular area of the island, where it carries out its endeavors and where the others do not go for evangelistic labor. The Baptist work in the center portion of the island, in an area extending from coast to coast.

Missionaries Are Active.

One of the strongest organizations on the island is the Evangelical union, which is a delegated body, composed of representatives of the various Protestant churches on the island. New policies or changes in policy by any church are considered by this organization, so complete is the harmony. The union also publishes a religious paper, which has a circulation of about 6,000, which is about equal to that of the circulation of the largest daily paper on the island.

The six Protestant denominations also support a union theological seminary at Rio Piedras, directly across the street from the Insular university. The students in the seminary carry college work at the same time and receive two degrees at commencement. There are about thirty-five students enrolled at the present time. Dr. J. A. McAllister, who was president of a Presbyterian seminary in Rio Piedras before the union seminary was founded, is president. The school has students from all of the Caribbean countries in its enrollment.

Mr. Ford does the most of his traveling in a car, which he says is one of the best of missionaries. The roads in his district are very good, and with the car he can return home each night. Going into the hills, of course, he travels horse back, but motor travel is practicable in a large part of the territory.

The climate in Porto Rico, Mr. Ford said, is ideal. It is slightly warmer in summer than in winter, but is fairly equable the year around. In summer, it is rather too warm to be in the sun at mid day, but it is possible to arrange the work so that that time may be spent indoors. His home is made of one thickness of boards, but it has electric lighting and modern plumbing. There is no gas, but kerosene is used for cooking —and fuel is not a necessity.

The Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Ford, who will sail January 26, for Porto Rico, where Mr. Ford will be in charge of the Baptist missionary work on the island. Mr. Ford is sent out by the missionary society of the northern Baptist conference, as a representative of the First Baptist church of Lincoln. Mr. Ford has ben a district superintendent on the island for seven years, and he returns to his larger duties for four years.

PLAN TO TAKE CHURCH CENSUS

Believe Thousand Workers Needed For Council Of Churches Move.

The department of survey and comity of the Lincoln Council of Churches is planning to assist the department of evangelism by undertaking a systematic and thorough church census of Lincoln. All mechanical preparations for the survey will soon be completed, and the selection and instruction of the canvasers will come next week. It will take at least a thousand workers to cover the city in a half day, if they go out in teams of two, from different denominations which experience in other cities has proved to be the best way officers think. The survey committee is expecting the co-operation of all the churches. Dr. A. A. Brooks is chairman and the other members of the committee are J. H. Theobald, Judge E. B. Chappell, C. B. Anderson, A. R. Edmiston and Dr. M. E. Vance.

The women's department will soon launch an active campaign for the distribution of "Save America" booklets as the beginning of the educational movement for law enforcement and allegiance to the constitution. They will also take an active part in promoting the enlarged daily vacation church school program adopted by the department of religious education at its meeting last week.

The plan of holding occasional mass meetings in different sections of the city for the purpose of bringing information and enlisting the support of church members in movements for community betterment is to be continued. The next meeting soon to be announced will likely be held in northeast Lincoln, with Judge Chappell as speaker.

shook their heads about the fastidious young men of another day, too—it all goes to show that you can never tell a thing about it.

Wearing an Umbrella.

And—behold the mayor of our city all dressed up with an umbrella and n'everything. Mr. Zehrung is pretending he is bidding some one farewell down by the old rustic gate.

Clinging vines and flowers; sun flowers, taller than the mayor himself, and daisies at his feet—all this besides a tall tree add atmosphere to the picture.

But why the umbrella over the right shoulder? That's just one thing about the picture that is mysterious, and no doubt will always remain so, as Mr. Zehrung is not sure himself, as to the main idea of such a pose.

But the silk handkerchief — the derby, and the thumb of the left hand tucked away in the pocket—all that was good stuff in the old days, and very likely thep hotographer was very proud of his handiwork, and the portrait probably reposed in the photographer's front window, of his shop or his car, one or the other.

"Cosi fan Tutte" (A School for Lovers) Opera in English, Thursday, January 17. Mrs. H. J. Kirschstein and Delta Delta Delta present this beautiful Mozart opera.

The delightful Mozartian opera comique "Cosi fan Tutte," will be heard in Lincoln for the first time Thursday evening, and will be presented by the William Wade Hinshaw company. This impressario has secured a sextet of beautiful voices whose timbre allows the most graceful synchronization and blending.

The opera tells the story of two pairs of lovers and a cynical bachelor, Don Alfonso, who wagered that the women could not remain true. To win the wager, the two gallants pretend departure for war, but return in disguise, each to court the others' sweetheart. They succeeded an dDon Alfonso wins the wager assisted by Despina, a saucy little maid.

The Ohio State Journal in Columbus, had the following to say concerning the opera following its presentation there December 7:

Irene Williams, soprano, and Judson House, tenor, had the best musical opportunities and made the most of them. Miss Williams looked like a Dresden doll in her blonde curls and voluminous skirts. She had a melodious air in Act II, gloriously sung, and her radiant voice was always outstanding in combination, whether with the limpid purity of House's tenor or in ensemble. Histrionically Miss Williams behaved with artistry. House gave full vent to his lavish powers at times and was liked immensely by the audience. When Fiordiligi (Miss Williams) finally succumbs to his ardent wooing, and proves her coquetry it was occasion for some ravishing top notes powerfully declaimed. Mr. House asserted his acting ability also and was especially comical in the funny parting scene.

Kathleen Bibb, contralto, as Dorabella, was charming and her rhetoric perfect, and Leo de Hierapolis declaimed in resonant baritone. He was at his best in martial strains during the parting scene. Pierre Remington, whose bass voice was a shade rough and had an unpleasant vibrato, nevertheless was a courtly Alfonso, and praise also is due Stuart Ross, musical director, who presided estimably at the piano.

Though simple, the staging was adequate, a beautiful gray silk drop serving for all acts. The costumery lustrous velvets for the men and pastel shades for the women, all representative of the picturesque Eighteenth century, was gorgeous. All told, the performance, for whose local sponsorship thanks are due William Wylie, was artistic perfection.

The Redeemer chorus, which has been making rapid progress in the past three years under the direction of J. M. Seidel, will render another cantata Sunday evening at the Redeemer Lutheran church. This time they have selected a Christmas cantata. The words were written by Paul E. Kretzmann and the music by G. C. Albert Kaeppel. The inspiration for this cantata came from the Middle Ages, the time when the immense cathedrals of France and Germany were erected. The liturgical plays, which came into existence at that time, form the nucleus of this cantata. The cantata is divided into a Prologue and three parts, namely, prophecy, fulfillment, and adoration and service. The following will appear as soloists: Miss Schaferman, soprano; Miss Emma Bahls, contralto; A. T. Bartling, tenor; J. M. Seidel, bass; Mrs. E. Herpolsheimer, accompanist.

Walter Wheatley will sing at the Sunday Vesper concert at the high school today at 3 o'clock. His program, which will be broadcasted over the radio, is as follows: "Lend Me Your Aid" from the Queen of Sheba, Gounod; "Ave Maria," Percy Kahn, with violin obligato by E. J. Walt; "Nocturne," Chadwick; "Heaven at the End of the Road," H. O. Osgood. Miss Hilda Chowins will accompany Mr. Wheatley.

Miss Zelda Christian, assisted by her sister, entertained at a musicale at their home Friday evening. The program consisted of duets and songs, with Miss Zelda playing five numbers chosen from Ganz, Grieg, Massennett, and Wacks. Miss Juanita sang "Cuckoo Clock," Grant-Scheaffer, and "Mighty Lak a Rose," Nevin. Refreshments were served to twenty-five.

SIOUX PRINCESS WILL SING HERE

To Entertain Native Sons and Daughters at Annual Luncheon.

Princess Winona One of the Strong Features on Society's Program.

Princess Winona, noted singer of the Sioux Indian tribe, will appear before the Native Sons and Daughters society at its annual luncheon here January 16.

The Indian princess was born in the house of her great-grandfather, Chief Feathering, famous warrior of the Yankton Sioux. This house where the princess was born stands a few hundred feet from the Wounded Knee battlefield, scene of the last great struggle between the whites and Indians. The battlefield is fourteen miles from the Pine Ridge agency.

Growing up in her native tribe, the princess was later sent to school at Wabash, Ind., Hampton, Va., and the Haskell Institute at Lawrence, Kas., She was given the best musical education and returned to the land of the Sioux, where she married James Garvie, a member of the Sioux nation.

Princess Winona sang at the last annual meeting of the Northeast Nebraska Press association in June on Niobrara island. Her home is now at Niobrara. She is organist in the Niobrara Methodist church and takes an active part in the social and commercial life of the community.

The seven children of the princess are also known for their unusual musical ability. They are proficient with various musical instruments.

Princess Winona is noted for the great power of her voice and, dressed in the Indian costume, seems altogether a princess of the plains, it is said.

Social Clubs

The members of the Radium Five Hundred club were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Turner, 2400 D street, Thursday evening. Guests of the club were Mr and Mrs. W. Heller and Merritt Whitten of Phillipsburg, Kas. High scores were made be Mrs. Anna Hummel and Sherman Doman. In two weeks the club will meet with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Musical World

Musical memory is of various kinds. Some executants are gifted with memories that retain easily the music of a large repetoire. Others have to work long hours and with unremitting perseverance to fix music in their minds. Some have a visual memory, which allows them to remember by recalling the printed notes. Others have a memory of association, by means of which they link up one thing and another, while there is also a class whose memory is a matter of the automatic accuracy of their fingers. In any case memory is an important asset to the performing musician. Except in rare cases, the only public solo performer for whom tradition does not prescribe performance from memory is the organist, who for the most part plays, even as concert-performer, from the printed page.

FRANCE FAMILY HOLDS REUNION

Fourteen Children Return Home For Christmas Holidays.

Widely Scattered Over State And Nation—Reunion Happy Event.

BY MARJORIE WYMAN.

Fourteen children—and all home to spend Christmas with their parents!

That is the distinction enjoyed by the C. L. France family of Syracuse, which held this year its first complete reunion in seven years, in spite of the fact that although only two of the children are still at home, there are but two of them whose permanent home are put in Nebraska.

Yet this year saw the reunion at the old family home, where all the children were born, and where the memories of happy childhood cluster around the dreams of the past. The fourteen, all a little older, and all with their new responsibilities assumed during the past year, since they first left the old home, came back to frolic around with their mother and father—back at the childhood home.

Family Is Scattered.

But the children are all scattered now. One son has enlisted in the navy, and another daughter has married and gone to Minnesota to live. Two married doctors and are living in Nebraska towns, Talmadge and Weeping Water. The youngest daughter is in school at Doane, and one son works in the Havelock shops. Beaver Crossing is the home of another daughter, and another calls Lexington her home. But the others still receive their mail at Syracuse, and live either in town, or near the home of their parents.

The father of this large family is a New Yorker by birth, but came out to this country when he was very young, and married here Miss Evagene Andrews, the daughter of a Nebraska homesteader, who was at that time living on his own land. The fourteen France children were all born on a nearby farm, where their parents have lived "ever since we can remember" as one of the older boys says.

Mrs. Lynn McCormick, Mrs. Frank Kraft, and their brother, Warren France, the eldest children of the family, still live in or near Syracuse. Mrs. Charles Warner, the fourth from the top in age, makes her home in Beaver Crossing.

Mrs. Aldrich Bloomquist is the only daughter who has left the old home to cross state boundaries to make her home. And of all the members of the family who returned for Christmas, she is the only married one who did not bring the rest of the family.

Majority Close to Home.

Elting France, the sixth member in chronological order, is engaged in the dairy business, and has remained in Syracuse. His next younger brother, Clarence, is a credit man in Lincoln, associated with the furniture business.

"How did I happen to go into that business?" he says, "Well, we can't all stay close at home, and it appealed to me when I was just a boy. And of course we're close enough home so that we can be there whenever we want to badly enough."

Talmadge, Nebraska, is the home of number eight of the family roll, Mrs. Sam Smith. She has lived there for the past few years, going there as a bride with her doctor-husband.

Boy Serves in Navy.

The United States navy claimes the life of Ross France, the one who has really done the wandering for all the rest of the family. For Ross has just finished his second term in the navy, and was home on furlough for the holiday season. It is his irregularity of hours that has made a family reunion so difficult of achievement during the past few years.

Mrs. Kenneth Jacobson of Lexington and Mrs. Arnold Specht of Weeping Water rank as ten and eleven on the roster have both left the family home for their own.

Myron France, the twelfth child, and the fifth boy on the list, works in the Havelock shops, close enough to Syracuse so that home is a pretty accessible place, and close enough for ready communication with his elder brother, Clarence.

Youngest Still In School.

The two youngest, who are still receiving their educations, are Miss Ruth France, who is studying in Doane college, and for whom the Christmas was as much a reunion and a return home as for any of the others, and the "baby," Lester, who is enrolled in the high school in Syracuse.

"How old is he?" his eldest brother asked. "Why, I don't know. Probably about sixteen or seventeen."

So it is with large families; not that they care less for one another, or that they remember the smallest details any lest than do the parents of the only child, but simply because they have not memory for all the little things, and choose those facts which are not so nearly self-evident, and which have more importance in family life.

But the mother of the fourteen, can she remember all the myriad small experiences of them all? Can she possibly have space in her memory for all the little things that have happened to each of the fourteen?

Yes, indeed, for those things, and for many more that happened in her own sphere, and in her life with them on the farm near Syracuse. For the mother is the center around which the home revolves, and her spirit guides the life of the family.

MATTOX HURLS ANOTHER DEFI

Another development in the controversy between John Mattox, Lincoln attorney, and City Commissioner John Wright in regard to the alleged non-payment of bills by employes in Mr. Wright's fire department came Saturday when Mr. Mattox addressed a letter to Mayor Zehrung further protesting the action of the commissioner. Mr. Mattox claims that, despite the promise of Mr. Wright that the city's employes would pay their bills, one bill, for the payment of which Mr. Mattox brought suit, has not yet been paid.

Mr. Mattox quotes a Lincoln newspaper, which said:

"Mr. Wright indicated that he is insisting now as always that all his employes pay their bills, and that if this man or any other is dodging his debts Mr. Wright will see that the payments are made regularly."

The man whom he sued has not made payments regularly although a judgment was obtained against him in justice court for an $18.50 coal bill, according to Mr. Mattox.

SOUTHERN RABBI IS SPEAKER HERE

S. E. Starrels of New Orleans Gives Address at Opening at Temple.

Says Relief From Complexity Of Life Can Be Found In Its Midst.

Rabbi S. E. Starrels of New Orleans addressed the meeting Friday evening at Temple B'nai Jeshurun, opening the basement of the new building. He spoke of "The Complexity of Life;" how no person can take it all in, but how everyone can pick out the activity most interesting to himself, pursue it, and be true to his own nature.

The whirl of modern life he compared with the typhoon of the Indian seas. It leaves wrecks and disaster strewn in its path, but the skilled navigator who can sail into its heart is able to find there, in the midst of the greatest confusion, a real quiet.

The same sort of refuge can be found by every man within himself. Be true to yourself, rather than drift along with popular currents; plunge down into your own innermost self and bring to the light the gems that are there, Rabbi Starrels urged.

"We have been looking for a way to meet the complexity of life, and have found an answer in the words of our sage: to live sincerely and simply in the midst of it.

"Let us not flee from the storm of life," urged Rabbi Starrels in final appeal. "Let us sail right into the heart of it. May we gvie expression to ourselves in the midst of the crowd, and may we arrive at a haven of calm in a turbulent world."

THROUGH TRAIN TO ST. LOUIS SUNDAY

Fifteen Lincoln Men to Take Trip When Burlington Inaugurates New Service.

When the Burlington railroad Sunday afternoon sends its first train out of Lincoln inaugurating a through service between Lincoln and St. Louis the train will have as passengers at least fifteen members of the Lincoln chamber of Commerce, who will make the trip at the invitation of the chamber of commerce of St. Louis. The party will arrive in St. Louis Monday morning.

The chamber of commerce of the Missouri city has planned a round of entertainment for the visitors, including a trip over the city Tuesday. It was not known Saturday at the executive offices of the local chamber how many would take advantage of the invitation to spend a second day in St. Louis.

The inauguration of through service between Lincoln and St. Louis by the Burlington is the realization of a long cherished hope by the chamber of commerce of Lincoln and St. Louis, since the two cities are brought several hours nearer.

With the establishing of the new service to St. Louis, arrangements have been made whereby passengers in sleepers leaving her on an earlier train will be allowed to lay over at St. Joseph, something like two or more hours, to be picked up by the through train when it arrives at St. Joseph.

In an effort to have the lay-over order changed so that it will be made in Lincoln, the chamber of commerce here is negotiating with Burlington officials to that end. Should the change be made it is contemplated to take the sleeper passengers and entertain them by an automobile drive about the city, returning them to the depot in plenty of time to leave on their train.

Obituary

Mrs. J. K. Rumbaugh.

Myra Evelyn Burlington was born in Bradford, Ill., June 28, 1862, and passed away at her late home in Lincoln, Neb., December 15, 1923, aged 61 years, 5 months and 22 days.

She was the daughter of a Christian Adventist minister and during the days of her childhood shared in the experiences common to those who live at the parsonage.

In 1881 she moved with her parents to Blue Spring, Neb. Here she met and on December 16, 1883, was united in marriage to J. K. Rumbaugh, her father being the officiating minister.

To this happy union four children were born. They are E. Roy and Arthur F., both of Lincoln, Mrs. Mata E. Spindler of LaJunta, Colo., and Chester H., pastor of the Evangelical church at Holstein, Neb. Besides the husband and children Mrs. Rumbaugh leaves seven grand-children, one brother, O. E. Burlington of Omaha and a sister, Mrs. Alice Harris of Los Angeles, and a wide circle of loving friends.

In early life Mrs. Rumbaugh was converted under the ministry of Rev. S. J. Shupp and united with the Evangelical church near Blue Springs. In 1918 the family moved to Lincoln and united with the East Lincoln Evangelical church.

Mrs. Rumbaugh was always interested in the work of the church and as long as health permitted was faithful in attendance at the services. During her life she did what she could for her family and her Master. Her home was her castle but she also had time and thought for others.

During several weeks preceding her death, she was a great sufferer but with true Christian fortitude she bore her sufferings, having a desire to remain with her loved ones yet resigned to God's will. She is at rest. Her labors are ended. The family will linger a little longer on this side the swinging of the golden gate; then when for them the sun shall set on land and sea one by one they will cross over and one happy day the family circle will be complete on the other side.

Funeral services were held at Castle, Roper and Matthews' undertaking parlors on Tuesday morning and at the Evangelical church in Blue Springs in the afternoon, being in charge of Rev. W. E. Smith, pastor of the East Lincoln Evangelical church. He was assisted in the former service by Rev. B. Hillier, Rev. J. Scherbacker, Rev. J. A. Adams, and at the latter service Rev. J. H. Williams, Rev. F. DeVol and Rev. J. A. Adams. Interment was made in the beautiful cemetery at Blue Springs.

Men to Discuss When Breaking of Law Is Justified

"When is a Man Justified in Justified in Breaking the Law" is the topic of the open forum discussion at the afternoon men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday. E. F. Snavely will lead. Music will be furnished by the Lyric quartet.

A discussion of the topic in almost every detail is possible by means of following the forum mulletin given out by the Y. M. C. A. The bulletin outlines the points involved on both sides of the question. This is considered a better method than having a leader take the full responsibility of directing arguments, according to Y. M. C. A. officers, since it allows a definite decision to be reached.

Police Judge E. B. Chappell, Chief of Police Peter Johnstone, Sheriff Claude Hensel and Tom Carroll, chief of the state law enforcement bureau, will speak on the subject.

Screen Siftings

Film Southern Scenery.—Tall feathery palms, tufts of grass such as grow in the South Sea islands, and a weirdly picturesque cafe built on the abandoned hulk of an old ship, are a few of the interesting touches which lend atmosphere to the sets on the Ince lots where scenes for "Against the Rules" are being "shot." Leatrice Joy, Percy Marmont and Adolph Menjou play the leading roles in the picture, which is being directed by John Griffith Wray.

Movies Lead Field—The figures compiled for 1923 show that the motion picture industry is the leading industry of Southern California, with an annual production cost of $140,000,000. Petroleum comes second with a production value of $103,735,000 and food products third, with a value of $90,000,000. Richard Barthelmess and May McAvoy appear as their natural selves without character make-up of any kind in some of the scenes for "The Enchanted Cottage," the next Richard Barthelmess First National release.

Sylvia Returns.—Sylvia Breamer has returned to Hollywood after a vacation spent in New York. She will have a prominent role in "Lilies of the Field" which is to be filmed from the stage success under the direction of John Francis Dillon. Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle are the featured players.

A New Production—Lionel Barrymore has been engaged to play the part of Walter Butler in the forthcoming D. W. Griffith production, "America." Mr. Barrymore began his screen career as a member of the stock company organized by Griffith ten years ago. In addition to Mr. Barrymore, the cast for "America" now includes Carol Dempster, Neil Hamilton, Erville Alderson and Marie Burke.

Roland In Realty.—Ruth Roland, whose side line is realty, has started construction on a fourteen story own-your-own apartment house, costing $1,500,000, at the corner of Wilshire and Ardmore Avenues, Los Angeles. The building will be known as the Rolan apartments.

Torrence Draws Good Role.—David Torrence has been cast for the role of Jonathan Butts in William Dudley Pelley's story, "Courtin' Calamity," which Universal is producing with Hoot Gibson in the starring role.

Doane College News

Dr. Paul Harrison, '05, missionary to Arabia, addressed Doane college students at chapel Wednesday morning. He had just come from Indianapolis where he was a prominent figure in the International convention of student volunteers. He was accompanied to Crete by Mrs. Harrison and visited his sister, Mrs. Grace Harrison, '09. Dr. Harrison spoke at a women's missionary meeting Tuesday afternoon and was guest of honor at an informal reception given by Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Swift that evening.

Dr. Harrison told the students of his work in Arabia, stating that the Arabs or Bedouins are people of strong character so imbued with their Mohammedan religion that they despise all other nations and their civilizations.

Dorothy Blatter, Ruth Sweney, Ralph Carter and Prof. W. S. Huxford were Doane's delegates to the student volunteer convention at Indianapolis during the holidays. They returned Thursday evening and will make reports at the weekly meetings of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. A. C. Gaylord, ex '92, met the Doane delegates at Indiaapolis.

Preceded by the basketball squad which returned for practice Friday, January 4, the students returned for classwork beginning Tuesday morning. First semester examinations are scheduled to start Tuesday morning, January 22, and continue until the end of that week. Registration for the second semester will be carried on during examination week. Regular classes will be held Monday, January 21.

The semi-annual meeting of the board of trustees was held in Lincoln Wednesday afternoon.

Doaneites in New York City were entertained December 27 by Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Bennett at their home. Among those present were the Misses Ruth Kinney and Mildred Cass, F. M. Ross, L. H. Miller, and S. P. Hieb.

Delta Kappa Pi fraternity held its annual midyear banquet Saturday evening.

Debating and oratory work will start in earnest with the beginning of the second semester. Preliminary meetings were held just before the Christmas holidays.

BERNARD SHAW'S LATEST EFFORT IS 'SAINT JOAN'

Premiere of Play Is Theatrical Event of Moment In Gothahm Circles.

Eddie Cantor In "Kid Boots" And Return of George Cohan Other Features.

BY BRETT PAGE.

NE WYORK, Jan. 12—The premiere of a play by George Bernard Shaw is always a theatrical event of moment. While not all this Irish playwright's dramatic offerings are of even excellence, yet there is always food for thought and material for debate in whatever he writes. New York has just witnessed a Shaw premiere—"Saint Joan." No hurly-burly, rough-and-ready Shaw this time. He fights sham, hypocrisy and superstition with a rapier, not with a sword.

Shaw's Joan of Arc is a peasant girl of shrewd, common sense who has the happy faculty of being right because she is not hampered by the traditions and taboos which limit the scope of a church hierarchy and an aristocratic-oligarchy. Her counselors are "voices" of the saints of God, not political prelates and self-seeking courtiers. Hence she is in opposition, waging a battle which the playwright shows us is hopeless by the confession of the leading characters in his drama fifteen years after Joan's death when they are made to say that were she to return to earth she would be burned again within six months of her appearance.

Here we have a chronicle play, with all such a play's disjointed action. And—being by Bernard Shaw—often there is no action at all. The dialogue is entertaining but since so much of it has nothing to do with advancing dramatic interest, it really clogs the play. One wonders about the dialogue when the playwright cut out in order to keep the play from running more than three and one-half hours.

The Young Joan.

The play opens with Joan persuading Robert de Beaudricourt to give her an escort for the journey she wishes to make to the Dauphin at Chinon. Here we find the girl so firm in her faith that she had already a following among the soldiers. The same faith she has inspired when at Vaucoulours with de Baudricourt is breathed into members of the court when she comes to Chinon, and so she is allowed to go to Orleans in an effort to raise the seige. There is an interesting scene when Joan comes to the Loire and the wind which has held back the boats of the French now changes to permit passage of the river.

At this point there is interpolated a long scene between the Earl of Warwick and the Archbishop of Beauvais. Its purpose is to provide the playwright a means to show how the success of this ignorant maid was inimical to the interest of both church and state, being in the interest of the common people. In this scene Shaw scatters some of his most sparkling dialectics. And there are the sharp sallies at the English which he so loves to let fly. The next scene shows Rheims Cathedral just after the Dauphin has been crowned as Charles VII. Here Joan learns all too well that she can have no support of church or state in her further efforts to drive the English from France. However, she determines to persevere.

The trial scene is handled with great delicacy. When one considers the brutality of the proceedings, as evidenced in historical documents, one realizes that here Shaw could have "torn a passion to tatters." Yet he has written with great restraint, depending upon irony for his telling points rather than upon brutality. The prelates seem to be a kindly lot, intent on saving Joan's soul by having her acknowledged the supreme authority of the church. Joan meets their wishes, only to find that although by so doing she has saved herself from the flames she will be imprisoned for life. Then it is that she tears up the paper of recantation and calls upon her faith to sustain her as she goes forth to her death.

Bring Play Up-to-date.

There is a quaint epilogue in which the Maid appears to Charles in a dream some fifteen years later. Present, too, are other leading characters in the play. Also there is "a gentleman of 1920," strangely out of place among these soldiers, courtiers and ecclesiastics of the fifteenth century. Yet his comments are just as biting, just as pointed as those of the persons of the earlier age. All agree that Joan should not return to earth to upset the established order of things by preaching a homely Christianity without regard to rule or ritual. So ends the play—a gentlemanly jibe at the order of "things as they are."

Miss Winifred Lenihan was remarkably fine as Joan. She brought to the role a Christian dignity that lost nothing because it was of pleasent stock with a peasant's salty humor and that same shrewdness which characterizes the French peasant of today. Philip Leigh as the Dauphin, Albert Bruning as the Archbishop of Rheims, Ian Maclaren as the Archbishop of Beauvais, A. H. Van Buren as the Earl of Warwick, and Henry Travers as Chaplain de Stogumber all stood out, prominent in a cast of unusual general excellence.

Eddie Cantor In "Kid Boots."

Eddie Cantor has come to town. His vehicle is called "Kid Boots," and his beautiful assistant is Mary Eaton, she of "Follies" fame. Here we have a musical comedy with revue propensities. Eddie Cantor has deservedly wide popularity and the number of Cantor "fans" throughout the country grows with each visit of this real artist. His renown came as a black-face comedian, but now he seems to be making an effort to appear "in person," since most of the time in "Kid Boots" he is just himself. However, his black-face efforts were tumultuously applauded.

The evening is devoted to the glorification of the game of golf, albeit in humorous fashion. Cantor is the caddy master of a Palm Beach golf club. One of the funniest scenes is that in which he gives a golf lesson to Jobyna Howland. She is herself a comedian of distinction, and in this play she ably seconds the star. Miss Eaton is lovely to look upon and she dances pleasantly. And speaking of dancing, Harland Dixen is with "Kid Boots." With his partner, Marie Callahan, he does all those remarkable steps which have put him in a class by himself.

Cohan On Broadway.

George Cohan—himself—is to be seen on Broadway. Not walking that bright thoroughfare, but appearing in a play of his own fashioning, "The Song and Dance Man." Harking back to his youth as a vaudeville "artist," he gives us a smypathetic picture of a small-time trouper, such a performer as he must have met many times in his own travelings up and down the country. If you enjoy stories of the big-hearted people of the theater who struggle along for the joy of their calling, never or seldom reaping its richer rewards, you will have a smile and a tear for "The Song and Dance Man." By all rules of drama it is not a good play, but as a picture of life across the footlights it is sincere and touching. Mr. Cohan does some of the best acting of his career in this piece.

The star has surrounded himself with capable actors. Frederick Perry has the part of a theatrical man, such as one meets in real life, and John Meehan is a director such as one meets in real life—provided one is in touch with the higher reaches of the theater world. May Mathot, as a song and dance girl, is also true to type.

A Play About the South.

An unusual play is "Roseanne," a play "about colored people in Georgia, with their own spirituals," as the advertisement tells us. It is by Nan Bagby Stephens, a southern woman who had dipped her pen into a well of intelligent appreciation of the depths and shallows of negro character. The play has white players, Miss Crystal Hearne being featured in the name part. While my own feeling was such that I could never accept the production as "holding the mirror up to nature," since to me the actors were always masqueraders in lamp black, yet the actors should be applauded for the meticulous care with which they had elaborated their pictures. Perhaps the reason the mirror was not closer to nature was the fault of the play. It was somewhat monotonous and depended for sympathy upon our full appreciation of the tragedy which befell Roseanne's foster daughter. This, I, for one, could not give unstintedly, since to me the girl was subnormal, to my way of thinking, and Roseanne herself had brought about the catastrophe by her own blindness.

The tragedy in the life of Roseanne was caused by her faith in her pastor, a black scoundrel who was wringing every possible penny out of his congregation. She practically delivers Leola, the child she has reared, into his hands. The big scene of the play is when Roseanne invades the church to denounce the Reverend Cicero Brown, coming from Leola's deathbed. She rouses the congregation to such a frenzy that the men rush out to lynch the recreant pastor. Here the play logically ends.

There is a third act in which the preacher seeks refuge in Roseanne's cabin and is hidden by her from the mob which has tracked him there. She dismisses him, telling him to go in peace and repent of his sins. Perhaps the psycho-analist would say that Roseanne was in love with him without knowing it. The negro spirituals provided real entertainment for the audience in the church scene, and there was a realistic picture of the means by which the primitive mind is worked into a religious frenzy.

Kathleen Comegys was very effective as the foster daughter, as was John Harrington as the unctious scoundrel of a preacher. The cast showed that the play had been rehearsed with great attention to detail.

Featuring Spanish Play.

Miss Nance O'Neal seems to be specializing in Spanish plays. She gave a remarkable performance in "The Passion Flower" of Jacinto Boenevente, but unfortunately she has not such good material in Rafael Marti Orbera's "Madre." The play is rather muddy in setting forth its theme and its conflict and the author has shown very little sense of the dramatic. This is indeed a pity, since Miss O'Neal is one of our best actresses, and she is worthy of a fine play.

Miss O'Neal appears as a widow whose legacy is a son of her own and a step-son. The latter has married a girl of the village and the son is serving in the army against the Moors. There is a love affair between the son on his return and the half-brother's wife. The husband murders the paramour, and so the play ends. Miss O'Neal has few opportunities to display her talents. The acting is far superior to the play. In the supporting company were Clinton Owen, Irene Shirley, Helen Jackson, George Baxter and Alfred K. Hickman.

Madison-Norfolk Road Soon to Be Gravel Surfaced

MADISON, Neb., Jan. 12. — The annual banquet of the Madison Community club took place Thursday night. The banquet was served by the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church in the parlors of the church, there being present 150.

Ed. O'Shea, president of the club, was toast master and responses were made by P. A. Barrows, Rev. Knauer, J. R. Kinder, and W. L. Dowling who appeared for Dr. F. A. Long, who was absent from the city. Mr. Dowling, on behalf of Dr. Long, presented the proposition of completed gravel road between Norfolk and Madison this year. The county commissioners ask Madison and community to contribute $1,000 in addition to county and federal aid and what the city of Norfolk will do will complete graveling the road between these cities this year.

Contributions were asked and practically the entire sum was pledged and a committee appointed to solicit the balance of the funds needed. The club went on record by its immediate action in providing the funds required by the commissioners that it unanimously endorsed the 1924 gravel program and is ready to render any assistance required. This assures a gravel road between Norfolk and Madison this year so far as funds and assistance is concerned from Madison's end of the proposition.

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—A girl and I have been arguing about Antonio Moreno. Will you please settle our problem by telling us whether he is Spanish or Italian. Then there is another girl who used to walk to school with us. One morning we got to talking about Harold Lloyd's pictures. She happened to mention Marion Davies as playing opposite him in his plays before he was married. She also said it was Marion Davies who was Harold's wife. Well, we argued and argued about it, but simply could not convince her that she was wrong. We would like very much for you to put the answer in the column so she will know she is wrong.

Dear Editor, will you also tell me who is playing opposite Ruth Roland in her picture, "Ruth in her picture, "Ruth of the Range." I am positive he played with her in another of her serials I saw Ruth of the Rockies, "White Eagle," "The Timber Queen," and now "Ruth of the Range."

Please give me the cast for "The Timber Queen." Is Ruth making any pictures at present, and if so, which ones?

Will you please tell me if both of the Gish girls have light hair? I heard that one of the girls wore a wig, is that true? Yours Sincerely,

A TRUE MOVIE FAN.

Antonio Moreno is a Spaniard, as his name would indicate. His full name is Antonio Garrido Monteagudo.

Your friend is entirely wrong about Marion Davies being Harold Lloyd's wife. It is Mildred Davis, who formerly played opposite Harold in his comedies, and is now Mrs. Harold Lloyd. Marion Davies is single yet, and is a star in Cosmopolitan pictures.

Pathe has been negligent in sending me the cast for Ruth's serial, and I have been negligent in not seeing it, so I am unable to give you the leading man. You must be a real Ruth Roland fan to have seen so many of her serials. The cast for "The Timber Queen" is: Ruth Reading, "Ruth Roland; "Bull Joyce," Leo Willis; "Vance," Frank Lackteen; "Donald Mackey," Bruce Gordon, "Jim Cluxton," Van Paul, "James Reading," Chris Linton. Ruth is dabbling in real estate at present, and is not working on a picture. She says she's going to make feature pictures instead of serials in the future. She has just financed a big "Own Your Own" apartment house in Los Angeles, so either serials or real estate are profitable. 'Tis said that the fair "Serial Queen" has a good business head on her.

Both Lillian and Dorothy Gish have light hair. Dorothy wears a wig most of the time in pictures, so she looks like she's dark haired.

Dear Movie Editor—I have not written to you for quite a long time, but I have been reading your page every Sunday for I enjoy it most of all. What is the cast of "Over the Hill", "The Flirt" and "Fantomas"? What is the height and weight of Eileen Percy and Lucille Rickson?

What is Mae Murray's, Bebe Daniels' and Johnny Walker's next picture? I heard Mary Pickford had bobbed her hair a few weeks ago. Is this true or not? I believe she would look cute. I forgot to ask you how old Bessie Love is, and what is her next picture?

I will close for this time, sincerely,

NELLIE LUCILE.

I'm glad to hear from you again, Nellie Lucile. I remember your last name, too, and think I saw your picture in the paper recently, did I not?

If you want the "Over the Hill" picture that was released by Astra-Pathe in 1917, I no longer have it, or did you want the Fox picture "Over the Hill to the Poorhouse?"

The cast for "The Flirt" is: "Papa," George Nichols; "Mama," Lydia Knott; "Cora," Eileen Percy; "Laura," Helen Jerome Eddy; "Hedrick," Buddy Messinger; "Jimmy," Harold Goodwin; "Della Fenton," Nell Craig; "Sam Fenton," Tom Kennedy; "Valentine Corliss," Lloyd Whitlock; "Richard Lindley," Edward Hearn; "Wade Trumble," Bert Roach; "George Carroll," William Welch.

The "Fantomas" cast is: "Fantomas," Edward Roseman; "Ruth Harrington," Edna Murphy; "James Harrington," Lionel Adams; "Jack Meredith," Johnnie Walker; "Fred Dixon," John Willard; "The Woman in Black," Eva Balfour; "The Duke," Irving Brooks; "The Butler," Ben Walker; "The Wop," Henry Armetta.

Eileen Percy weighs 120 and is five feet three inches tall. Lucille is an inch over five feet and weight 116.

Mae Murray just released "Fashion Row." Bebe Daniel's latest picture is "The Heritage of the Desert," and I have no new release for Johnnie since "The Worm," and "Capt. Fly-By-Night."

Mary didn't have her hair bobbed the last time I saw her, and her P. A. has not announced the fact, and I'm sure he would should so great an event take place.

Bessie Love has just finished "Gentle Julia" for Fox. She's in her early twenties.

Dear Movie Editor—Will you please tell me the height, weight, ages, color of hair and eyes and addresses of the following: Richard Dix, Betty Blythe, Jack Holt, Richard Barthelmess, Baby Peggy and Jobyna Ralston and Harold Lloyd.

Will you please give me the cast of "Red Lights." And if you know how much Bebe Daniels gets a year, please tell me. Sincerely yours,

LORRAINE.

Richard Dix has dark hair and eyes, and is twenty-nine years old. He's six feet tall and weighs 175. Oddress him in care of Famous Players-Lasky Studio, Hollywood, Cal. Jack Holt could be reached at the same place. He is another six footer, and weighs five pounds less than Mr. Dix. He was born in 1889 with dark eyes and brown hair. Betty Blythe is thirty. She has brown hair and blue eyes and is five feet seven inches tall and weighs 140. Address her at 1820 Lo Brea St., Hollywood, Cal.

Mr. Barthelmess has his letters sent in care of Inspiration, New York City. He is another dark haired, brown eyed hero, twenty-eight years old. He weighs 135 and is the same height as Betty Blythe.

Baby Peggy was born October 26, 1918. She weighed eight and a half pounds at birth, and is growing so rapidly, she doesn't record her height and weight now. She has dark hair and eyes, and has a mail box at Principal Pictures Corp., Hollywood, Cal.

Miss Jobyna is eighteen and only five feet skyward. She tips the scales at about a hundred, and has soft brown curls and dark grey eyes. Address her at the Hal E. Roch Studio, Culver City, Cal. Harold Lloyd receives mail at the same place. He is thirty, five feet nine high and weighs 150. His eyes are blue, and his hair black.

Marie Provost played the role of "Ruth Carson" in "Red Lights;" Alice Lake was "Nora O'Neill" and John Walker, "Ruth Fiance." Other members of the cast were Griffith and Dagmar Godowsky.

Bebe Daniels is one of those stars who was unfortunate enough to sign up a long term contract at a low salary. Her salary is $550 a week.

Dear Movie Editor—After three or four months of absence, I will write. Someone else has taken the name of Thelma, so I must not leave the "Ten Year" out. I hope to see this letter in print next Sunday, so I will begin my numerous questions.

How old is Ann Q. Nilsson, Bebe Daniels, Gloria Swanson, Elleen Percy, Jacqueline Logan, Dorothy Phillips, Dorothy Dalton, Richard Barthelmess, Hal E. Roach and Bobby Vernon and James Kirkwood. Is Charles de Roche a leading man in his pictures, or just an actor? I saw him as the leading man in "The Law of the Lawless" with Dorothy Dalton, and as the villian in "The Cheat," so I do not know what he is.

Why don't we see Marjorie Daw, Sylvia Breamer, J. Warren Kerrigan, Laura La Plante, Harrison Ford, Virginia Valli, and Justine Johnston more. I will stop, hoping I was welcome. TEN YEAR OLD THELMA. O'Neill, Neb.

Well, Thelma, I wondered what had become of you. I'm sorry you have left Lincoln, but glad to see that you still take the Star. I got your letter in as quicly as I could.

Miss Nilsson was born in 1889. Bebe Daniels is twenty-two, and Gloria Swanson's birthdate was 1898. Eileen Percy is twenty-six, and Dorothy Phillips, thirty-one. Bobbie Vernon has passed twenty-six, and James Kirkwood—well, in as much as he has a very young bride, I think it would be better taste not to mention his age.

Charles de Roched is a feature player in Paramount pictures, but he is not a star for that company. A featured player is one whose name is prominent in the supporting cast of the picture, but who is not the star of thep roduction.

There's no reason why you should not be seeing all of the stars you mention, except for the fact that they probably do not happen to bring pictures to your town in which they are playing. Marjorie Daw is resting at present, but she recently completed "The Barefoot Boy." Sylvia Breamer has the leading feminine role in "Her Temporary Husband"; J. Warren Kerrigan returned to the screen in "The Covered Wagon," after a prolonged absence. Laura La Plant recently became a star in Universal pictures. Harrison Ford has been parking his make-up box on the Metro lot, and Virginia Valli and Justine Johnstone are also still flickering.

Dear Movie Editor—I just want to take up a little of your space to tell you how very glad I was to finally see "Tess of the Storm Country." Didn't Miss Pickford make the picture once before, and if so, how long ago was it?

Who was the man who played the role of Frederick Graves in this production? How old is he? Is he married and to whom? How tall is he and what is the color of his hair and eyes?

What is Mary Pickford's next picture? Has "Rosita" been released yet? I'd like to see her in that. I noticed by the paper that she is to take a grown up part in it. I saw her several years ago in a picture where she was grown up and had her hair done up, and I thought she looked cuter if possible, than she does with her hair down. Shes a darling anyway, and I like her because she always seems the same. She's a woman with "the heart of a child," if there ever was one.

With many thanks for your trouble in answering my questions, and alloting me the space, I remain MOVIE PATRON.

The pleasure is all mine, I assure you. I'm glad to answer as many questions as you care to ask. That's within reason, of course.

Mary made her first version of Grace Miller White's novel in 1914.

Lloyd Hughes plays the leading male role in her current production. He is married to Gloria HHope— the young lady who protrays Teola Graves in the picture. Lloyd is twenty-four and six feet tall. He has dark hair and greenish gray eyes.

Mary has released "Rosita." She is working on "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" now. She seems to have "grown up" for good.

Dear Movie Editor—This is the second time I have written to you. The first time you answered my questions fine, so I thought I would ask you some more. What is Jackie Coogan's address?

Could you tell we the names of the actors at the Liberty Theatre for December 17, 18 and 19? I didn't get to go, so I would like to know their names. Thanking you for your trouble, I remain, A MOVIE FAN.

Thanks, I'm glad my answers were satisfactory. We strive to please.

Address Jackie Coogan in care of his own company at Hollywood, Calif.

"Robin Hood" managed to get here once, so it might return. It seems to be "slow but sure."

The entertainers at the Liberty theatre December 17, 18 and 19 were: Gordon's Comedy Canines; Blanche Boyd and Freddie King in "The Chameleon Girl;" Primrose Minstrels with Mrs. George Primrose and cast including John E. Burke, E. Booth Platt, Dick Roberts, Rusty Widener, Matt and William Mallory; Mahon and Cholet in "Two Boys From Texas;" Helen Higgins and Edith Blossom with Horace Bentley in "Singdance."

Screen Siftings

Rudolph Coming Back.—Valentino fans should be happy now that the "Sheik" has decided to start the New Year right and finish his contract with Famous Players-Lasky. He will start work soon on "Monsieur Beaucaire," under Sidney Olcott's direction, according to the latest information from the Lasky studio. Not only is Rudy coming back, but he's coming back right—as Rudolph instead of Rodolph.

The Inner Sight.—James Kirkwood and Lila Lee, who recently formed a co-starring partnership following their marriage, are at work on the second picture of the series to be distributed by Hodkinson. The first release is "The Inner Sight" and will be distributed early in February.

Won't Give Up Her Name.—Apropos of the Kirkwood-Lee partnership, Lila made an awful fuss and threatened to "walk out" when she learned that W. W. Hodkinson, who releases their pictures was considering releasing them as "Mr. and Mrs. Kirkwood specials." She says she "absolutely refuses to have her own identity, a stellar celebrity sunk in the seat of matrimony and washed over subsequently by the waters of oblivion." At least her decision will save lots of confusion if she should decide to dissolve partnership any time in the future with Mr. Kirkwood.

Recovering From Injuries.—Reginal Denny, star of "The Leather Pushers," "The Abysmal Brute" and "Sporting Youth" is recovering from injuries he received recently when his motor car overturned on Sunset Boulevard in Hollywood.

Another Coming Youngster.—John Fox, jr., the youngster who is making such a big hit in "The Covered Wagon" has been selected for a role in Herbert Rawlinson's latest picture, "Jack O'Clubs," by Gerald Beaumont.

Returns from South America.—Kathleen Meyers, who recently returned from South America where she played leads in a series of pictures, is playing opposite Billy Sullivan in "Girls Will Be Girls," the latest of the Leather Pusher Series.

Stars As Swimmer.—Frank Farrington, playing the role of Professor Mallow in "Flowing Gold," the latest Richard Walton Tully First National release, is an accomplished swimmer, and was in the original Forest Swimming team in London. This team held the polo shield for three consecutive years. Milton Sills, Anna Q. Nilsson and Alice Calhoun are the other important members of the "Flowing Gold" cast.

Extras for Their Feet.—A dozen extras hired for a scene for Allan Dwan's film version of "Big Brother," the Rex Beach story, will be sorely disappointed when they see the picture. They will see nothing but their feet in the completed production. They had to walk back and forth in front of a basement window while a restaurant scene was being filmed.

Nagels to New York.—Conrad Nagel and his wife have gone to New York, where Conrad will play the leading masculine role in Distinctive's forthcoming production of "Blood and Gold." Alma Rubens is the leading lady in the production which Albert Parker is directing.

Star Has Side Line.—Bessie Love has a side line. She has originated a process of decorating perfume bottles. As soon as the patent is perfected, she will market her innovation as the "Love Bottle."

The Gold Fish.—Constance Talmadge has started work on "The Goldfish," a screen adaptation of the French play by Gladys Unger, which Marjorie Rambeau made famous on the spenking stage. Jerome Storm will direct the picture. Jack Mulhall, who played opposite Constance in "Dulcy" will have the leading male role in "The Goldfish."

Tom Mix Explains.—Tom Mix explains the accidental shooting of himself, from which he has just recovered, to be connected with the frustration of a plot by notorious bandits to rob Mrs. Mix of $100,000 of jewelry, on the night of December 18. Mix and the Hollywood police armed, were guarding the house at the appointed hour for the robbery when the bandits drove up and suspecting danger, disappeared before the police could catch them. It was while putting his own gun away that Mix's revolver dropped out of his pocket and discharged itself, wounding him in the thigh.

Morey In Hollywood.—Harry Morey is making pictures in Hollywood for the first time in his career. He plays the heavy role in "Captain January," in which Baby Peggy Montgomery is starring. Hobart Bosworth is First Mate Judson, and Lincoln Stedman, son of Myrtle Stedman has the part of Bob Peet. Irene Rich will play the little girl's aunt, Isabelle Morton. Camera work has begun on the picture at the Principal Pictures Studios under the direction of Edward F. Cline.

Film Post Story.—"Not a Drum was Heard," a Saturday Evennig Post story by Ben Ames Williams, has been selected as the next vehicle for Charles Jones. William Wellman is directing, and Betty Bouton, who played in "You Can't Get Away With It," is hte new leading lady for Mr. Jones.

Marriage or Luxury?

She had everything that any woman's mind can wish or heart desire—but without Love.

She wanted Love—that great, sweeping, all-embracing Love—A genuine home with her Man and his children. She had to choose and freely made her choice. Then Fate—

Just one of the little things that make everyday life big with tragedy—Fate brushes in, and Love again is denied, and luxury becomes even more unbearable.

Minerva's Mail

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

The Girl Who Has Been Known As Serious-Minded Through Her School And Business Life Confesses To A Long-Festering Desire To Be Frivolous—Just How Can She Have A Bit of Gaiety, She Asks—Start With Dress and Especially Colors, She Is Advised, And Have A Lot of Fun Out of Everything — More Discussion On When And How To Punish Children.

Would Be Frivolous.

Dear Minerva: I am a young woman on the shady side of twenty-five. I have always been known as a serious minded person, made good grades in school and have made a pretty good success of business. But all the time at heart I have longed to be a frivolous butterfly. When in school I was too bashful to push myself socially and so became a good student. But my dreams were always of being queen of the ball or vamp of the campus. And even yet I am dissatisfied with my drab life. In fact I am desperately dissatisfied. I want to do something to change my life. I would do almost anything desperate if I knew what to do. But I can't seem to shake off the dull shackles of habit. I have a bit of money saved up. How could I use it to best help myself along the lines of ambition. Or do you think me, A Foolish Person.

A. I do not think you foolish. We all need gaiety and color in our lives and if we do not get it in our extreme youth we hunger and thirst for it later. You really have it coming to you to have some of the fun and thrills out of life.

I wonder how you dress, to start with. Is your dress not as somber and colorless as your life? I imagine it is, that you wear the most sedate of garb. I am quite a believer in the psychological effects of dress upon a woman's poise and deportment and upon the effect that it has upon her life in general. Take a woman who has dressed for utility and comfort only all her life, never studying her personality and the colors and styles most suited for her. Let someone who knows how choose this woman's clothes for a season and her whole life may be changed thereby.

I don't advise you to suddenly blossom out in a riot of color. But cast aside the extreme convention which has been yours and shop for the smartest thing in a suit and hat you can find. Don't buy this time with an eye to the lonlevity of the costume but to its effectiveness. Buy a well cut suit of youthful lines and a piquant hat with dash and color. Then study colors and find out what color it is that makes you feel most radiant and adventuresome and youthful. Then buy you a dress of that color. No matter if you haven't any place to wear it. Buy the dress first, then live up to it.

Not very sensible, you say. No, it isn't. But if you are to have your little fling you must get away from the permanent habit of being sensible. Be just a little foolish now and then.

The reason that—
Bachelor girls don't marry and become old maids;
Cooks grow cross and irritable;
Housewives get "nerves" and Society women fail in what they undertake—is because—
They commit psychological sins and
They select wrong color tones,
Do not make a study of perfumes,
And do not study themselves.

Therefore—
Economically applied color psychology is essential to success;
Scientifically it promotes health and happiness;
Artistically, it works toward color harmony.

So I would seriously say, consider first your dress, and particularly the colors you affect. Go to the library and look up a modern treatise on chromalingua, or color language. It makes interesting reading and is decidedly illuminating. Color has always been a power, just as electricity, but we are ignorant of its power and laws by which we could govern it, so as to make it serve us.

Then having dressed for the part, seek adventure. Use part of the money you have saved to take little trips, if you can secure the time away from your work. Go to the theatre and see the most frivolous and best shows you can find. Improve your living quarters. Make them artistic and appealing to the nth degree. Equip your little home with shining silver and lustrous china and immaculate linens. Then give little supper parties. If you don't play bridge or mah-jong, immediately take lessons and learn to play these games well. Learn to dance too. Read the frivolous magazines, inform yourself as to the books being read and discussed and the plays which are most talked about.

You should certainly have a lot of fun training yourself to be frivolous.

As the Romans Do.

Dear Minerva: This is Shorty again, in answer to Dad, in the case of Solomon vs. Ingersoll. Dad missed my point completely. My fault, perhaps; I ought to have taken time to put my idea across more clearly. That idea was that Dad was not careful enough with words, and so gave us the wrong idea. Let that pass. It's not worth squabbling about.

Dad's letter was the best thing in today's Mail. His views are pertinent. He has explained that he wanted to impress on my mind that Solomon wasn't the whole cheese. Come to think of it neither was Ingersoll. It's true that Solomon never saw a newspaper, never rode on a train or in an automobile or an aeroplane, never talked over a telephone or listened over the radio, never saw a football game or a movie or a prize fight, or did any of the things moderns do, except it were to eat, drink, and be merry and maybe a few other little things It's true he was a polygamist and had an assortment of wives that would have made the Sultan of Sulu envious. Harems were the universal thing in that day; possibly if Dad or Ingersoll either one had lived in those days they would both have conformed to the habits of the period, and would have had as many wives as they could have supported in comfort. Doing as the Romans do when in Rome is an iron-bound custom.

There is this to be said on the subject of Solomon vs. Ingersoll. Solomon believed in God at the time the Song of Solomon, Proverbs, and Ecclesiastics were written. He won more than local fame because of his wisdom. He believed that the fear of the Lord was the beginning of wisdom. He lived during a period when men groped after God through a blind faith. He looked up to God as the source of all wisdom and acknowledged Him in all his ways. As long as he kept his faith in the Lord so long did he find favor in the sight of God. His greatness and his wisdom failed only after he displeased the Lord by going astray and worshipping the false gods of his heathen wives. The words he wrote have been given a place in Holy Writ, among other inspired things.

The difference between Solomon and Ingersoll is the difference of "two men who looked out from prison bars; the one saw mud, the other stars." Ingersoll had the benefit of education, invention, science, the light that radiated from the Light of the world and he spurned the latter. He pinned his faith in the wisdom of the skeptic. He looked at man and failed to see the spark of immortality that glowed in his soul. He looked at the stars and could not see the infinite Creator back of them. He looked at the heavens and saw not that it was the throne of God. He looked at the earth and did not see that it was the handiwork of God and His footstool. He mocked at the idea of God. Compared to the book of Proverbs, his "Mistakes of Moses" and everything else he ever wrote is as the chaff of the summer threshing-floors.

I still believe that all the wisdom of the ages was embodied in Solomon's "train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." Here's hoping all of Minerva's readers will respectfully decline to look to Ingersoll for wisdom. He isn't the most brilliant pattern to hold up to young folks. Infidels never are.

Whether to punish or not to punish, can there be any cast iron rules either way? There are so many decisive circumstances to consider. Differences in child nature, parental example, environment, pre-natal influences, inheritance. Commonsense and the needs of the case should decide. The dad who withholds the needed punishment may be a little tin saint and he may not. Ingersoll was no saint anyhow.—Shorty.

Doping A Child.

Dear Minerva: Is there any harm in giving a child paregoric? My mother-in-law who has been helping me with the children says she raised her family of eight chidlren successfully and that I am foolish not to use it for my children. I have always thought it was the next thing to poisoning a child. Also she believes in doping a child with castor oil every time he sneezes. Do you think that is right? Mother of Two.

A. It is always a shock to hear that there are still some people who believe paregoric may safely be given children. You are entirely right; it is poison to a child's system.

It is wrong to give a child drugs unless under the very expert advice of a physician who has made careful diagnosis and knows just what he is giving the drug for. To give castor oil for any ailment is merely a lazy way of disposing of one's obligations. After several months of such treatment, the child is as badly off as ever and the drug itself is no longer of any value. I know many seemingly sensible mothers who listen to older people and when a child looks pale and peaked will start giving drugs for "worms," or give so-labeled "tonics." Indiscriminate drug giving is little short of criminal. You abide by your own convictions in this matter. The mother-in-law has raised her eight; now she must let you raise your two according to your own lights. Her eight may have weak stomachs or chronic headaches or other afflictions from which you can save your two.

The right way to cure any ailment is to hunt out the cause and eliminate it by natural methods. Drugs may alleviate but they never have cured constipation, sleeplessness, colds or colic. Exercise, diet, commonsense are the only things which have permanent value as a cure.

University Notes

With a view to aiding the teacher in secondary schools to solve some of the problems that arise, a correspondence-study course on "The Secondary School" is offered by the extension division of the university. Suggestive also to principals and superintendents, the sixteen lessons of the course will take up a study of practical topics bearing on the field. A second course in the program for teachers is "The Junior High School," also offered in sixteen lessons with appropriate examinations—a study of history, ideals, organization and program of studies of this type. For superintendents of schools of medium size the extension division presents a third course, "School Organization and Administration," which gives a comprehensive view of the field of administration of public education in the United States, and presents practical suggestions to aid in the solution of many problems incident to the important line of school activity.

Applied psychology, given under the direction of Prof. C. O. Weber of the department of philosophy, is offered in correspondence by the extension division to acquaint students with the best current knowledge concerning the psychological factors that determine efficiency in both personal and professional life. First will be considered individual problems: Efficient memory, mental hygiene, habit formation, the causes and treatment of mental fatigue, and the use of drugs and stimulants. Second, consideration will be given the application of the facts and principles of psychology in the problems of professional life; particularly to legal, medical and educational problems which are of general significance. Complete information concerning this and other extension courses may be got from Director A. A. Reed at the University.

The annual bulletin for the summer school of 1924 has been prepared under the direction of Dean W. E. Sealock of Teachers college, director of the summer session, and will shortly be available. Registration is set for June 6, 7 and 9; clases for the first term begin June 10 and close July 16. Second term classes will begin July 17 and will close August 22. Additional courses, especially in rural education and school administration, will be offered. Educators from other universities will take charge of classes not taught by regular members of the University of Nebraska faculty.

In view of the increased opportunities Dean Sealock expects the 1924 session to exceed in attendance the enrollment of 2,000 reached in 1923. Regular students who desire to shorten or supplement the collegiate course may take advantage of the summer classes, as well as teachers of the state for whom the session is primarily arranged.

Chicago will be visited by senior students of the College of Engineering on the annual inspection trip to fulfill graduation requirements, as a result of vote taken recently by the committee in charge of arrangements. The trip will be taken March 30 to April 4. Interviews with students this week will determine the exact number who will inspect the engineering wonders of the second city of the country Other engineering students may also take the trip, which is obligatory for seniors.
